Gets Things Done! Action Line

DIAL 432-3451

Action Line is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Q. I am a novice magician and I need a straitjacket for an escape act. Could you help me find one? N.B., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE is fit to be tied after numerous unsuccessful attempts to locate a straitjacket. More modern restraints have made the straitjacket obsolete in mental hospitals and jails. You will, however, be sent the names of two local stores where the item may be ordered as well as instructions on how to make your own.

Q. I'm supposed to be related to the McCoys of Kentucky. Could you tell me something about the Hatfield-McCoy feud? B.R., Long Beach.

A. Hope you don't mind taking a Hatfield's word for it but ACTION LINE got your answer from one of the combatant's sons, Coleman Hatfield, an elderly country lawyer from Logan County, W. Va. "The ill feeling between the families began," he says, "When Roseann, the daughter of clan head Randolph McCoy, ran off with Johnse Hatfield after being refused permission to marry him.

Then there was a lawsuit between the families over some wild hogs. But the major incident came in August, 1882, when some Hatfields went to Pike County, Ky., to help a relative campaign for constable. Ellison Hatfield was killed in a fight with three McCoy brothers. In retribution, the three McCoys were slain by a group of Hatfields and their friends." Feud death estimates run from 27 to 100. Although most of the shooting took place over only a 10-year period, bitterness persisted into this century. Band leader Clyde (Sugar Blues) McCoy, a descendant, playing a date in Harlan, Ky., in 1935, had his tuxedo, shirt and tie ripped by a Hatfield girl who jumped onto the band stand. Reconciliation came last year, though, when Carl E. Hatfield accepted an invitation, extended by Robert W. McCoy, to join a college fraternity.

Q. I'd like to obtain a picture of my late father, who was in public life in Reno, Nev. in the early 1900s. I think he was chief of the city's police and later captain of the state police. Can you tell me where I might be able to find a picture? H.B., Los Alamitos.

A. Yes. The Nevada State Historical Society has a picture of your father in uniform during his tenure as Sheriff of Washoe County. You can obtain a copy by sending $1 to the society at P.O. Box 1129, Reno, Nev. Mrs. Clara Beatty, historian, says your father also was Reno chief of police, but apparently never served with the state police. He headed Reno's small force about 1910 when the city's population numbered 10,000, she says.

Q. I'd like to hike and explore in the Cleveland National Forest but I don't have a detailed map of the area. Where can I find a map showing trails in the forest? Mrs. G.B., Long Beach.

A. Maps of the Cleveland National Forest, which stretches from eastern Orange County to the Mexican border, are on the way to you from the U.S. Forest Service office at 2045 N. Broadway, Santa Ana, which supplies such maps upon request. The forest is comprised of three areas which do not adjoin, Trabuco — the Santa Ana Mountains' section behind El Toro and Capistrano — Palomar and Descanso.

Parts of the forest including the northern end of the Trabuco section are closed, because of the fire hazard, from July 1 until the first heavy rain of the season. Hikers will find appropriately-placed signs marking the main

Red Rail Arteries Pounded

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes ranged north of Hanoi again Saturday to pound facilities on a main rail artery linking the North Vietnamese capital to Communist China.

Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs bombed rail facilities 37 and 39 miles northeast of Hanoi. Other Air Force planes attacked a rail bridge 39 miles north of the Communist capital and blasted a concentration of antiaircraft guns in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam.

The Viet Cong in South Vietnam fired 10 to 20 mortar rounds on the Mekong Delta city of Can Tho this morning, wounding 50 Vietnamese civilians and four Americans. Elsewhere, ground action was light.

The U.S. command said the mortar attack on Can Tho lasted about 10 minutes and ended when U.S. gunship helicopters and an AC47 Dragon ship counter-attacked enemy positions.

In Saturday' raids on North Vietnam, pilots gave no assessment of bomb damage on the rail facilities.

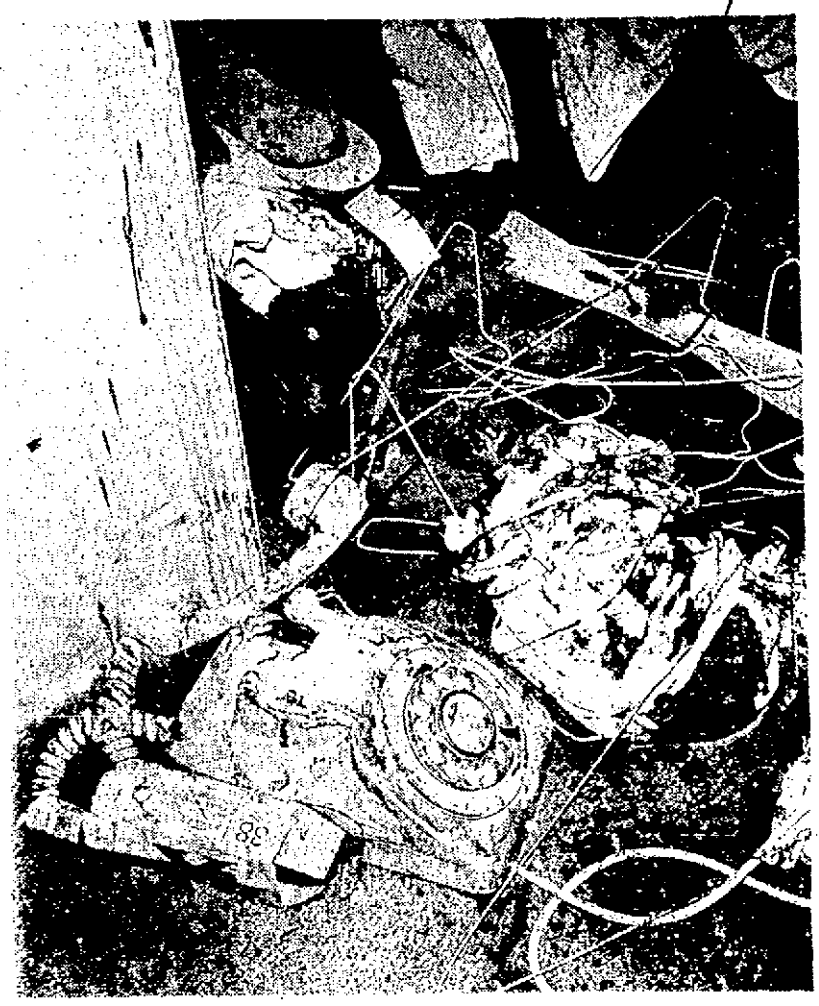

* * * *

AIR FORCE F4 Phantom pilots attacked a concentration of 30 antiaircraft guns 30 miles south of Dong Hoi in the southern panhandle and reported destroying six of the guns. The Phantoms also bombed a suspected surface-to-air missile site south of Dong Hoi.

Navy planes from aircraft carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin attacked the Loc Tho boat yards near Vinh in North Vietnam for a second day and a transshipment point 46 miles southeast of Haiphong.

In South Vietnam, U.S. B52 bombers made two raids, hitting Saturday night at enemy hase camps and storage areas in Tay Ninh Province near the Cambodian border and, on this morning, in Phu Bon Province about 220 miles northeast of Saigon.

A delayed report by U.S. headquarters said two American helicopters were shot down Friday on medical evacuation missions near the city of Tam Ky on the central coast.

KILLER TALKED WITH POLICE
A bloody telephone in killer Norman Baker's apartment was used by the gunman to talk with Long Beach police Capt. Maurice Wishon. Baker thought he was ordering an ambulance for himself after he was wounded in the gunfight with the two officers he killed. Police Victims Put 8 Bullets Into Their Killer

By TERRY SATTORIA

Two young Long Beach police officers were shot to death in a blazing close-range gunfight Saturday with a man they managed to wound eight times but couldn't kill.

Officer Donald V. Knott, 24, died in the arms of a woman witness who braved a torrent of gunfire to help the wounded officer.

William L. Isham, 27, wounded in the chest and elbow, gasped out his life sprawled in the middle of a staircase that became a trap, locking the two dead officers in the direct line of their assailant's gunfire.

A woman, the object of the gunmen's first shot, was in satisfactory condition at Harbor General Hospital Saturday, hours after the brief but violent early morning gun battle in the suspect's apartment at 182 Quincy Ave., in Belmont Shore.

And the suspect, Norman L. Baker, a 25-year-old Navy Shipyard painter, shot eight times during the battle, was listed in critical condition at Los Angeles County General Hospital prison ward, held pending investigation of murder.

* * * *

THE TWO OFFICERS had gone to the apartment shortly before 3 a.m. to check a phone report that a man was beating a woman at the Quincy Avenue address.

According to Police Lt. Robert Hill, when Knott and Isham arrived on the scene, they found Linda Winters, 20, who described herself as Baker's wife, lying at the foot of the stairs to the walk-up garage apartment.

She said Baker had locked her out and she wanted to get inside to get her purse so she could leave.

One witness, Clifford Helwig, who lives in a second-story apartment immediately in front of the suspect's flat, and who had

'12' Sought to Judge Kirschke

By SHERM WILLIAMS

The death scene is remote.

It will be more remote at 10 a.m. Monday when the selection of the jury in the murder trial of former Dept. Dist. Atty. Jack Kirschke resumes in the Los Angeles Superior Court of Judge Kathleen Parker.

Gone are the overblown pictures of Elaine Terry Kirschke nude from the waist down taken after her murder.

Possibly forgotten by the prospective jurors is the lurid testimony presented in preliminaries to the sensational trial when prosecution and defense attempted to have evidence both admitted and banned.

Further comment by the principals to newsmen is banned by ruling of Judge Parker.

This is a quiet, orderly selection of a jury — with a hint of the struggle to come in the careful, tediously minute detail in which the prospective jurors are examined.

At the far end of the attorney's table, hand cupped to his ear, lips pursed, straining to hear, Jack Kirschke will watch a familiar scene, the seating of the prospective jurors.

This time though, he will not be the deputy district attorney prosecuting a

Jews, Arab Units Clash Along Suez

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egyptian and Israeli forces near Ismailia on the Suez Canal exchanged fire for about an hour Saturday, an Israeli army spokesman announced. Israel announced earlier its antiaircraft guns shot down a Soviet-made Egyptian jet fighter over the Sinai Peninsula.

The army spokesman said the shooting along the canal broke out when Egyptians opened fire at an Israeli position on the east bank. No Israeli casualties were reported.

Israeli antiaircraft fire reportedly downed a Soviet-made Egyptian Sukhoi 7 jet fighter over Bir Gifgafa Saturday.

Humphrey Calls Demos in L.A. to Boost LBJ

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told Democrats in Los Angeles Saturday they must hang together in 1968 or suffer "separate funerals without too many flowers."

A few hours later, Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey depicted California's Gov. Ronald Reagan as the likeliest Republican to test that Democratic unity.

Humphrey, by long distance phone from Minneapolis where he was visiting his critically ill brother, and Bailey in person, were talking to the western states Democratic conference in Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel.

Both Humphrey and Bailey thus reinforced the obvious thrust of this convocation of Democratic Party leaders of 13 western states and Guam — a necessary and intense unit behind the virtually certain Johnson-Humphrey reelection ticket of 1968.

Humphrey, in a 26-minute phone message, called for confidence, coordination, communication and commitment by Democrats. Dealing with his first C — confidence, Humphrey said Republicans are the most professional pessimists in the world — "They can make young men feel old overnight."

Salvation Army Band Plays Young

By GEORGE LAINE

If you've seen a Salvation Army band standing on a street corner, playing "Onward Christian Soldiers" and delivering testimony for God, you may not be ready for the "new look" in the Army's musical ranks.

Like, folk music.

Playing Southland beaches this summer has been a team of Salvation Army young people (average age: 20) with guitars, bongos, tambourines and finger cymbals. For the uninitiated, those four instruments offer virtully the entire range of youth-oriented music.

Under the command of Capt. Robert Saunders, who heads the Army's Young People's Groups, the band has made major inroads on sun-loving, beach-dwelling teens and post-teens, according to Capt. Harold Broughton, commander of the Salvation Army's Long Beach Corps.

"They've had a tremendous experience on our beaches," said Captain Broughton, during an interview Saturday at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

"They went down on the sand and spoke to the young people about God and Christ in language the young people understand.

"Captain Saunders told me that the children had some very provocative questions for the Young People's Beach Band and that many of the questions were quite difficult to answer. They said they found some of our values a sham and that's the kind of a question a Salvationist loves to deal with."

Throughout the eight days of the 10th Annual Long Beach Camp Meetings — which run through next Sunday — Captain Saunders' legion will be abroad on the Long Beach strand. They'll be augmented by most of the persons attending the Camp Meetings, who'll seek to discuss sin and salvation instead of sun and sex with the throng on the sands. "You have to go where the people are," said Captain Broughton, nodding his head toward the nearby beach. "If the people want to go to the beach, the Salvation Army will also go to the beach."

SAW OFFICERS SHOT

'Died in My Arms,' Girl Witness Says

"I guess he died in my arms."

Twenty-year-old Mary Conover, 1725 Redondo Ave., who saw the violent gunfight in which two Long Beach police officers were killed, numbly related her terrifying experience in which she tried to help one of the dying officers.

"He was lying on his back gagging, so I turned him on his side and put my fingers down his throat to straighten out his tongue to help the gagging."

* * * *

MISS CONOVER, shaken by the gruesome ordeal, said Saturday afternoon she thought Donald V. Knott, 24, died in her arms amid a torrent of bullets as other officers rushed in to arrest the enraged killer.

The girl, who was visiting her boyfriend Clifford Helwig, another witness to the slayings, stayed with the dying officer until the suspect, Norman L. Baker, 25, was arrested.

"I put my fingers in his mouth a couple of times to help the gagging," she said. "He was able to cough out some of the blood."

"I guess the blood just choked him too much."

Miss Conover and Helwig were witnesses to the entire brief but blazing gun battle that began with a domestic quarrel between Linda Winders, 20, a waitress, and the suspect, and ended in the violent deaths of Knott and Officer William L. Isham, 27.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Sir Stafford Misplaces $1.8 Million

Combined News Services

A royal commission investigating gambling in the Bahamas reported Saturday that $1.8 million had been paid to Sir Stafford Sands, former minister of tourism and finance, during a five-year period ending last December.

"I doubt those figures," the portly Sandstold the five-member commission at the close of three days on the witness stand in Nassau.

"I didn't think it was that much. I'd have to check my figures," he said.

The commission said the payment was made by the Grand Bahama Development Co., one of five companies owned by Canadian multimillionaire Wallace Groves.

Sands, still retained by the Groves' companies at a fee of $10,000 a month, earlier described Groves as "one of my closest and best friends."

Under questioning, Sands refused to tell of his bank accounts in the United States, but he did say none of his money was in Switzerland or in the Cayman Islands.

To disclose his bank accounts, he said, "might tend to incriminate me."

Sands flew here from Spain, where he went into voluntary exile after an upheaval in the Bahamian government swept his United Bahamas Party out of control last January.

SONS IN SERVICE

A golden anniversary is always a special occasion, but the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Knodel today will be very special.

The Department of Defense will present the couple with a citation in honor of a national record they set by having 11 serviceman sons.

All 11 sons and two daughters will be on hand for the celebration in Isabel, S.D. a town of 500 persons, to watch the presentation of a bronze plaque and an American flag to the proud parents.

GREEKS PROTEST

Greece's King Constantine and Queen Anne Marie, who flew Saturday night from New York to Toronto, have even noisier demonstrations in store for them. On their "private, unofficial visit" to the United States and Canada, they were met by Greek Canadians wearing black armbands in memory of Greek democracy and carrying the Greek flag at half mast.

The largest show of protest was due today on the grounds of the provincial legislature. Organizers said thousands would protest against the rightwing government established in Greece since an army coup.

NO BEAUTIES

Television's Bess Myerson told about 150 retailers from the Southwest meeting at a seminar Saturday that it was time to put beauty back in fashion.

The meeting in Dallas was sponsored by the Fashion Institute of America.

Miss Myerson said that storeowners have been victims of a fashion propaganda campaign which protects a few individuals and companies to the detriment of millions. She added, "It is high time . . . to tell your sources what your customer wants."

She told them in a reference to the English model Twiggy, that in this era beauty is an undernourished little girl with big sad eyes, boyishly cut hair, and legs which never would have brought whistles and "much less a glance a few years ago."

PHONEY MONEY

A New Mexico highlands psychology professor, held in a Nogales, Mex., jail here since Thursday ona charge of possessing a counterfeit $20 bill, was released Saturday.

Mexican police said John Clark, 36, Las Vegas, N.M., was released after a Mexico City court "disposed" of the case.

Clark's wife, Frank, said they cashed checks at a bank and a market in Las Vegas and received 17 $20 bills in change.

Clark's troubles began Thursday when he presented two of the bills to a clerk at a bank in the Mexican town. The clerk said one bill appeared to be counterfiet. He checked the other 15 bills for Clark and said they were all good.

The clerk reportedly told Clark to put the bill aside and continue his vacation trip. However, Clark was stopped at an inspection station south of there and told to return to Nogales, where he was arrested.

U.S. AN HEIR

George Policandriotes came to the United States from the Greek island of Mykonos at the age of 20.

One of his first jobs in this country was with the federal government as a lighthouse keeper in Washington state, and he probably never forgot it.

When Policandriotes died on March 19, 1962, at the age of 84, he left a will ordering that "all of my properties, personal and real estate, must go to the Federal Government of the United States to pay public debts. Leave nothing to my relatives."

Policandriotes was a truck farmer and a successful real estate dealer in the Joliet, Ill., area.

Eight of the 22 relatives Policandriotes, a bachelor, left out of his will contested on the grounds that he was mentally incompetent when he drew it up. They were awarded $12,000 from the estate by the county court.

However, the bulk of Policandriotes' estate, including a farm from which the government hopes to receive about $125,000 when it is sold at a public auction in Chicago on Sept. 29, and $43,450 in other forms of capital provided in the will, remains government property — the way Policandriotes wanted it.

NEXT TARGET?

Robert B. DePugh, leader ofthe militant right wing Minutemen, said Saturday in Kansas City he and George Lincoln Rockwell were among four rightwing leaders tabbed for assassination.

Rockwell head of the American Nazi Party, was gunned down in an Arlington, Va. shopping center.

DePugh said he received the information from "a contact" on the East Coast after the Nazi party leader was killed. He said the orders for the assassination came from a high government official in Havana.

NEW LIBRARY

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson called libraries the most democratic places in any city as she dedicated a modernistic structure in a rustic setting in the hill country community of Kerrville, Tex., Saturday.

"Libraries must be measured by their use," she told a crowd of 3,500 on a cliff top below a balcony of the new $500,000 Butt-Holdsworth Memorial Library.

"I hope your volumes become dogeared instead of dusty," she said.

The First Lady then walked to the edge of the cliff overlooking the green Guadalupe River and planted a 5-year-old oak tree grown from an acorn of the Davey Crockett Oak on the grounds of the Alamo at San Antonio.

SAILOR SAFE

William Willis, 74, sailing alone across the Atlantic in an 11½-foot boat, is 1,200 miles east of Nova Scohia and going strong, the Coast Guard reports.

Willis, who left Montauk, Long Island, June 30, was sighted by the Coast Guard cutter Castle Rock, which supplied him with canned milk, fresh fruit and a report on his position.

Willis said he was in perfect health and hopes to reach Plymouth, Eng., in November. He marked his 74th birthday Aug. 19.

Last year he sailed halfway across the Altantic but had to give up because of a hernia. In 1964, he sailed a raft from Peru to Australia in 204 days.

Gable's Widow Injures Back in Boating Mishap

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Katherine Gable, 52, widow of actor Clark Gable, suffered a back injury in the collision of a motorboat and a paddleboat at a Mission Bay boat dock Saturday.

Mrs Gable was treated for a wrenched back in Doctors' Hospital, then transferred to Mercy Hospital. Patrolman Robert Mico said she had a heart ailment and was to be examined further because of it.

Lifeguards said Mrs. Gable, her son, Anthony Spreckles, 18, and her daughter, Joan Spreckles, 16, all of Encino, were trying to move away from a pier on a 10-foot paddleboat they rented at Vacation Village Hotel on the bay when another boat approached.

Humphrey Plugs LBJ by Phone in history, Humphrey said and "90 per cent of Republicans voted no." Communicate this fact, the vice president exhorted, and tell the beneficiaries of Medicare, "who passed it and who opposed it."

Humphrey zeroed in on party strife, now mounting in California, with one manifestation in the Long Beach Arena peace convention of the California Democratic Council Sept. 30.

"We must coordinate our enormous energies," he said, "and submerge our personal differences; we must forgo the luxury of personal hatreds and revenge."

President Johnson will be at the head of next year's ticket, Humphrey said, and "we will win together or not win at all. It will be a joint victory, he said, "or separate funerals without too many flowers; don't poison the well from which you dip your cup."

The opposition senses the possibility of an upset, he said, and so it is time to stand up and be counted.

HUMPHREY ASSERTED that our commitment in Southeast Asia "is the very keystone of the arch of world peace and world stability," but "leadership gives you no privilege — it is not a luxury, but a burden."

Chairman Bailey, indirectly criticized several months ago by California Eugene L. Wyman for running an ineffective national committee, was present and circulating among conference delegates since his arrival Thursday.

Said Bailey at a Saturday night banquet, "Contrary to predictions that the large class of freshmen Republican congressmen would be progressive, they are as conservatice and as negative as any of the old crowd.

"All of this leads up to one possibility that is becoming more and more evident every day: that Barry's boy, Ronald Reagan, may well end up as the GOP nominee.

HE USED THE defeat of the rat control bill to charge the GOP with opposition to virtually all progress. He said 148 of 160 Republicans recorded cast their votes against the bill "and four days later the National Republican Coordinating Committee issued a statement blaming the administration for the riots."

Former California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown spoke of four crises in our cities — law and order, poverty, physical growth and deterioration and disintegration of our social fabric.

Accused Torrance Police Killer Identified in Utah

By WALT MURRAY

A critically injured man who was thrown from his car and crushed as the auto rolled over on a Utah desert highway was positively identified Saturday as a man accused of killing a Torrance policeman.

Utah authorities compared his fingerprints with records of Jerry Lee O'Brien, flown to Salt Lake City from Torrance.

"They match perfectly," Tooele County Sheriff Fay Gillettee said.

The sheriff, who is guarding O'Brien in the intensive care unit of Tooele Valley Hospital, said the 34 year-old fugitive is in critical condition.

"Besides suffering from broken bones and internal injuries from the highway accident, he seems to be going through narcotics withdrawal symptoms," Gillette said.

Torrance detectives said extradition proceedings to bring O'Brien back to California for trial may begin Monday.

The fugitive is accused of shooting to death Officer David Seibert, 25, in a $15,000 robbery of a Crenshaw Boulevard market Aug. 10.

At the Tooele hospital, near the edge of the desert 25 miles southwest of Salt Lake City, Sheriff Gillette said that contrary to some news reports "we have not exchanged one word with O'Brien. He is still unconscious."

Police said the injured man carried his brother's indentification, the address of his mother in North Hollywood and a driver's license with the name of Joseph James Howard, 39, of Lakewood, an alias O'Brien used.

The sheriff said it appeared that O'Brien was thrown from his car as it veered out of control and rolled over. The accident occurred on Interstate Highway 80 about 80 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

Utah Highway Patrolman Dan Chidester was on his way to a nearby desert service station to take a report on a narcotics incident when a truck driver signaled him.

Chidester later discovered it was O'Brien who had given himself an injection of narcotics at the service station desert stop called Lowe.

The patrolman said O'Brien threatened a 10-year-old boy with a .32-caliber revolver when the child interrupted him as he gave himself a narcotics injection in the service station lavatory.

A service station attendant, James Barnhart, armed himself with a pistol and forced his way into the restroom when he heard the child.

Chidester said O'Brien pushed past Barnhart, leaped in his car and ripped out a section of service station fenced as he sped off.

Sheriff Gillette said when O'Brien was several miles into the desert, he turned around.

Minutes later, Chidester found him near his overturned auto which contained a powder believed to be a narcotic drug and a .32 caliber pistol. His wallet contained several thousand dollars, Chidester said.

Police later found an eyedropper, syringe and needles and a flame-burned spoon in the service station restroom.

Governors Ask Action to Prevent Race Riots

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (UPI) — The executive committee of the National Governor's Conference called Saturday for a program of "action now and action in the future" to halt civil disobedience and at the same time remedy the social climate in which it has flourished.

Gov. William L. Guy of North Dakota, chairman of the National Governor's Conference and its executive committee, said the group directed the conference's committee on federal, state and local relations to begin an immedate study for presentation to the October meeting of the national conference.

Under the plan the committee, headed by Gov. John Dempsey of Connecticut, and its staff would confer with officials on all levels concerning the twin problems of civil disobedience and social injustices.

"We mean with federal officials, state officials, with local police and other local officials including county attornies," said Gov. Daniel J. Evans, of Washington.

THE MOVE CAME at a session, originally called for routine planning of the fall conference which adopted a resolution calling "for all citizes of this nation . . . to rededicate themselves to a respect and observance of law and order and pledge themselves to the elimination of social injustice wherever it exists."

Evans warned, "We are not going to continue as a government of law unless we have social changes."

The resolution called on the federal-state-local relations committee to meet with appropriate organizations "to examine and review the responsibilities of private business, and local, state and federal governments for the protection of persons and property and elimination of social and economic injustice on the basis of action now and further action in the future."

Guy said the session was moved to depart from its original agenda to consider the problems involved in "civil disobedience and action bordering on insurection."

A COMPANION resolution took issue with critics of the National Guard and its handling of racial outbreaks. The executive committee said the group "has full faith and confidence in the competency and dedication of officers and men of the National Guard of our respective states . . . and view with alarm the unjust criticism of the National Guard."

Gov. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, said such criticism was giving the guard "an unfair image."

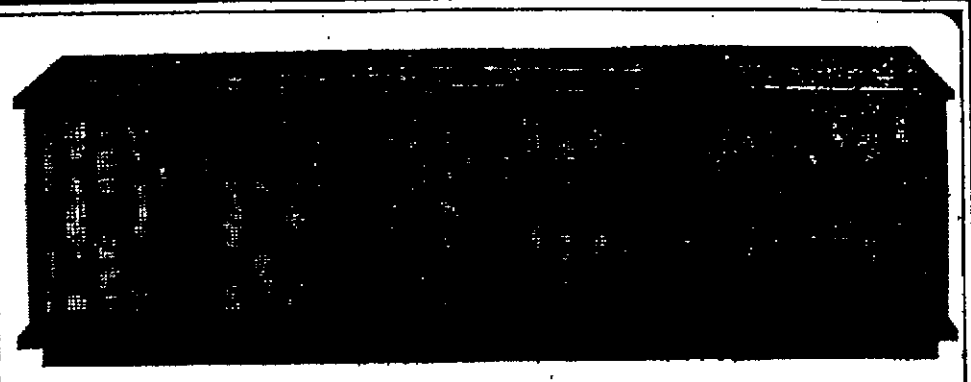

"I expect them to be able to contain or prevent any civil disturbance which might arise,' he said.

Other governors present at the executive committee session were Govs. Warren P. Knowles, Wisconsin; James A. Rhodes, Ohio; Hulett C. Smith, West Virgnia; and John A. Volpe of Massachusetts. Gov. George Romney of Michigan was scheduled to arrive Sunday for the meeting of the midwestern governor's conference scheduled to follow Saturday's executive committee session.

Bourguiba Rips UAR on Israel

United Press International

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, in a bluntly worded statement released Saturday, told Arab nations they must recognize Israel and stop talking about wiping it off the map. He virtually accused UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser of provoking the Middle East war two months ago and blamed him for the Arab defeat.

Bourguiba's statement came as Arab foreign ministers gathered in Khartoum for their second meeting in a month to prepare for the long-awaited Arab summit conference scheduled for next Tuesday.

There appeared to be no doubt that Bourguiba, who has previously been branded as a "traitor" by the Arab bloc, hoped to influence the summit meeting with his statement.

* * * *

THE BITTERNESS toward the Tunisian president from the Arab bloc dates back to 1965 when he urged the Arab nations to adopt a realistic approach to the Israeli question.

His latest blast came in a statement made Thursday at Kef, 90 miles southwest of Tunis, but was not released in full until Saturday.

"The state of Israel has been recognized by both the United States and Soviet Russia," Bourguiba said. "It is a United Nations member and its existence is challenged only by Arab countries.

"In these circumstances, it is useless to continue ignoring this reality and claim to wipe Israel off the map. In so doing, one drives himself into near total isolation."

Observers believed that Bourguiba, who last week conferred in Tunis with Jordanian King Hussein, was anxious to influence the Khartoum summit conference into dropping any "unrealistic" posture that might harden the Middle East deadlock.

"Policies adopted hitherto (by the Arabs) have deprived all sympathies, and no nation wanted to consider Israel as an aggressor," Bourguiba said. "On the contrary, it is believed that is was Egypt which created the 'casus belli,' while from our (Arab) viewpoint it is the very existence of the state of Israel that constitutes an aggression."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH HE did not name names, he virtually accused Nasser of sparking the Arab-Israeli war last June.

"Israel was satisfied with its frontiers and did not ask for either the whole of the city of Jerusalem or for (west) Jordan, and the other territories in the north or east," Bourguiba said.

"Deliberately and without weighing well the risk, steps had been taken to ban Israel from access to the Gulf of Aqaba in spite of international agreements and the prevailing situation.

Newspaper Says Howard Hughes to Develop Industrial Las Vegas

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Chronicle said in a copyrighted story Saturday that financial wizard Howard Hughes is exploring the possibility of establishing a huge industrial complex in the Las Vegas area.

According to Charlie Evans, Chronicle real estate editor, Hughes sees the potential of industrialization and manufacturing development in the Las Vegas area reaching a point where gambling would be displaced as the leading industry in the state of Nevada.

In an obvious move to prove his point, Hughes has decided to make Las Vegas his home and operating base, Evans' story said.

For the first time, the article stated, it can now be told that Hughes' investments in the Las Vegas area this year total more than $70 million.

The story said rumors as to why Hughes, whose wealth tops the billion mark, went to Las Vegas can now be put to rest.

The article said one of Hughes' closest confidants told Evans in an exclusive interview that Hughes bought two major hotels and casinos on the famed Las Vegas Strip because he considers them sound business investments. And his future plans in the area have to do with exploring the possibilities of establishing a huge industrial complex.

Hughes purchased the Desert Inn hotel and casino last March and later the Sands hotel.

French-Canadians in Separtist Row

MONTREAL (AP) — About 20 youths threw eggs and leaflets and shouted French-Canadian separatist slogans Saturday during a ceremony at suburban Dorval for the arrival of Canada's confederation display train.

It was the first such incident of the train's tour across Canada marking the nation's 100th birthday.

Noncombat Injuries in Viet Reach 161,250

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army units in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, recorded 161,250 nonfatal casualties due to disease and accidents, the Pentagon said Saturday in the first report of its kind.

It said 85 per cent of the casualties occurred in the past 19 months.

By contrast, as of last Thursday, U.S. forces in Vietnam reported 12,605 battle deaths, 77,513 wounded in action and 2,549 deaths from causes not the result of hostile operations.

The special report showed the rates for land accidents, disease and all forms of illness where medical attention was administered.

The Army said the nonbattle injuries in Vietnam since the first of the year totaled 58,424, including 48,239 victims of various diseases; 9,719 nonbattle injuries; 142 aircraft accidents and 324 motor vehicle injuries.

In 1966, there were 79,553 noncombat injuries — 66,163 from disease; 12,675 nonbattle injuries; 253 aircraft accident injuries and 462 motor vehicle injuries.

Huge Moon Rocket Placed for Launch

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — America's first Saturn 5 moon rocket, the world's mightiest rode a huge turtle like tractor at a snail's pace to the launch pad Saturday in a key step toward an unmanned test flight in October.

"This is a historic moment in the development of the Saturn 5," said Dr. Walter Rudolph, a veteran of 37 years of rocketry and head of the drive to get the Saturn ready to send Apollo astronauts to the moon this decade.

While the 364-foot rocket crept the 3½ miles from its assembly building to its oceanside firing site, Apollo program director Sam Phillips revealed a revised launch timetable, and said an overweight moonship was one "troublesome problem" remaining.

* * * *

THE EXTRA WEIGHT in the three-man capsule comes from the extensive changes underway to eliminate the weaknesses revealed by the Jan. 27 fire that killed three astronauts. Phillips was confident the moonship could be held to its 100,000-pound weight limit.

The schedule revision pushed the initial unmanned flight of the first Apollo lunar module landing craft on a Saturn 1 rocket from October to December, and the second unmanned launch of the Saturn 5 from late this year into early next year.

The first three-man flight of an Apollo spacecraft, delayed more than a year by the Apollo 1 fire, is now expected next spring on a Saturn 1 rocket. Phillips said the initial manned Saturn 5 launch could come next summer, with another later in the year.

"We've got a major job ahead of us with a lot of firsts and the uncertainties that go with them," Phillips told newsmen. "We're traveling on new ground. It's a risky business."

But despite past problems and some expected in the future, Phillips said he thought the United States would still be able to carry out the manned lunar landing mission in 1969.

* * * *

THE SATURN 5, powered by 8.8 million pounds of thrust in its three stages, was carried to the pad with its massive mobile launch stand on a giant crawling machine that covers more ground than a baseball diamond.

The black and white rocket left its 52-story assembly building at dawn and arrived at the concrete launch site in mid-afternoon. The crawler's top speed was held to less than one-half mile an hour.

The entire load carried by the crawler weighed 12.2 million pounds and the tractor itself weighed 6 million pounds.

"This event today is one that many of us have been working many years to achieve," Phillips said. He said the Saturn and its spacecraft, designated Apollo 4, faced seven more weeks of testing before launch.

For the first mission, the Saturn will hurl an unmanned moonship 11,000 miles above Earth. The spacecraft will then turn around and dive back into Earth's atmosphere at the 25,000 mph reentry speed returning moon explorers will face.

The Apollo is scheduled to descend by parachute to a Pacific Ocean recovery force 8 hours and 43 minutes after launch.

Nigeria Says U.S. Aids Rebels

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — The Nigerian government Saturday charged that the rebellious eastern region had obtained some American arms, including planes, and criticized the United States role in the two-month-old civil war.

At the same time, it confirmed that Soviet technicians were in Nigeria "helping" but recently purchased MIG fighter planes into use against the rebel forces.

It was the first admission that Soviet personnel were playing an active part in the African nation's civil war.

The federal government also announced the formation of a "war cabinet" to press the battle against the rebels "with all vigor." The cabinet was said to include both civilians and military officers.

1,000 Persons to Join in Fallout Shelter Test

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A five-year Civil Defense study culminates this weekend when 1,000 persons enter the University of Georgia Coliseum to be sealed off in the largest simulated fallout shelter experiment ever conducted.

"The over-all mission is to evaluate a handbook we've been working on for five years, to observe untrained emerging leadership and to evaluate shelter activity programs," said Gordon Hirtle, public information officer for Civil Defense, Department of Defense, Washington.

The volunteers are both Negro and white and range in age from six months to 80 years. They are divided about equally between male and female.

About 669 volunteers out of 850 who began a 38-hour confinement in a June test here managed to stick it out despite 80-degree heat, about 10 feet of space each and a diet primarily of crackers and water.

This weekend's confinement is for 24 hours. The arena of the coliseum has been closed off. Shelterees will be allowed to move around in 12 rooms — and the corridor of the building, on two levels. The approximate space for a shelteree is about 10 square feet.

2 Officers Shot Down at Shore

called the police originally, said he saw Baker beating up Miss Winters and had warned him that he (Helwig) would call the police if he didn't stop.

Baker, Helwig said, told him to "go to hell!" and to "go ahead and call the police."

BY THE TIME the two officers arrived however, Baker had returned to the apartment and locked himself inside, Helwig said.

Lt. Hill said that when Isham and Knott accompanied Miss Winters to the apartment, Baker refused to let them inside, but stood arguing with them through a locked screen door.

Miss Winters told investigators that the three of them, the two officers and herself, were finally able to get inside the apartment. She immdiately went into the bedroom to get her purse.

Officer Isham and Knott waited for the woman in the living room.

Helwig, a 25-year-old employe at North American Aviation in Downey, told police there was some loud argument between the officers and Baker, at first but things finally quieted down and looked like they would be all right.

A FEW MINUTES after Miss Winters went into the bedroom, police learned there was a shot and the two waiting officers heard Miss Winters scream, "I'm hit!"

Helwig, who told police he witnessed the entire shooting, said he saw Baker picking up, what he thinks was a gun through a kitchen window that offers a view into the living room, where Knott and Isham were standing.

Baker, Helwig said, whirled out of the bedroom and started shooting. The officers, backing out the door, countered with at least 11 shots, according to police.

Both officers were fatally wounded as they backed down the narrow outside staircase with their guns blazing.

Helwig told police he ran back into his apartment and called headquarters to tell them the officers had been shot.

When other police arrived, moments after the shooting, Baker was inside the apartment; his first victim, Miss Winters, wounded in the thigh was outside; and another witness, Mary Conover, 20, Helwig's girlfriend, was holding Officer Knott in her arms, trying to help the dying man breathe.

AS A SWARM of police converged on Baker's apartment, Police Capt. Maurice Wishon, said he talked to Baker on the telephone, apparently without Baker knowing he was talking to police.

Wishon said Baker had called the operator for an ambulance for himself and was connected with the police department.

"He said he had been shot. I told him to throw the gun out the window. He said he couldn't because he was lying on it and couldn't move."

"I heard gunshots. And then I heard a louder explosion which I assume was the tear gas going off," Wishon said, "then the connection broke off."

"He was moaning and groaning so I could hardly understand him."

Then, according to Wishon, Officer Dave Southard, standing outside a window, saw Baker get to his feet, gun in hand, and fired, hitting Baker and spinning him around.

POLICE THEN burst into the apartment and arrested the wounded Baker.

Officer Isham was married and the father of a year-old daughter, Pamela. His wife, Lois, is expecting another child. He had joined the force two years ago.

Knott, a bachelor, had only been on the force since last November.

FRONT ROW SEAT TO TRAGEDY

Mary Conover, 20, and Clifford Helwig, 25, in his Belmont Shore apartment, tell how they saw two Long Beach police officers shot to death in a predawn gunbattle Saturday with a neighbor, Norman Baker, who was beating his common-law wife Linda Winters. Miss Conover rushed to the aid of one officer, who died in her arms.

Girl Tells Horror of Killing

immediately in front of Baker's garage apartment, at 182 Quincy Ave., had called the police originally about 3:13 a.m. to report that Baker was beating Miss Winters.

"I had to do something," Helwig said after the shooting, "he was beating Linda viscously and kicking her while she was lying at the bottom of the steps."

"I heard her fall down the wooden steps and looked out my kitchen window and saw what he was doing."

"I called down and told him if he didn't stop beating her, I would call the police," Helwig said, "but he kept it up so I called the police."

* * * *

WHEN OFFICERS Knott and Isham arrived, Helwig said, Baker started giving them all kinds of lip.

"He kept shouting they had no right to come in and to get out and a lot of stuff worse than that."

Miss Conover added "It was hard to believe. Linda just kept screaming to Norman,' I didn't call the cops, honest, honest, it wasn't me.' "

"She was really scared of him," Helwig said.

"She told me once she was afraid to talk to me or my roommate. She said Baker was jealous and would beat her up if he saw her talking to us."

Miss Conover and Helwig said they retreated to the steps at the rear of their apartment after officers Knott and Isham arrived. They said they could see into the living room where the two officers waited for the Winters woman to get her purse from the apartment's bedroom.

It was from this vantage point that Helwig said he saw Baker rush from the bedroom, after hearing a popping sound, and shoot at the officer.

* * * *

"EVERYTHING seemed calm after the first furor," Helwig said, "then it looked like he (Baker) went into the kitchen pulled open a drawer and pulled out a gun."

"The first officer was about four feet away when Baker fired the first shot at them," Helwig related.

The two policemen backed out the door; one officer fell, then the other one." They kind of rolled down the stairs," he said.

"There were a lot of shots when the officers were on the steps."

Officer Knott rolled all the way to the bottom. Officer Isham sprawled over the first four or five steps. Both men were fatally wounded by bullets through their chests.

"I ran back into the house to call the police to tell them that two officers had been shot. Mary went down to help Knott who was lying at the foot of the stairs gasping for breath," Helwig said.

* * * *

HELWIG SAID he returned and went down by officer Knott, picked up and cocked his (Knott's) service revolver, but by that time Baker had gone back into his apartment.

"I think he was wounded," Helwig said.

When other officers arrived Miss Conover was still holding the dying Knott and yelling to Miss Winters, who, wounded, somehow staggered out of the apartment and down the steps, to help officer Isham.

"She was too hysterical," Miss Conover said.

"The police were everywhere," Miss Conover recalls.

"One officer told me to crouch down behind the man I was helping. The police had shot out a street light and the porch light to Baker's apartment and it was dark, but I could hear the police climbing onto roofs and more gunshots.

"I wasn't frightened. Everything happend too fast."

"Then it was all over."

2 Gunmen Rob Store of $1,200

Two robbers — one with a gun and the other with a brown paper bag — held up a Santa Ana market for more than $1,200 Saturday afternoon.

Santa Ana police said the pair walked in the Cal-Fair Market, 511 N. Harbor Blvd., at 3:50 p.m. and stood in line at a checkout stand.

One man pulled a pistol on cashier Jenny Saldinar and told her to put the money from her cash register in his companion's paper bag.

They walked to the next counter and had cashier Leticia Delaluz dump her money in the bag.

Then, police said, they walked from the store and sped off in a late-model auto.

Attorneys Seek 12 to Judge Kirschke

case. It will not be he who asks the questions.

Instead, he will be the accused.

The hope now will be to pick a jury that will be sympathetic to him.

Friday there were 50 prospective jurors in the room. Eventually 12 will be selected.

At some point it will be their decision as to whether he will walk out of the court a free man or go to prison.

Who will be the 12?

A dozen names had been called Friday and the bodies that went with the names were placed into the jury box. Defense attorney Albert C. S. Ramsey probed gently to bring moral and intellectual substance to the bodies. What was each of them like?

Should any of them be allowed on the final jury?

Ramsey, who had long since assumed the practice of turning his back on his client while concentrating, was not now the "silver fox," or the orator who decried the death penalty.

He was a gentle, scholarly man pained by the thought of asking such personal questions, but — and he included the prospective jurors in the mutual need — someone had to ask them. It was tedious, painstaking work and Ramsey was doing more than just "qualifying" a jury. He was "educating" all 50 in the room.

No chance for a small, understanding chuckle to break the monotony was too small. "They said possibly you would run through all of us," one motherly woman said hestitantly.

Ramsey, his notebook in hand, looked up, stepped back and smiled graciously. Kirschke, behind Ramsey, smiled too, a taut, fleeting, uncertain change of lips that was there on the craggy face, then gone, as though erased, to be replaced by a narrow, horizontal straight line.

A jury of peers.

Ramsey was concerned about what the widespread publicity in the case might have done to their ability to be impartial. One by one, he elicited answers.

—"I've heard the name is all."

—"I never read about the case."

—"I am ashamed," said the bird faced woman who had served on other juries, but never on a murder case before, "to say I hadn't heard anything about it until I came into the courtroom."

—"I have read very little about it. I work shifts and read the headlines, not the bottoms of stories."

—"Yes," said the shy, dark woman, "I read the very beginning of the case but I haven't followed it." She takes no newspaper, she said, has a television, but doesn't watch it.

—"I take two newspapers," another said, "but haven't read about it in detail."

—Another said her husband sells papers, but she doesn't read the ones he sells and that the newspaper she does read doesn't carry this kind of news.

—One man said he saw a television interview between a television reporter and Ramsey and Kirschke.

—Yes, said the final woman Ramsey questioned for the day, her husband had mentioned the case to her at the time of the murders, but she heard no more about it until Monday when she was called to jury duty.

Ramsey challenged none of them. He made marks in his notebook,. His decision as to which, of any of them, would remain would come later. His 20 peremptory challenges would allow him to quickly get rid of any of them who didn't suit his case.

Seated at the long counsel table, at the end away from Kirschke and near the jury, Dep. Atty. Gen. Albert W. Harris, also made notes as he listened to Ramsey's questions and their answers.

He, too, had 20 peremptory challenges, and after Ramsey had finished his questions, Harris would start.

This was drama, and those in the limelight savored it.

The medical secretary, the warehouseman and the part-time saleslady had, by a quirk of our legal processes, been plucked from obscurity and placed — for the moment at least — in the spotlight of one of the more celebrated murder trials of the decade.

The 12 who had initially been summoned into the jury box sat there, for the nonce, a dozen kings of the mountains, there until they were deposed. The other 38 sat ouside the rail in spectator seats awaiting their chance.

The day ended before any of them had a chance to get into the box.

Jury Ponders Stabbing Murder Case Third Day

The Orange County just weighing the evidence against Seattle aerospace trainee Robert Blakeman — charged with the stabbing death of a beautiful young secretary — begins its third day of deliberations this morning, apparently no closer to a verdict than they were when they were first closeted with the cast at 10:07 a.m. Friday.

Only once since the jurors began their study of the evidence has there been any indication of jury actions.

That indication came early Saturday when the jurors summoned the bailiff for Superior Court Judge Byron K. McMillan and asked for a clarification of the court's instructions on the weight to be attached to circumstantial evidence.

Whatever the jurors decide, they are limited as to their choice of verdicts. Judge McMillan, in giving instructions to them, told them that he did not regard the case as a first degree murder case and forbade the jurors from returning such a verdict. Their only decisions now are between second degree murder and manslaughter.

Blakeman is charged with accosting Gloria Dawn Collins in her room in a friend's apartment on the night of March 3, 1967, attempting to force his attentions on her and, when rejected, killing her. Her body — with nearly 50 stab wounds in it — was found the next morning.

Blakeman, 25, who had been attending Hughes Aircraft Co. training course in Santa Ana, had been staying with friends in Fullerton during his attendance at the classes. Miss Collins, 27, was on vacation from her job in Vancouver, B.C., and was staying with friends, also in Fullerton.

SOUND OFF!

I recently moved from Ohio to Long Beach, intending to join my Navy son here and make this city my home. I have been in quite a few cities in my life and I have decided that Long Beach is the worst. You can't get a money order, traveler's check or Western Union money order cashed here. I applied for a job and, when I told the man my son was in the Navy, he said he didn't want any part of the Navy.

If it weren't for the Navy, this city wouldn't have much going for it. The city takes the servicemen's money, then treats them like dirt. I didn't know there were people around like the ones I've met in Long Beach. We still intend to make California our home but we are going to try to find a city with a heart. Mrs. P. T., Long Beach.

HOW ASSASSIN KILLED ROCKWELL

Gun Found in Slaying of Nazi

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Police recovered Saturday an automatic, long-barreled revolver which is believed to be the weapon that killed George Lincoln Rockwell, founder and leader of the American Nazi party.

The revolver was found in six to eight inches of water in a branch of the Four Mile Run creek in Bon Air Park, located midway between the shopping center where Rockwell was shot down Friday and where police arrested the man accused of being the sniper.

And at the county jail, John C. Patler, 29-year-old ex-Marine and expelled Nazi official accused of murdering Rockwell, was held under heavy guard pending a court appearance Monday. His bail was set at $50,000.

"I don't know now of anyone who can fill his (Rockwell's) shoes," said Matthias Koehl, No. 2 man in the party's hierarchy as he talked with newsmen at the organization's headquarters, a ramshackle three-story frame house located on a wooded 23-acre tract in this Washington suburb.

* * * *

AUTHORITATIVE sources estimate the party's membership at fewer than 100, and said this includes groups in the Washington, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Boston areas. These sources said also the movement once received funds from an unidentified millionaire, but that its recent financial support came from members who held various jobs.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said in reporting Rockwell's death that the Nazi party "received dollars in broad streams from financiers and businessmen, especially in the South."

* * * *

THE COMMANDER of the Jewish War Veterans, Samuel Samuels, said the killer "had done a great disservice to the nation in the elimination of Rockwell by making a martyr of a despicable enemy of American."

Principal targets of Rockwell's group are Negroes and Jews.

Patler headed these propaganda efforts and edited its magazine "Stormtrooper" until early this year, Koehl said, when he was expelled from the party after a bitter quarrel with Rockwell.

Patler, who had been a member of the party almost since Rockwell founded it in 1958, was arrested at a bus stop about a half-mile from the shopping center where Rockwell was shot.

* * * *

AN AUTOPSY Saturday showed Rockwell died from a single bullet wound in the chest. But no head wound from the shopping center rooftop pierced the windshield of Rockwell's 10-year-old car and earlier reports said he had been wounded in the head and chest. But no head qound was found.

Two shells were found on the roof, but officers declined to say whether they had been fired from a rifle or pistol.

Patler was born John Christ Patsalos in the Bronx, but later had his name changed legally. He served in the Marines from 1958 to 1960.

In an autobiography published in the party's magazine, Patler said his father shot and killed his mother in 1943 and was imprisoned at Sing Sing. "I learned early that the only way you stop terrorism and force is with superior terrorism and superior force," he wrote.

U.S. Rules Louisiana Private School Aid Unconstitutional

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A three-judge federal court Saturday held unconstitutional Louisiana's grant-in-aid act for state payments to pupils in private, nonsectarian schools.

The panel held that the act was designed to maintain segregated schools.

The panel said that the policy of the state has been pushed to the extreme of using public funds to aid private discrimination, endangering the public school system and equal educational opportunities for Negroes in Louisiana.

The judges commented that the recent decision to reduce its aid to less than 50 per cent of the funds required for operating a school fails to "take the curse off the act."

It added, "Any affirmative and purposeful state aid promoting private discrimination violates the equal protection clause. There is no such thing as the state's being just a little discriminatory."

The opinion reviewed the history of segregation in Louisiana schools, saying that for 100 years the legislature has not deviated from its objective of maintaining segregated schools for white children, and 10 years after the U.S. Supreme Court struck down public school segregation, the declared policy of the lawmakers became undeclared policy.

Under the act, each child attending a private, nonsectarian school was ntitled to $2 per day for 180 days.

State Sen. E. W. Gravolet, one of the sponsors of the legislation, said "Of course, we'll appeal."

A group of Negroes filed the original suit attacking the state payment plan June 30, 1964. They argued that state contributions to private school students amounted to financial support for segregation.

China Envoy Says British Harassing

LONDON (AP) — Communist China's top diplomat in London protested Saturday that his staff is under siege by British police and secret agents.

A message from Charge d'Affaires Peng Shin was telephoned to the Foreign Office demandiing that Britain cancel these "extremely grave and frenzied measures" or take the consequences.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the message was being studied but added that a first reading suggested it was rubbish.

Police and plainclothesmen were posted outside the Chinese legation and other official Chinese buildings such as trade offices after this week's burning of British offices in Peking.

Medical Aid Already Is 'Paying Off'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Medicare and medicaid already may be paying off for millions of poverty-stricken Americans, Wilbur Cohen, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said Saturday.

He told a University of Michigan audience the drop in the nation's death rate in the first six months of 1967 appears to reflect this.

Cohen quoted New York City Health Commissioner Edward O'Rourke as saying that although more data is needed, one reason for the decline may well be the use of medical facilities by the elderly and the poor.

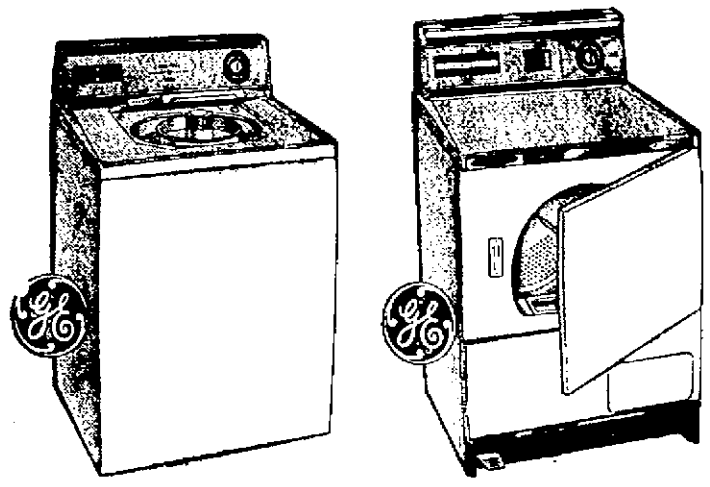

Cohen, one of the chief architects of medicare, is on leave from his post as University of Michigan professor of welfare administration.

He spoke at a social conference on "Breaking the Poverty Cycle."

Powder Blamed for M16 Jams

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The chairman of a House subcommittee studying the controversial M16 rifle reversed himself Saturday and said that the rifle was jamming excessively during its use in combat in Vietnam.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., who said on May 31 that the subcommittee had found nothing to substantiate reports that the rifle had a tendency to jam in combat, said Saturday:

"I believe the record sustains the conclusion that one of the major causes of excessive malfunctioning of the M16 rifle in Vietnam can be directly traced to the type of powder used in the ammunition."

Ichord returned from an 11-day trip to Vietnam on June 11. He has submitted a report on his trip to the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C.

Ichord asserted that the lightweight, automatic weapon was jamming because a new gunpowder was being used. The new powder is "dirtier," he said. "It turns slower. It fouls the chamber. It appears the change was made without adequate testing."

400 Fires Raging in Northwest

United Press International

Idaho's governor asked President Johnson Saturday to declare the state a disaster area as nearly 400 forest fires raged unchecked in British Columbia and the Pacific Northwest.

More than 11,000 men were thrown into the battle against the flames.

At least 72 new fires — 50 of them in British Columbia — broke out late Friday and early Saturday to push the number of blazes still burning close to the 400 mark.

The outbreak had consumed more than 122,000 acres of timber and brush. More than 40,000 acres have been charred in Idaho alone.

Idaho Gov. Don Samuelson said he would have to call a special session of the state legislature if he couldn't get federal help. He set a deadline of 5 p.m. Monday for a reply from the White House to his request that Idaho be declared a disaster area.

* * * *

SAMUELSON also ordered closure of "high risk" state and private forest lands in north Idaho to public use.

"The outlook seems to grow more gloomy every day and the end of the fires is not in sight," Samuelson said.

The U.S. government said Saturday that every available trained firefighter in the West had been placed on the fire lines in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana — a total of 7,900 men.

More than 3,000 firefighters were on the lines in British Columbia.

The situation was perilous. The biggest fires, with the exception of the 20,000-acre Magna Bay fire in British Columbia, continued to rage out of control, and the forecast was for more hot, dry weather in most areas south of the Canadian border.

In Idaho, officials said they expected the 13,280-acre China Creek fire to converge with the 5,500-acre Eagle Creek blaze sometime this afternoon and form a single, massive front. Officials had hoped to dispatch crews to fight between the two fires, but concluded that the attempt would be too dangerous.

* * * *

"A BLOWUP would trap the men and we can't risk that," a spokesman for the Bureau of Land Management said. "So we'll tie the two together and hope our firelines hold."

Officials said the fire situation in the Nez Perce Forest was the worst since 1932, with a total of 14,000 acres consumed in the past week.

QUAGMIRE would be the best word to describe the swank North Lake Tahoe area after flash floods sent a river of mud over highways and streets.
—AP Wirephoto

Lake Tahoe Area Deep in Morass

INCLINE VILLAGE, Nev. (UPI) — Residents of the plush North Lake Tahoe area manned shovels and mops Saturday after flash floods wrecked a home, closed two highways and swept at least one automobile off the road.

The brief but heavy rain, accompanied by lightning and gusty winds, stretched across the eastern Sierra from Reno to Tuckee. Water poured down mountainside gullies to the beach areas.

Mun up to three feet deep oozed across Highways 27 and 28. At Crystal Shores Beach, more than 10 cars were mired in the mud and one slipped off the road. There were no injuries.

A house north of Highway 28 was washed into a creek. Washoe Deputy Sheriff Roger Howard said damage was estimated at perhaps $60,000. He said no one was in the building.

Crews restored one-way traffic around the most serious slides, but warned the roads were "mussy and dangerous" and subject to closure. Forecasters predicted scattered thunderstorms today.

In Reno, the downpour flooded intersections and caused minor flooding. Lightning strikes caused several brief power outages. Thunderstorms in Reno since July have raised the total precipitation to more than four times above normal for the period.

Firm Code of Discipline Explained to L.B. Pupils

By RALPH HINMAN, JR.
Education Editor

A "firm but fair" disciplinary code will be in effect this year at all Long Beach senior and junior high schools.

"It is our policy," Superintendent W. Odie Wright said Friday, "to carry on with the least number of rules necessary for a good educational program in a friendly atmosphere.

"But," he warned, "we must insist that rules approved by those in authority be obeyed."

Primary responsibility for enforcement of rules in classrooms and campuses falls, as always, on teachers and administrators.

A campus, by definition, extends to the center line of streets bounding the school property.

Penalties ranging in severity from conferences to suspension or expulsions are spelled out for misbehavior, in a formal guidance and discipline code adopted last month by the Board of Education. High school seniors particularly were warned that excessive misdemeanors may result in loss of such traditional plums as the senior prom, Senior Day and the graduation rite itself.

Eight categories of misbehavior in both junior and senior high school were set by board actions: These are:

"Off Grounds, Truancy" — in which there is failure to remain on school grounds during class hours.

"Alcohol and Tobacco" — which also invokes state law banning use and possession on school grounds.

"Classroom misconduct and Tardiness."

"Overt Acts" — violently opposing authority, use of profanity, obscenity, or impertinent language to a teacher or staff member.

"Student Disruptions" — willful interruption of routines and schedules, noncompliance with "existing school policy, regulation or administrative decision."

"Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs" — use or possession.

"Habitual Failures" — those pupils who fail in 3 or more subjects in one semester through "indifference or lack of effort" may be enrolled on a trial basis in the next semester.

"Refusal to Do Assigned Work" — "Any pupil enrolled in a Long Beach Unified School District high school who has attained the age of 16 and refuses repeatedly to do classwork assigned him, thereby receiving failing grades in several subjects, shall be liable to expulsion by the Board of Education . . ."

The complete discipline code is included within a handbook provided each high school pupil.

Attacker Drops His ID Cards

PASADENA (AP) — Police said Saturday a housewife who was raped and beaten managed to take a wallet from the trouser pocket of her assailant, leading to his arrest.

Michael Patrick Glenn, 21, was arrested at his Monrovia home one hour after the attack on the basis of identification found in the wallet, officials reported.

He was booked on charges of burglary, assault with a deadly weapon and rape.

Officers said the 47-year-old woman had left the doors to her home open while she was in the backyard gardening. When she entered the kitchen she was confronted by the assilant, who lunged at her with a knife, beat her and raped her, police quoted her.

The woman was treated for fractures of both hands and severe scalp cuts.

Teen-agers Save Baby From Fire

NEW YORK (AP) — A young mother, trapped in her flaming fourth-floor Bronx apartment, dropped her 13-month-old daughter into the arms of passing teen-agers who handed the infant to neighbors and disappeared.

Lorna Simmons, 27, had dashed to a window with her child, Tau, and scramed at a group of passing youths. The latter stood in a circle and held out their hands to form a human net.

After dropping the child safely, Mrs. Simmons climbed onto the building ledge, where she was rescued by two firemen.

Later, a fire official said, "We'd like to find those youngsters and thank them."

Trainload of Bombs Is Derailed in Nevada

PORTOLA, Nev. (AP) — Fifty-four cars of a 108-unit freight train — 11 of them carrying bombs — derailed on the outskirts of Gerlach in northwestern Nevada at 5 a.m. Saturday, a spokesman for Western Pacific Railroad said.

The five crewmen escaped injury.

None of the bombs exploded.

"For us, it's a huge one," the railroad spokesman said of the accident, believed to have been caused by something falling from one of the cars to the tracks.

* * * *

THE CARS that were knocked off the tracks were in the middle of the train.

The bombs, loaded aboard the train "back east somewhere," are "braced in all directions," the spokesman said.

"They can't hardly move in those cars."

The bombs were bound for Clyde, Calif. an export station, he said.

A bomb squad was to be sent to Gerlach from the Herlong Army Depot to check out the explosives.

"All seemed to be intact," the railroad man said.

* * * *

THE TRAIN was heading west about 55 miles an hour from Winnemucca to Portola when the accident occurred on the outskirts of Gerlach.

Ten to 12 car lengths of track were ripped out in the accident. The single track will be closed "for a couple of days until we get it fixed," he said.

Western Pacific workers were being sent to the wreckage site from Oroville, Elko and Portola to help clear the wreckage and restore the track.

Clemency Procedure Not Effected by End of Stay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan's clemency secretary said Saturday that the ending of a mass stay of executions on San Quentin Prison's Death Row will have little immediate effect on the governor's clemency procedure.

Edwin Meese III said he is awaiting a copy of U.S. Dist. Judge Robert Pek-Thursday. The judge's order leaves open appeal procedures for each of the 61 inmates scheduled to die in the gas chamber.

"We're continuing our clemency review and hearing procedure so the governor can be prepared to make a determination on each case as it arises," Meese said.

Air-Drop Exhibit by 944th

Members of the 944th Tactical Airlift Group — 22 of them from the Long Beach area — made a dramatic presentation of latest air-drop techniques last week before a high-ranking Air Force officer.

The 944th, completing their 15-day annual active duty tour at March Air Force Base, dumped nine loads from three C-119 cargo craft in a demonstration for Maj. Gen. Richard S. Abbey, assistant chief of staff for reserve affairs. All landed on target.

During fiscal 1967, the unit established records by hauling more ton miles and passenger miles than any other reserve tactical airlift group.

While on active status, the 944th, which was formerly stationed at Long Beach, supplied cargo aircraft and crews for duty with the Continental Air Command, hauling freight and passengers throughout the United States.

Registry on Monday at LBCC

Registration for fall semester day and evening classes at Long Beach City College begins Monday, by appointment only, and continues through Sept. 6 for those with advance appointments.

At the Liberal Arts Campus, 4901 E. Carson St., new day students may make appointments starting Monday to register on Sept. 7 for limited day programs of up to nine class hours per week.

At the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Thursday is the deadline for admission of full-time day students to vacational classes. Part-time day students may register without appointment on Sept. 7.

New evening students may obtain registration appointments on both campuses from 6-9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Student Personnel Office. Students enrolling in courses numbered 1-99 at any of the Extension Campuses should make arrangements to register on the Liberal Arts Campus. For all other extension courses, enrollment will be taken directly in the classroom with the start of the fall term on Sept. 11.

Cecelia O'Neil Heads Retired Teacher Unit

CECELIA O'NEIL

Cecelia O'Neil has been named as president of the National Retired Teachers Association, a 200,000 member group.

Miss O'Neil succeeds Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, 82-year-old founder and former president of the association. Miss O'Neil, who retired from teaching in 1952 after 44 years of professional service, was an associate of Dr. Andrus in the early activities of the organization and recalls vividly "those days when a $50 monthly pension with no Social Security benefits was the situation for a teacher retiring after 50 years."

Miss O'Neil helped present testimony before the Legislature and Congress in efforts to obtain a retirement of dignity and purpose for teachers. The association concurrently developed personal services to stretch the retirement dollars of retired teachers and achieved—the first group health insurance for older persons; a drugs-by-mail service at substantially reduced prices, and a travel service geared to the requirements of retired teachers.

Miss O'Neil has been president of the California Teachers Association, Bay Section, 1945-46 and president of the California Retired Teachers Association from 1957 to 1959. She was named teacher of the state of California in 1958 by the International Senior League.

Miss O'Neil maintains offices both in the National Retired Teachers Association's western headquarters at 215 Long Beach Blvd., and at eastern headquarters, 1346 Connecticut Ave., N.W., in Washington.

Capt. V. R. Fierce Takes Over Los Alamitos Reserve Center

Capt. V. R. Fierce, USN, last week assumed command of the Long Beach Naval Reserve Training Center in Los Alamitos.

Fierce, a native of Torrance, has 25 years of Naval service as he comes to his new command after duty with the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations in Washington.

He entered service as an avaition cadet. He received his commission in 1943 and served during World War II as a dive bomber pilot.

From 1946 to 1956, Fierce served in several fighter and attack squadrons aboard various ships. During the Korean conflict, he served aboard the USS Bataan.

CAPT. V. R. FIERCE
Assumes Command

After a tour with the Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington, Fierce took command of a fighter squadron aboard the USS Coral Sea. From there he was assigned as group training officer for Commander, Fleet Air, Alameda. He went on to serve as navigator aboard the USS Hancock off Vietnam prior to his latest Washington assignment.

Fierce holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with four clusters and various campaign medals.

His wife, Ina, is a native of Long Beach.

E. A. Creider Retires From U.S. Navy

Capt. Ed A. Creider, USNR, has retired from the Navy after 25 years of active and reserve service.

Capt. Creider enlisted in the Navy as a seaman in 1942. He was commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in 1944. He participated in the invasion of Okinawa and as a result was awarded the Silver Star.

The naval reservist has been affiliated with the Long Beach Naval Reserve Training Center since 1951 and recently has been recruiting officer.

A native of Riverside, Capt. Creider attended Poly High School and Oregon State College. He and his wife, Jean, have four daughters.

Beatles Find a Guru, Go 'Yeh-Yeh' for Yogi

BANGOR, Wales (UPI) — The Beatles squatted at the feet of a self-styled prophet of love Saturday and listened to one of his last lectures before he retires to a Himalayan "life of silence."

Indian mystic Maharishi Mahesh enthralled the young singers at a London lecture Thursday, and they decided to follow him to a five-day retreat at a Bangor college to hear more of his philosophy of love. A new record of the Beatles is called "All You Need is Love."

Also at the retreat were rock and roll idol Mick Jagger and scores of less-celebrated meditators.

The yogi, a bearded old man in flowing robes, said he is making a "farewell" tour of Britain before retiring to a "life of silence" in Kashmir.

THE BEATLES, their wives and other relatives are paying $4.20 each for room, board and lectures during the five-day retreat.

The Yogi said he believed the experience will cause the Beatles, and others at the retreat, to emerge with "a blowing trumpet of transcendental meditation."

Something else that promised to be transcendental was a giant weekend love-in at Woburn Abbey, the stately home of the publicity-seeking Duke of Bedford.

Sponsors hired 200 guards, a dozen karate experts and a team of dogs and handlers to make sure everything is as peaceful as a live-in should be.

As many as 100,000 hippies and psuedo hippies were expected at the three-day happening.

The French-born Duchess of Bedford admitted to being a little skeptical about hhe event. She thought the organizers of the love-in were planning a flower show when they asked to stage a "Festival of Flower Children" in the Woburn Abbey grounds.

POLAND'S GOMULKA
Rivals In Background

Few Cheers Now for Gomulka

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka was cheered and toasted in the streets of Warsaw 11 years ago this autumn when he took command of Poland's ruling Communist Party on a tide of demands for sweeping change.

Today critics inside and outside the party regard Gomulka as a bulwark of inflexibility and resistance to change.

The dour, hollow-cheeked 62-year-old leader appears secure for the time being in his post as party first secretary, but there is always talk of the inevitable power struggle to succeed him.

The main candidates are Zenon Kliszko, Gomulka's right-hand man and ideological czar, and Edward Gierek, the shrewd regional party boss from industrial Upper Silesia, the favorite of Poland's growing class of technocrats.

* * * *

MIECZYSLAW MOCZAR, interior minister and secret police chief, is considered more ambitious than either Kliszko or Gierek and cannot be counted out.

Gomulka's place in Polish history was secured by his performance in October 1956, at a showdown with Russia's Nikita S. Khrushchev. Saving Poland from a bloodbath like Hungary suffered, Gomulka persuaded Khrushchev to halt Russian troops near Warsaw and to end the Soviet Union's internal domination and economic milking of Poland.

To the eventual dismay of non-Communist Poles, it was a partial victory, for in return Gomulka saved communism in Poland and became Moscow's staunchest foreign policy supporter.

Many a Pole now respects Gomulka more for his courage and skill in 1956 than for present policies. Communists praise him as personally honest and devoted to his job. In the same breath they voice disenchantment with hardline foreign policy and what they term lack of imagination in such things as running the economy and curbing Polish intellectuals.

* * * *

"AMONG THE Communist leaders, Gomulka has become holier than the Pope. Even the Russians no longer slavishly quote Marx about international working-class unity," a party member said recently, he was referring to Gomulka's obsession with unity of world Communist parties. It shows up in reluctance to exploit the Moscow-Peking split for Poland's own national interests as Romania has done, and in shrill appeals for North Vietnam, a country nearly 5,000 miles from Warsaw.

An economist said: "We have many talented planners with formulas for increasing production through decentralization and more incentives, but they wait forever for approval from the conservative old men on top."

Poland launched economic reforms as early as 1957, but experts feel that Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Hungary have caught up or pulled ahead in many cases.

* * * *

MANY PERSONS view as blunders Gomulka's struggle against the Roman Catholic Church in 1966 and a reaction to the Middle East conflict beyond what loyalty to the Soviet Union required.

It's 59th Birthday for Johnson; He's Had Happier Ones

By GRANT DILLMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson is 59 years old today. He has had happier birthdays.

His 60th year could build up to a walloping birthday celebration on Aug. 27, 1968 — if the Vietnam war should end, city riots should vanish, taxes could go down and Great Society programs could go up.

But none of that, as of now, seems likely. If anything, the outlook is for things to get worse before they can better.

A year ago, on his 58th birthday, Johnson sat back at his LBJ ranch and told reporters: "sure, we have problems. But we have none that we don't feel confident that we can find the answer to. The problems that we have . . . are the problems that we have been fighting so hard to attain — namely, full employment, a high standard of living, and better housing.

"We are now at a point that I have envisioned and sought all of my adult life — or even as a boy . . ."

* * * *

IT IS DOUBTFUL that Johnson a year ago envisioned he would be boosting America's troop commitment in South Vietnam — then 303,000 — to a new total of 525,000 men — by next June 30; or that he would be asking Congress to tack an extra 10 per cent on individual and corporate tax bills; or that Detroit would be hit by riots surpassing even the 1965 Watts uprising in Los Angeles.

It has been a rough year for Johnson, even considering that presidential years seldom are easy.

At the end of 1966, Johnson plummeted to a low point in national esteem as measured by such things as public opinion polls and off year congressional balloting. There also was a quasi-revolt by Democratic governors upset by the Democratic election reverses.

By June of this year, Johnson's popularity had gone up to 58 per cent in the Louis Harris poll, which had him at a rockbottom 42 per cent in March.

* * * *

THE GALLUP POLL which measured Johnson's popularity at 56 per cent in August 1966 and 45 per cent last March, gave him a 52 per cent rating at the Glassboro summit talks and the birth of grandson Patrick Lyndon Nugent. By the end of July, however, Johnson again began slipping in the polls.

Johnson's birthday three years ago was a time of triumph — an occasion for fireworks and mob clamor on the boardwalk at Atlantic City, just after Johnson was acclaimed by the Democratic National Convention as the party's 1964 presidential nominee. He went on to win a smashing victory over Republican Barry Goldwater that November.

Johnson't birthday in 1965 was a time of happy quietude in Texas, and in 1966 it was an occasion for gentle reflection.

This year, if Vietnam and urban violence can be taken as indicators, the President is finding it harder to discover things to cheer about.

His health, according to recent reports, is good. But the Vietnam and riot issues are expected to loom large if Johnson runs for reelection next year.

* * * *

CONGRESS, which generally backed Johnson in 1964 and 1965, is rumbling with discontent over the chief executive's 10 per cent surtax proposal and various programs to keep the Great Society alive, although on a reduced scale.

Money is the problem. Federal spending in fiscal 1968 now is expected to hit $143.5 billion — with more than half going for the Vietnam war and other military costs. This could mean a $28 billion deficit, unless taxes are increased.

As recently as June 22, Goldwater — who found out the hard way in 1964 — described Johnson as a man who "comes through when the chips are down" and said no Republican has "a 50-50 chance" of beating him next year.

But more recently, on Aug. 5, Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen downgraded Johnson's chances by saying:

"I have always gone on the theory that no political party is ever defeated by another — it defeats itself. And that is what I think is happening. Lyndon has exceptional political skill — but there is always a first time."

Johnson's foreign aid bill is in trouble. But that is normal. His request for higher social security benefits has been scaled down by the House Ways and Means Committee. His aid to education program, and his pet Teachers' Corps, were subjected to more state control. The same thing happened to his anti-crime bill.

But Johnson also is leading the nation at a time of unparalled prosperity. Even if taxes do go up, there are more people with jobs who can pay them. And this may be a bigger election factor next year than Vietnam and riots.

75,000 Use Airlift From Cuba

By MATTHEW T. KENNY

MIAMI (UPI) — More than 75,000 Cuban exiles have flown into Miami on the Cuban refugee airlift during the past 21 months greatest exodus in modern and there is no end in sight to what is becoming the times.

The United States is paying the cost of the "air bridge" to Miami and at last count, according to the Cuban refugee center, there were nearly 1.3 million Cubans waiting to get seats on the "freedom flights." Cuba has a 7 million population.

The airlift was launched Dec. 1, 1965, after the Cuban and U.S. governments worked out a specific agreement for the operation of the twice daily flights, five days a week.

Other thousands of Cubans who have gone from their Communist-controlled island to Spain or Mexico make their way into the United States by commercial flights from those countries.

* * * *

STILL OTHERS, desperate to leave, make their way across the Straits of Florida in makeshift boats, rafts and floats to the Florida coast—often with the help of the U.S. Coast Guard.

The airlift is geared to bring in about 3,800 exiles a month. According to the refugee center, a dependency of the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department, about 70 per cent of the airlift exiles are resettled out of Miami across the nation.

Miami is the "Mecca" of all Cuban exiles and there are an estimated 125,000 refugees in this area. The total may be much larger.

Most of the resettled exiles go to the New York-Newark, N.J. area, Chicago, Los Angeles, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

* * * *

THE COST of the airlift is about $500,000 a year.

Galbraith Says Pacify by Degrees

ASCUTNEY, Vt. (AP) — Gradual deescalation of the Vietnam war was proposed Saturday by one of the leading critics of U.S. policy there, Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith.

Instead of demanding an abrupt reversal of the U.S. war effort, Galbraith said, critics of administration policy should work for lesser steps.

Galbraith, a former U.S. ambassador to India and now national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, called for an end to bombing and said U.S. military efforts should be restricted to defensive actions in areas U.S. troops now hold.

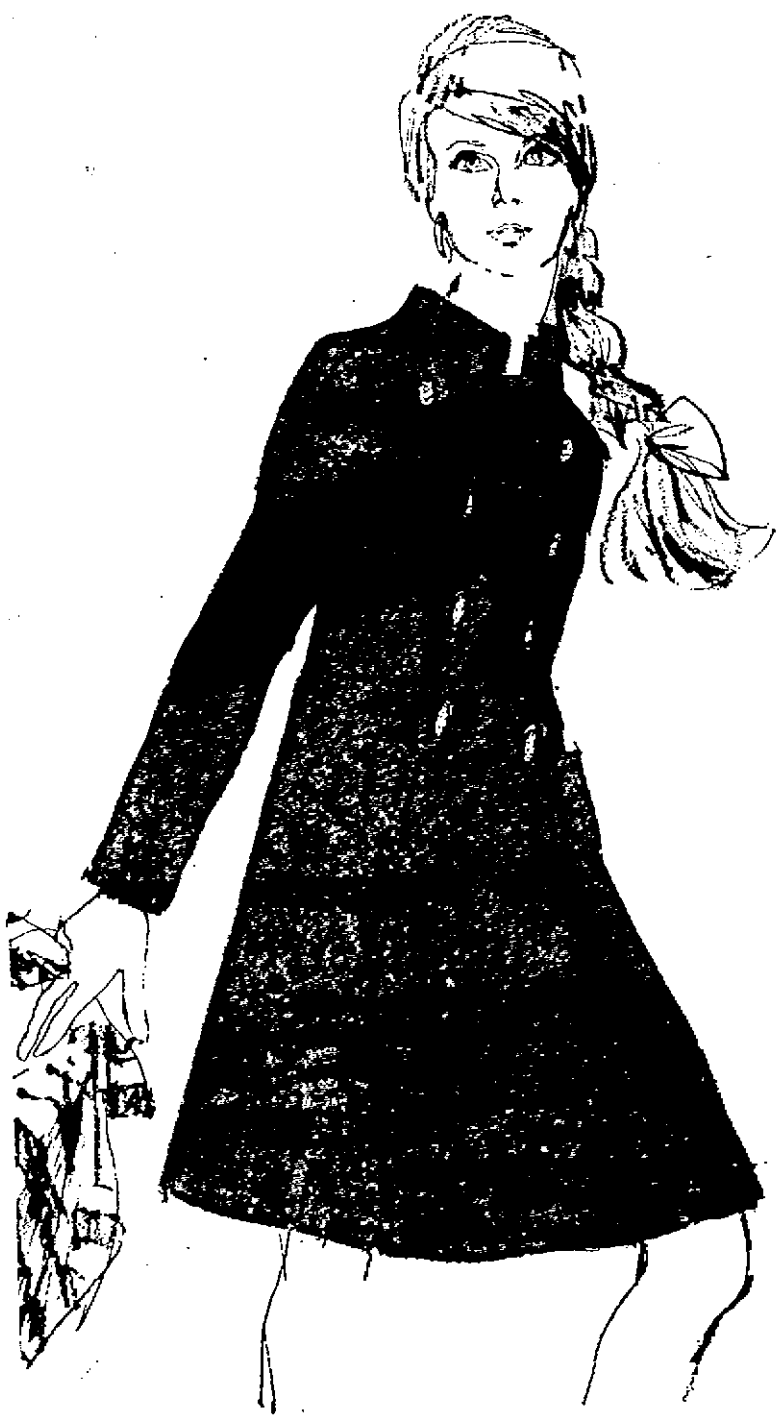

Increased persuasion on the futility of the war should be directed at candidates in next year's elections, he said.

His remarks were made in a speech to the Committee for Alternatives in Vietnam at Ascutney, Vt., a peace group.

Big Vote Drive in South Viet

SAIGON (AP) — The most massive propaganda campaign ever launched in South Vietnam has one aim — to get as many people as possible to vote in next Sunday's presidential and senate elections.

From Quang Tri in the north to Ca Mau in the south, more than half a billion posters, leaflets, comic books and magazines are being distributed.

Campaign buttons, balloons and other gimmicks are banned under the election laws, and the 11 presidential candidates and 480 senate candidates are limited to standard-sized posters and leaflets, all printed by the government.

In addition, the government has printed about 460 million ballots — more than enough to give every voter the 59 ballots he will be handed when he enters the polling booth.

* * * *

ELEVEN OF THESE ballots are for the presidential tickets and 48 for senatorial teams of 10 men each. The voter will deposit the ballots of those he wants to win and discard the rest.

Other printed matter urges the public to vote and teaches how to register and cast ballots. The U.S. mission is aiding this get-out-the-vote program, remaining clear of any partisan material. The Americans even declined to help print the 460 million ballots, since candidates' names appear on them.

The government has prepared radio programs, dramas to be performed at street corners and television programs. The joint U.S. public affairs office has produced two movies about the elections.

Even this major education program, it appears, will not make much of a stir in the hamlets and villages where 50 to 60 per cent of the people live.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the nonpartisan program, the front-running candidates, including Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and his running mate, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, have set up nationwide campaign organizations that reach down to the district level. Districts are divisions of the 44 provinces.

Most of the other candidates have at least one representative in many of the provinces.

The propaganda effort and the work of the candidates and their representatives is expected to draw about 80 per cent of the registered voters.

The latest figures show that South Vietnam, with a population of 17 million, has about 8.5 million persons old enough to vote. Around 76 per cent of the eligible voters considered to be under government control have been registered.

That means 4.7 million may vote in these presidential and senate elections and in October polling for a house of representatives.

* * * *

WHILE THE presidential candidates have been speaking around the country, their representatives also have been making speeches — and probably making political deals.

All candidates' campaigning must operate through official campaign committees set up in each of the provinces, with a central campaign committee in Saigon. The committees are made up of representatives of all the candidates. They set up speeches and rallies, post the posters and hand out the leaflets.

Although campaigning outside the committee is illegal, many of the candidates defy the border line. Thieu and Ky, for example, have declined except on one occasion to join the tour of the provinces by the 10 civilian candidates. But they have continues frequent "nonpolitical" trips.

In addition to their speeches on the spot, the presidential candidates all have recorded radio and television talks. These are widely available in cities and district towns, but most villages and hamlets lack television and have few radios.

Mining Exchange Dies After 105 Years in S.F.

By WILEY MALONEY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Mining Exchange, once the west's most flamboyant financial creature, has died at the age of 105 years of lingering legal and money ailments.

Death of the nation's second oldest organized securities market occurred in its shabby second-floor offices on Montgomery Street — "The Wall Street of the west." When death came this month, it was the smallest securities market in the country.

The exchange started in the gutter in 1826, gorged on manipulations in gold and silver mining stocks, occupied two pretentious buildings of its own, but died under a tarnished name. It had sold its own to the now Pacific Coast Stock Exchange.

The exchange chose to end its own life, but the mortal wound was inflicted by a Securities & Exchange Commission order that it close.

"For five and a half years," said president George J. Flach, "the mining exchange has been successfully resisting governmental revocation of our registration. We have remained open while we fought for our rights."

But, Flach added, "The volume of business transactions on the exchange has diminished to the point where further operation is not feasible."

* * * *

FLACH, head of the exchange since 1939 and, finally, its only broker-member, padlocked the doors on Aug. 15 at the close of business. Only 9,570 shares in five listings had been traded. The exchange listed 31 stocks.

The exchange was founded after the "big bonanza" discovery of Nevada's Comstock lode. Forty founding fathers put up $50 each to form a central market Sept. 11, 1862 for the high-flying gold and silver shares.

It was only a year after establishment of the Transcontinental Telegraph and two years after demise of the short-lived Pony Express. The nation was still fighting the Civil War and the New York Stock Exchange was the only other organized securities market. Virginia City, Nev., was planning an opera house that eventually attracted the stars of the world to the Nevada hills.

The city's conservative business community, with few exceptions, preferred to ignore the get-rich-quick speculators who founded the exchange. They were nicknamed the "Forty Thieves."

* * * *

THE FIRST quarters were a rented room in the Montgomery block. These were established only because brokers were too busy with orders from the gold and silver trade of the day and found it tiresome to leave their offices to do business. Speculation was a disease. Orders "came literally from the kitchen to the pulpit," according to one historian.

Another historian of the exchange said the reputation of the "Forty Thieves" was so low that if a downtown merchant was known to be buying or selling these new mining securities his commercial credit was instantly lowered." The manipulators were called "the cormorants and vultures of society."

Yet the exchange prospered, although conservative opinion held it "new fangled and shady." The mining stocks behaved like yo-yos.

Sales in 1864 totaled $45.6 million, but next year dipped to $23.6 million. In 1870, the total was $51.2 million and, in 1872, this figure leaped to nearly $128 million. The 40 original memberships multiplied to 80 with the price tag of $43,000 per seat as compared with the original $50.

* * * *

But the gold and silver veins slowly were "caught up." Brokers began having a hard time making ends meet. New competition appeared. The exchange, which had built an imposing building on Bush Street, sold it to th eSan Francisco sold it to the San Francisco

THE EXCHANGE members had quarreled. Old members objected to listing such "high-faluting" things as industrial and utility stocks on an exchange noted world wide for mining securities. So as one market grew, the mining exchange went down - - nearer and nearer to obscurity.

In 1933, the exchange was haunted by several old ladies, dressed in black silks, trailing black coats and veils. They were the "queens" of yesteryear of the old Comstock times. They traded in such long-forgotten issues as "Maggie," "Yellow Jacket," "Best & Belcher" and were known as the "Mudhens" whose names are now lost in the past.

The exchange had a second life during the 1950s. It was the uranium boom. Trading was more hectic than at any time in this century. But volume sales shot up to only about $8 million annually. With the end of this boom trading in mining stocks became sporadic at best. Sometimes the exchange barely was able to meet its operating costs of about $2,000 monthly. And times grew worse.

Nearing its end, the exchange had only two active brokers. One was Flach, the other was Raymond A. Broy, a treasurer of the company since 1933. Broy wanted to retire because of age and illness. Flach decided to call it quits.

Family Food Bill Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — New inflationary pressure is building inside the economy and it is focused where it attracts the most attention — on the family food bill.

Administration spokesmen already are seeking an indirect profit from the latest trend. But opposition politicians will shake the food-price tree in efforts to bring down more votes if the trend continues.

Government experts said Saturday the accelerated rise in the cost of living during July was only the newest sign of the buildup which could explode into almost unprecedented price increases unless it's checked.

* * * *

BY THIS THEY mean that Congress should adopt the 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes proposed earlier this month by President Johnson to help reduce a potential $29-billion budget deficit and help stem inflation.

The administration plans to use the recent round of price increases and those anticipated in the future as further proof of its contention that higher taxes are needed to ease the pressure.

Andrew F. Brimmer, a member of the Federal Reserve Board which has maintained an easy credit policy this year, took note in a Seattle speech last Wednesday of price increases which are becoming more and more widespread.

Some steel companies recently announced increases on some products and the appliance industry indicated this week it may raise prices.

The automobile industry is reportedly ready to raise prices for 1968 models, while the current copper strike could set off price rises.

"While these increases," Brimmer said of the over-all picture, "do not by any means add up to a new outbreak of inflation, the current stirrings on the price front are unmistakable harbingers of the pressures that can develop as aggregate demand expands more vigorously."

The Tongues Movement Real or Fake?

Statistics indicate there are more than 3,000 languages and dialects spoken in the world today. The Bible gives the source of these languages. Following the flood, the surviving generation wanted to build a tower "...whose top may reach unto heaven." God saw the wickedness of their desire and confounded their language so no tribe understood the other (Genesis 11:1-9).

Languages, for a different purpose, are mentioned in Acts 2, 10, and 19. The experience described has been real to many Christians for years. But more recently a renewed general interest in "speaking in tongues" has developed.

The first record of "speaking in tongues," after the time of Christ, is in Acts 2. This signaled the initial infilling of the Holy Ghost as promised to believers. However, there have been similar outpourings recorded in almost every century since.

For many, the baptism with the Holy Ghost is misunderstood, and often confused with salvation. But is the experience for Christians today and does it follow salvation? Do people speak in languages never learned?

Write for scriptural answers to these and other questions on the experience.

Caracas Takes Aim at Fidel

WASHINGTON (AP) — With U.S. support, Venezuela is circulating among Western Hemisphere diplomats a string of proposals aimed at tightening the curbs against Cuba's exports of subversion to Latin America.

Caracas' 11-point package, being shaped up for a hemisphere foreign ministers meeting here Sept. 22, includes:

Condemnations of Fidel Castro'sCommunist regime for "intervention and aggresson" against the Latin American republics.

Notice to Castro's outside sponsors — mainly Moscow — that prospects for "peaceful coexistence" with Latin American states will suffer as long as Havana carries on its hemisphere insurrection campaign.

An appeal to Western countries to stop trading measures by the Organization of American States against the flow of men, money, arms and propaganda from Cuba into their countries.

Venezuela's drive for more vigorous anti-Castro measures follows persistent Cuban fustering of insurrectionist activities in that country.

Artists Can Be Sent to Jail in Greece

By BOB THOMAS

ATHENS (AP) — This ancient city was saluted by John Milton as "Athens, the eye of Greece, mother of arts and eloquence."

In the Athens of 1967, art and eloquence can be suspected of being dangerous to the state. Artists can be sentenced to jail or deprived of citizenship and property because of what they say and write.

That is the situation since the April 21 takeover of the Greek government by army elements. At first edicts of the ruling junta seemed laughable, puritanical. It was announced that tourists with beatnik beards and miniskirts would be barred. That ruling has been ignored, since it helped discourage tourism, and now hippie types by the score can be seen clambering over the Acropolis.

Intellectuals of other countries thought it was amusing when Aristophanes, "The Birds" and "The Frogs" were removed from the repertoire of this summer's Athens Festival, apparently because the plays were too obscene.

But the Greek climate toward the arts, traditionally one of freedom, began to take a more serious turn. The works of 70 Greek authors, most of them leftists, were banned, along with a Russian encyclopedia for children.

ACTRESS Melina Mercouri is surrounded by newsmen as she shows up at the United Nations to protest military takeover of her native Greece. The junta has stripped her of citizenship.
—AP Wirephoto

THE ROOFTOP restaurants of Athens' famed Plaka district no longer ring with the robust strains of "Zorba the Greek." All the music of its composer, left-leaning Mikis Theodorakis, has been banned from Greece. Now in hiding, Theodorakis has been sentenced in absentia to 5½ months for "insulting" the Greek royal family in a speech last February. He went into hiding but Saturday it was reported he was arrested.

Records of Theodorakis' music are reported selling for $10 on the black market. But most Athenians are careful not to commit the error of Athanasia Papagopolou, 23, who was arrested for playing the Theodorakis songs loudly in her apartment.

Last month the junta stripped actress Melina Mercouri of her citizenship and property, apparently because she had attacked the regime as fascist and warned that Greek visitors could be harshly treated. Seven others, including two writers and a former radio announcer, also were deprived of citizenship.

The military rulers warned the nation's teachers: "If you don't believe in the nation's ideals and values, you have no place in the education system."

A loyalty oath was ordered for all government employes, including teachers, and the junta proclaimed the power to dismiss or suspend any professor or lecturer who was not inspired "by the appropriate spirit of the existing social regime and national ideals."

LBJ Ready for U.N. Viet Action—Mansfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., voiced his confident assumption Saturday that President Johnson will push for United Nations action on Vietnam after the Sept. 3 elections in the South.

"I think it is safe to say that the administration is very much interested in seeing the U.S. resolution — or a resolution by some other country — taken up and acted upon by the Security Council," Mansfield said in an interview.

As the Senate democratic leader, Mansfield participated in a White House conference earlier in the week at which Johnson was reported to have indicated his desire to bring the matter before the U.N. after South Vietnam votes on a civilian government.

While he would not comment other than to say the President had discussed the Vietnam situation, Mansfield said: "As soon as possible after the election, I would hope that the issue will be put before the Security Council."

Douglas Trio Faces Drug Charges

Police narcotics officers Saturday said three Douglas Aircraft Co. employes were arrested after they sold marijuana cigarettes and benzedrine tablets to undercover investigators in the company shipping office.

The trio is accused of hiding, selling and smoking marijuana while on duty at the plant, police say. They were nabbed after a week-long investigation.

Officers identified the suspects as:

John Lynn Kelly, 25, of 2273 Cota Ave., booked on suspicion of furnishing marijuana, possession of marijuana and sale of dangerous drug.

Cary Joe Itson, 19, of 3085 Elm Ave., booked on suspicion of furnishing marijuana and sale of dangerous drugs.

Lloyd Samuel Sellers, 24, of 6132 Avnacapa St., Huntington Beach, booked on suspicion of sale of marijuana.

Officer Richard E. Lippard, who posed as a Douglas employe, contacted the three suspects and told them he was interested in buying both marijuana and "bennies."

Lippard said Kelly gave him a marijuana cigarette Monday, then sold him 10 benzedrine tablets from a shipping office locker two days later.

Kelly was arrested when he met Lippard at the aircraft company shipping dock Friday.

The officer said Kelly told him, "I only have three joints with me, and I can't sell them, but we can fire them up."

Narcotics officers took the suspect in custody after he removed the cigarettes from his locker, took Lippard to a storage area and lit up.

Police said they found two rolls of benzedrine in Kelly's locker.

They said Itson sold Lippard two rolls of benzedrine from his lunch bucket Tuesday and gave him a small bag of marijuana which was hidden behind a shipping office clock.

Officers arrested Sellers after they said he sold Lippard a sandwich bag containing marijuana in the aircraft company parking lot.

San Quentin's New Warden 'No Bully'—But He's Tough

By JACK SCHREIBMAN

SAN QUENTIN (AP) — "I'm no swaggering bully," says the new warden of San Quentin Prison. "And I disagree with people who classify me as tough.' "

Yet tough is the impression you get, sitting across from square-jawed, steel-eyed Louis Sander Nelson — "Big Red" to the 3,400 thieves, rapists, killers and other felons who populate the ugly yellow fortress 20 miles from San Francisco.

"I'm decision-oriented," said the veteran of 27 years of prison work. "So I get the reputation of being fair — but hard."

Nelson, 57, was appointed to head the prison last May after a seemingly endless epidemic of prison escapes, stabbings, murders, and racial turmoil.

"Some people believe I'm a trouble-shooter for the Corrections Department — the guy that puts out the fires."

"But "Q" will have no fires if he can help it. "Serenity in the prison" is his goal. To that end, Nelson promptly announced to inmates that anyone caught with a weapon — a knife, a pipe, a filed-down spoon — would get a year in isolation to think about it.

* * * *

NELSON, CONCEDING his views on running a prison are "unfashionable," said capital punishment should remain on the California law books. Nearly all his predecessors at San Quentin opposed capital punishment.

"I believe if capital punishment deters one person from committing murder, it ought to be kept on the statues," he said.

Nelson estimated he has been present at 75 or 80 executions at San Quentin's gas chamber — he can't remember the exact count — during his years at the grim preserve hard by the beautiful San Francisco Bay.

Before his appointment as warden from his job at Vacaville Medical Facility, Nelson had spent several years at San Quentin as captain and later associate warden.

"Some people ask me whether it's hard for me to live with my conscience after attending an execution. "Well, I can live with my conscience the same way as the judge who sentenced the man to death, or the juror who voted for it, or the legislator who voted for capital punishment."

Nelson draws his "hard but fair" philosophy from his boyhood on a South Dakota farm, as one of seven children of parents of Swedish background.

"My father was a deeply religious man. I respected him, although he was not close to us. He was my father — sire of the herd — not a buddy to his children."

TOWER AGAINST TURMOIL. Behind the yellowish walls of San Quentin Prison on San Francisco Bay, the 3,400 inmates are in the hands of Louis Sander Nelson, "Big Red," the new warden appointed last month. —AP Wirephoto

HIS STERN FATHER taught his brood, "there is no escaping punishment" — a lesson Nelson lives, with some of his own added.

Nelson cuts an imposing figure of a muscular 195-pound man.

He's 6 feet tall and has big bones — a physique that makes him appear to fill the room. His blue eyes have a flinty glint to them — used to seeing orders carried out. His thinning crown of blond hair wasn't always that way.

He got the tag "Big Red" from a San Quentin guard who served with Nelson in the Marines in the early 1930s, when the new warden had lots of reddish hair.

"I believe the men inside these walls should be treated with humanity, and have the privileges of forming human relationships — insofar as it is possible," he said.

But he adds: "The prison is not a place of comfort. There must be something uncomfortable about prisons if they are going to have any deterrent effect at all.

"We have to remember that we're running a prison here for the protection of society."

* * * *

IN SUMMARY, Nelson sees himself as "a public servant charged with the responsibility of taking men, segregating them and attempting to make some imprint on their lives so that their attitudes might be changed."

How do the tough inmates repay Nelson's practices?

"The day I took over here, a man came to me in the yard and said, 'Boy, are we glad you're back.' They know I'm fair and they respect me," Nelson said.

To some of the younger inmates Nelson is a father figure. He has two married daughters and is a grandfather six times over.

Teen Shot to Death; Bar Owner Held

An 18-year-old Compton youth was fatally wounded early Saturday in a shooting outside a bar in Carson.

The 28-year-old bar owner was booked on investigation of murder when the victim died six hours later in Harbor General Hospital.

Sheriff's homicide investigators said Moe Okeni, 1358 E. 152nd St., died from a bullet wound in the head at 8:25 a.m.

Firestone sheriffs deputies arrested John Sidote, 28, of Huntington Park, shortly after the 2:30 a.m. shooting.

Sidote told deputies he ordered Okeni and a group of his friends to leave the bar when they caused a disturbance.

They returned about 2:30, deputies said, and Sidote again told them to leave.

Sidote said the group got into a car in front of the bar, but continued to shout profanities.

Deputies said Sidote took a pistol from the bar, walked outside and fired one shot which hit Okeni in the head.

Teachers Plan Boycott of Schools in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A bitter feud between the Florida Education Association and Republican Gov. Claude Kirk may cause thousands of teachers to play hookey from their classrooms when schools open next month.

Florida schools are under both state and national sanctions, and many may find "baby sitters" instead of teachers in charge of the students.

Teachers who do report for work may be there under protest, to only avoid being held in contempt of court.

"With Florida under profession sanctions, with a walkout by teachers a reality except for a court order in one county and state funds for our public schools cut back so drastically, days of dark uncertainty lie ahead for our teachers and especially our children," said state school superintendent Floyd Christian.

The education crisis — which might come to a head when the majority of the state's 1.3 million pupils troop back to classes Sept. 5 — was triggered by refusal of the legislature to meet teacher demands for a $500 million increase in school spending.

This included an immediate $1,050 annual pay raise, to bring the minimum teacher salary to $5,000. Cost: $277 million.

The situation worsened when Kirk — fresh from victory at the polls on a "no new tax" pledge — vetoed millions of dollars in "extra" school spending which the Democrat-controlled legislature did authorize, cutting back the pay raise to $85 million and spreading it over a two-year period.

That means the $5,000 goal won't be reached fully until 1969.

Christian laid the blame on Kirk, saying "This is what happens when a gubernatorial candidate's rash and impossible campaign promises clash with reality."

He charged: "We are beginning to reap the whirlwind of irresponsible bipartisan politics, with the full harvest of a crop of shame and neglect yet to come."

The Florida Education Association, which represents the teachers, invoked sanctions — blacklisting the state's schools across the nation and notifying teachers elsewhere they will be subject to charges for violation of the professional code of ethics if they take jobs in Florida.

The National Education Association joined the fray, blaming the governor and bringing countercharges of union tactics.

Newly militant teachers — talking of walkouts and mass resignations—declared that only a special session of the legislature can solve the dilemma — putting them squarely on a collision with Kirk.

It took a court injunction to send 3,200 Pinellas County (St. Petersbur) teachers to work for preschool planning this week.

Coaches at 11 high schools refused to start football practice.

In Hillsborough County (Tampa), the school superintendent said he'll use parents and civic club volunteers to staff the schools, bringing a cry from teachers organizations about "baby-sitting" arrangements.

The word from Christian — who has borne much of the brunt of the problem — is "open the schools" under any circumstances. If it takes a statewide court injunction to staff the classrooms, that will be done too, he said.

Christian criticized the drastic action of sanctions and said the teachers were demanding too much too quickly — but he crossed swords with Kirk just this week, publicly asking for a special session of the legislature and getting a firm "no" along with a declaration that if Christian can't handle his job, the governor will do it for him.

Not even the FEA-NEA nationwide campaign to keep industry out of Florida has ruffled Kirk's "cool" —although it hits his promise to provide more tax funds without tax increases by luring new payrolls.

Cliff in Crete Becomes Refuge for American, Europe Beatniks

MATALA, Crete (AP) — A parched yellow cliff pockmarked with caves at the edge of a sandy cove has become the refuge of droves of European and American beatniks.

For dozens of bearded hitchhikers and scraggly-haired girls Matala is the end of the line. The sparkling Mediterranean and the blazing sun of this Greek island entice them to stay as long as they can.

By living off tomatoes, eggs and bread one can get along on 30 cents a day.

The stone shelter of the caves, used since prehistoric days, is free.

"Neptune", a blonde-bearded German who refuses to give any other name, has ruled the colony for six months.

His duties range from dishwashing to deciding whether to give the nod of acceptance to the newcomer.

* * * *

HE IS ALSO the link with the village of Matala, a string of 15 huts and a couple of taverns.

Earlier this summer nearly 100 beatniks were holed up in the caves which served for arms storage during Roman times and during the German occupation of World War II.

Now about half have left temporarily to earn $3 a day picking grapes.

Others find less tiring means of subsistence.

"It's much easier to give blood," says Margaret, a Scottish girl who has been traveling through Europe for the past year.

"We get 250 Drachmae — $7.50 — a pint, which keeps us going for weeks."

The Golden Fish Cafe at the foot of the caves serves as headquarters. Groups of young people in ragged bathing suits gaze out at the inlet where the Greek God eus disguised as a bull is supposed to have come ashore bearing Europa.

"Of all the versions about the caverns we prefer the one that they were once a leper colony," says Barbara, an English girl.

* * * *

SOME OF THE openings are warrens barely able to shelter a few people. Other are regular rooms complete with benches carved out of walls where a sleeping bag creates a bed. A few are quite elaborate apartments with steps, vestibules, framed doors, windows and fireplaces.

Every afternoon Arthur Roberts of New York strums his battered guitar and hums folk songs for those who are not taking an extended siesta.

Days spent in this simple fashion make the Matala beats lose track of time.

"All I know is that I have to leave soon, in a week or maybe two," says Jean, a bearded teacher. "I don't know how long I have been here.

"Nothing bothers us except the flies and the old skulls we find near the caves. Those skulls make you think."

Student Group Seeking Candidate Against War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A student movement to elect a president who opposes "seemingly endless and senseless" American involvement in Vietnam emerged Saturday as a spinoff from the National Student Association.

The movement's chairman, Sam Brown of Harvard Divinity School, announced that a nucleus of students attending the NSA national meeting in nearby College Park, Md., has formed an "alternative candidates task force 1968" to seek an acceptable candidate for president and organize campus support for him.

It also is known as "Act 68."

Poverty Youngsters Take First Air Ride

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — About 600 underprivileged youngsters took their first airplane rides Saturday aboard five Western Airlines jets flying out of Los Angeles International Airport.

The airline made the flights available in cooperation with the Los Angeles Youth Opportunities Council, and at the request of Vice President Humphrey.

THE PENNEY STORY

The business built on the "Golden Rule"

By ROBERTA NASH

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

The retail store business is a tough, competitive business. Could you really be successful by following the "Golden Rule"? Yes. Mr. Penney hasn't done so badly.

Mr. Penney's first stores were actually named "The Golden Rule Stores". They lived up to their name. Folks liked to shop there because they got a fair shake for their hard-earned dollars.

But times have changed. Would the "Golden Rule" work today? Yes. Penney's is still living by it. And growing faster every day.

Wacky Boat Parade Floats into Newport

INTERNATIONALE . . . "Swingiest Boat in the Parade"

BARRY GOLDWATER
Honorary Judge

MIGHTY MO . . . Model of Battleship Missouri Won Theme Prize

—Staff Photos

It was odd man "in" instead of "out" Saturday when 60 of the wackiest decorated boats in the world slipped through Newport Harbor in the only nautical caper of its kind.

Dubbed the Character Boat Parade, based this year on a theme "Internationale," and sponsored by the Commodores' Club of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, the seventh annual showing turned out thousands of spectators on land and sea.

Theme winner was "Mighty Mo," a battleship model owned and entered by Joe Beek, a resident of Newport Beach.

Former Sen. Barry Goldwater acted as an honorary judge for the parade in which eight perpetual trophies were awarded for theme boats and character boats.

According to parade chairman Richard Stevens, the swingingest boat in this year's "salty salute to friendly nations," was an entry entitled "Internationale" that was jammed packed with everything from an a-go-go band to mini-skirted dancing beauties.

An entry by the Newport National Bank, which featured a double-decker bus, won a special award; a miniature sidewheeler called Southern Bay, owned by W. A. Thompson of Newport Beach won the Wheel Steam and Bell Award.

In parade parlance a character boat is "a vessel of individual character either through its original design or special decoration or adaptation.

Acting as honorary judges along with Goldwater were the Consul Generals from Canada, England, South Korea, Germany, New Zealand and Nationalist China.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

A RAY OF HOPE in the Vietnam business comes to us in an odd way.

As a forecaster, Defense Sec. MacNamara has been somewhat less than impressive. It has seemed to me that things have gone pretty much the way he said they wouldn't go.

Now he tells us that bombs won't bring North Vietnam to the negotiating table.

That suggests a course to follow: Drop some more bombs, and get the table ready.

BEEFS ABOUT railings that keep motorists from seeing the view from such places as the Vincent Thomas and new Desmond bridges have my sympathy (I like to look, too), but I'm told they're not likely to make points with the designers and traffic experts. Gawking doesn't make for safe driving.

And speaking of bridge design, there's a problem on those upcoming Naples canal spans: How to arch them enough to let the boats under without making them so steep drivers can't see where they're going and what they might run into on the other side.

From an engineer I got short shrift for two constructive suggestions: 1. Make the roadway of glass, so drivers can look through to the other side. 2. Hang mirrors above the top of the arch, giving a look down the other side.

People with imagination are always getting snubbed.

TO ORDINARY citizens, it seems that modern banks never have done much about robbers except to let them come in, scare tellers, and walk out with the dough. Maybe much more is done, but it hasn't been apparent to us, and evidently not to robbers.

At last, however, there's some bad news for bandits. Bank of America at San Francisco has hired nine policemen who will moonlight as tellers in their off hours. The police won't wear uniforms, but they'll carry guns, as is required of them at all times by their dept. rules.

Bandits, who like to pick on girl tellers, may think twice if they know they may be up against a cop with a .38 when they hand that threatening note into the cage. It's an idea that may spread.

NOT EVERYBODY is awed by the great ship Queen Mary, now a piece of Long Beach property.

Dr. John Harris, on recent travels, met a young man in Romania with whom he has kept up correspondence. The Romanian saw news in the international press about the Long Beach acquisition. Writing from Alba-Julia, he wrote to Doc: "In heaven's name, what are you brave citizens of Long Beach going to do with such a jaloppy."

Jaloppy?

TO OUR Australian guests — Boy Scouts and Scouters here on their way home from the Idaho jamboree — our current weather is about as unseasonal as it can be.

It's winter time in their "down under" home country. They've been hearing about wintry weather antics down there, especially big rainstorms in the coastal regions.

IT WON'T do any good for me to offer excuses for typographical errors in your favorite newspaper, but along comes Bob Pierce, the organ man, graciously offering one.

Somewhere Bob dug up the fact that in the sentence, "to be or not to be," by transposition alone, 2,759,022 errors are possible. Any math fans want to work on that one?

Anyhow, I guess we could make more than we do if we really worked at it.

SECOND COMING HERALDED

12,000 Hear Evangelist at Assembly

By GEORGE LAINE

The Vietnam war is helping to fulfill Bible prophecy concerning the second coming of Christ, Texas evangelist Louis G. Neely told an audience of 12,000 Assemblies of God convention guests in Long Beach Arena Saturday night.

The 27-year-old El Paso man, whose Mideast evangelistic crusade was one of the first casualties of the Israel-Egypt conflict, returned to the U.S. from Beirut, Lebanon, the day after the war erupted.

THE ASIAN and Mideast bloodshed do not constitute the only signs that the Kingdom of God is at hand, the evangelist declared.

The Bible has also forecast the rise of Russia and China, widespread famines and persecution of those who follow God, Neeley said. The world today, he said, is filled with "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

Neely's address capped a Youth night program that also featured the presentation of awards to the Assemblies of God Teen Talent Search and the announcement of the winners in the Youth Bible Quiz, which has been held throughout the week at the Lafayette Hotel, headquarters for the visiting Assemblies of God delegates.

CHAMPION 'BIBLE QUIZ' TEAM FROM DENVER (LEFT) EN ROUTE TO VICTORY OVER MINNEAPOLIS.

Talent Search winners were Judy Nicholson, Springfield, Mo., keyboard solo; Gwenda Grostefon and Barbara Crow, Ft. Wayne, Ind., keyboard ensemble; Lamarr Anderson, Eugene, Ore., instrumental solo; Jim Risner and Bill Hanawalt, Springfield, Mo., instrumental ensemble, Sharon Beard, Newark, Calif., vocal solo, and Valaine Carlson, Ellie Semlow, Jo-Ann Kruger and Donna Sather, Willmar, Minn., vocal ensemble.

The Youth Bible Quiz prize went to the team representing the Full Gospel Chapel at Denver, Colo. It was the second consecutive year the team had bested all competition.

To win, the Denver group defeated the Albuquerque, N.M., Central Assembly of God entry.

Members of the winning team were Neal Jones (captain), Sharon Workman, Wayne Wells, Claudette Dacus, Wanda Bishop and Mike Barry. The team is coached by Lannie Wirth.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE for the conclave will include a 10 a.m. memorial service which will pay homage to 162 Assemblies of God ministers — including four missionaries. The group includes 27 women.

At 2 p.m., a missionary rally will seek to raise $100,000 for Assemblies of God missions at home and abroad. The rally is called the "good News Crusade." A parade of missionaries is scheduled.

The 32nd general council of the Assemblies of God is a national conclave and the parking lot of the Long Beach Arena Saturday bore that out. Midwest license plates were plentiful and so were licenses from California's central "heartland" area. An estimated 10,000 persons are attending the convention.

TO SERVE 'QUEEN'

L.B. Firm Eyes Double-Deck Bus

The Long Beach Tansportation Co. is dickering with London Transport authorities for some double-decker buses to be used between downtown Long Beach and the Queen Mary, it was learned Saturday.

The buses would cost anywhere from $1,800 to $2,500 apiece, and transportation charges for each would run around $2,000, according to Joseph Cooper, assistant general manager of the Long Beach firm.

Cooper said general manager William Farell has been in correspondence with London transit officials in connection with the planned purchase, but added that final autorhity for the deal must come from the firm's board of directors.

THE BUSES, WHICH ARE PAINTED fire-engine red and decorated on the outside with large advertising panels, currently are in service. The London transit organization — a publicly-owned utility — is phasing out its double deckers in favor of regular buses, however, and is happy to sell them.

If the buses are purchased, they probably will be the first such double-decker vehicles to be used for transit purposes since the old Los Angeles Motor Coach Co. operated twin-level buses in Los Angeles and Hollywood 25 years ago, Cooper said.

He also said the fact that they're in service indicates the buses are in good shape and will require little if any rehabilitation. "They're actually not too old," he said.

It isn't certain how many vehicles the company plans to buy, but it could be two or three, and possibly more, Cooper said.

PURCHASE of double-decker buses similar to the one pictured here has been proposed by the Long Beach Transportation Co. The buses would be used between downtown Long Beach and the Queen Mary.

Parade Will Open L.B. 'Army' Meet

Six Salvation Army bands, attired in the familiar black and red uniforms, will step out at 5 p.m. today in the formal opening of the 10th Annual Long Beach Camp Meetings.

The bands will march west along Broadway to Long Beach Boulevard, then turn and head for the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, where the 8-day fete is to be held.

INCLUDED IN the bands participating are the Hollywood Tabernacle band, the San Diego Corps band, the Congress Hall band and bands from Inglewood, Santa Ana and host Long Beach.

Daily programs for the Camp Meetings features opening ceremonies at 9:30 a.m. at Long Beach Temple Corps., with home visits and street contacts to follow.

At 2 p.m., prayer meetings will be held, followed at 3 p.m. by a Bible study session. At 4 p.m., all Salvationists will join in a special "beach evangel."

At 6 p.m., open air meetings are scheduled for the corners of 4th Street and Pine Avenue. At 7 p.m., personal prayer sessions are in order, followed by a regular program each evening.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, AUGUST 27, 1967 — PAGE B-2

'Veto Session' Will Focus on Senate

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Internal Senate politics will dominate the legislature's "veto override" session when it convenes Sept. 4.

Though the five-day session is provided under the theory that lawmakers may want to override a governor's decision by mustering a two-thirds vote, there are no issues that seem likely to ignite a veto test.

Rather, the center of attention probably will focus on smoke-filled rooms where the future of the California Senate is likely to be thrashed out.

The senate, now split 20-20 between the two parties due to the election of Republican Sen. Milton Marks of San Francisco, since 1957 has been in control of President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno.

However, the Republican senatorial contest in San Francisco has been ballyhooed as a partisan battle for Senate control.

If a Senate leadership change is in the works, it is likely to materialize in September. It is no secret that several Republican senators have sounded out others on a possible new alignment to dump Burns and replace him with a Republican president pro tempore.

Sen. Burns and Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-Marin County, the senior

JAMES McCAULEY

Republican, both discount the possibility of such a coup.

"I have every intention of campaigning for the office and I have every confidence I can get the votes," explained Burns. He recalled that he first won the Senate leadership post 10 years ago when there was a similar 20-20 split between Democrats and Republicans.

Sen. Burns personally is one of the most popular legislators in the corridors, and that fact may make it difficult for some lawmakers to vote for any other president pro tempore.

However, resentment has been boiling up over a number of issues. The committees have been stacked in the Senate against Southern California due to the rigid seniority system. No Los Angeles County senator is on the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

The Senate Transportation Committee, where bills decide how gasoline tax revenues are split, was weighted in favor of the north. One of the upshots: existing legislation gives Northern California roads some of the money that comes from Southern California.

Thus, the pressure is on from Young Turk Republicans and Young Turk Democrats for a revamped Senate with the impact of reapportionment in mind. There also is a clamor to strip the arbitrary Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee of its prime role: the executioner of bills unwanted by the Senate Old Guard.

In the Senate, major bills do not necessarily go to the involved policy committee. The significant legislative proposals are consigned to the Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee, where the outcome is determined in executive session by a small clique of Old Guard senators.

Younger senators are pressing for the scrapping of the Old Senate Club rules. Their push may come out in the open at the September "veto override" session. Partisans in both parties are rankled by the bipartisan Old Guard.

Little else will occur publicly. And to confirm the fact is an announcement that the Assembly has scheduled a roster of "outstanding speakers" to fill in at what otherwise would be a legislative session.

Pollster Louis Harris addresses legislators on Sept. 5, Henry Rowen and Dr. Ammenuel Mesthene are billed for Sept. 6, and Dr. Allan Carter is on tap for Sept. 7.

In other words, the "veto override" session in Sept. will be so quiet you could hear a head drop in the Senate.

Here's Law on Tideland Spending

FROM TIME to time when various community needs are felt or when tidelands projects are undertaken some citizens wonder why tidelands oil funds can't be used for their pet projects.

It might be helpful to recall a few points about "our" tidelands.

First, they are not "our" tidelands. By virtue of a state Supreme Court ruling and various state laws the tidelands are state — repeat state — not city property.

SECOND, BY virtue of law and court rulings, revenues from those tidelands can only be spent for projects of state — not local — benefit.

In 1964 the state legislature passed a bill which is called Chapter 138. It specifically lists uses to which Long Beach, as trustee, may put tidelands oil revenues.

Here they are as listed in Sec. 6 of Chapter 138:

"(a) The construction, reconstruction, improvement, repair, operation and maintenance of works, lands, waterways, and facilities necessary for the harbor within the boundaries of the harbor district of said city (as said boundaries were defined on April 1, 1956).

"(b) The construction, reconstruction, repair, operation and maintenance of streets, roadways, bridges and bridge approaches within the boundaries of, or reasonably necessary to provide immediate access to, said harbor district (as such boundaries were defined on April 1, 1956).

"(c) The construction, reconstruction, repair, operation and maintenance of the bulkheads, piers, earthfills, streets, roadways, bridges, bridge approaches, buildings, structures, recreational facilities, landscaping, parking lots and other improvements on or adjacent to the Long Beach tidelands or on or adjacent to the Alamitos Beach Park Lands for the benefit and use of said tidelands or the Alamitos Beach Park Lands.

"(d) The construction, reconstruction, repair operation and maintenance of small boat harbors, marine stadiums, maritime museum, marine parks, beaches, waterways and related facilities, on or adjacent to the Long Beach tidelands or on or adjacent to the Alamitos Beach Park Lands, or on or adjacent to aquatic recreational areas of the aforesaid nature.

"(e) The acquisition, filling, improvement, rehabilitation and disposal of lands, which have, prior to January 1, 1964, been damaged by subsidence, located in the city of Long Beach westerly of Alamitos Avenue, easterly of the harbor district and southerly of Ocean Boulevard (as said streets and district now exist).

"(f) The acquisition of property or the rendition of services reasonably necessary to the carrying out of the foregoing uses and purposes.

"(g) In addition to the foregoing, expenditures for any other use or purpose of state, as distinguished from purely local, interest and benefit which are in fulfillment of those trust uses and purposes described in said acts of 1911, 1925 and 1935, and which are approved in advance by the State Lands Commission."

THE ACTS REFERRED to immediately above are the original grants of the tidelands which limited use essentially to development for commerce and navigation.

Nowhere in the permitted uses do you find schools, libraries, hospitals, etc. The last effort by the city to spend tidelands money for such purposes (in the early 1950's) resulted in the court ruling which affirmed state — not city — ownership of the tidelands and resulted in Long Beach paying well over $200 million to the state.

Our city fathers have been carefully observing state law in regard to use of tidelands property and funds. For that they should be commended not abused.

Space Cuts Will Be Felt in California

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Despite assurances to the contrary, appropriations cuts are bound to deeply hurt the nation's space program.

The pain will be particularly acute in California.

The House last week chopped over a half billion dollars from the $5.1 billion requested for the civilian space program, bringing it to its lowest level of funding since 1963 on a dollar basis and to the lowest percentage of the gross national product in this decade.

These cuts by the House-expected to be accepted without appreciable change by the Senate — reflect the demands of the Vietnam war, the pressures of urban problems and a dimming of the aura of glamour that has surrounded the space program.

House paring centered on starts for new programs, leaving the costly Apollo man-on-the-moon program intact.

The principal victim was the Voyager program to soft land an unmanned capsule on Mars in 1973.

THIS ACTION leaves the nation without any planned planetary mission, except for a Mariner probe of the red planet in 1969, and will strike hard at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, NASA's center for such activity. The JPL work force probably will be cut back by 200 or more persons within the next few months.

Depending upon how NASA deals with fund curtailments in other areas, there could be force reductions at the Ames Research Laboratory in Mountain View.

California contractors who have supplied the agencies with the complex components of spacecraft certainly will have to find business elsewhere or reduce their payrolls.

While the House "new starts" cutting eviscerated the planetary spacecraft program centered in California, the legislative surgery was far less drastic on another new program — the effort to create a nuclear-powered space rocket.

The same action that killed Voyager left much of the money that had been asked for the nuclear propulsion program. The score now is nuclear rocket, $130 million; Voyager, zero.

Yet the principal use for the nuclear rocket would be circa-1985 manned planetary travel, for which Voyager and its cousins are requisite.

The situation might be compared to a pinched automaker spending substantial sums on the motor for its 1985 model before even designing the chassis for its 1972 model.

This was made clear in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee by NASA Administrator James Webb, when he was asked why work had not begun earlier on a large nuclear rocket.

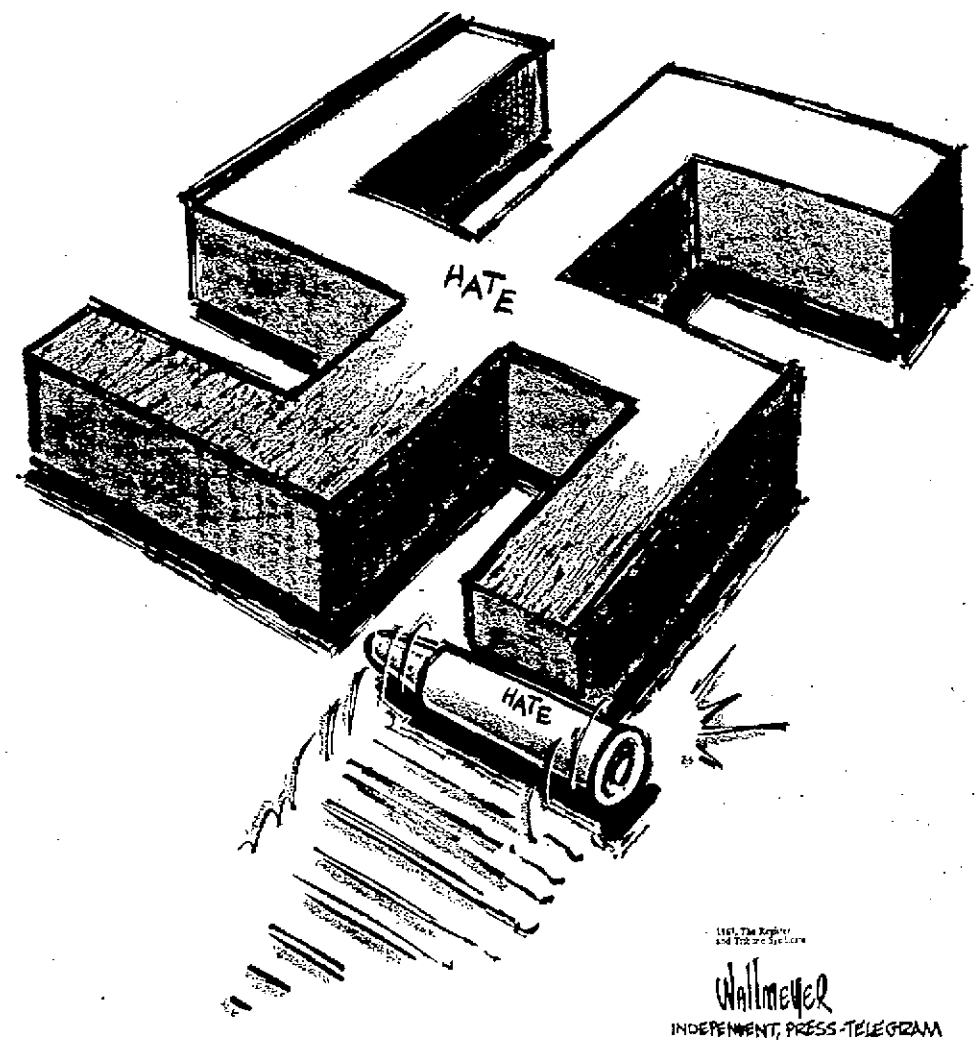

"The missions to the planets using Voyager had not been approved. There was a general feeling if you did not have a mission, you did not need to develop the nuclear system," Webb said.

THE PARING action in these areas, then, was not a matter of pure logic. Logic would have dictated using some of the nuclear money to keep Voyager alive.

This leaves politics, and the answer there is that Democratic Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico heads the Senate Space Committee and also is an ex officio member of the Appropriations committee that deals with the civilian space budget.

The nuclear rocket research program is centered at Los Alamos, N.M., and is a pet of Anderson's.

Cleaner Than A Hound's Tooth

AT LEAST SOME of the United States senators and congressmen bemoaning the almost certain "shenanigans" in the South Vietnamese election got into Congress on campaigns which were far short of the hound's tooth traditional cleanliness.

Nothing more clearly illustrates the excesses of critical approaches to the entire problem of Vietnam, with its many ancient and corroded complexities, than the hypocritical demands of some of the critics, including those in our own Congress, that the elections be "pure democracy." They won't be. This is the first one in a country wholly unused, by history, tradition or custom, to representative elections.

The South Vietnamese are a people in 40 provinces set up by the French to make colonial administration easier. The provinces had chiefs to whom village chiefs reported with taxes and with corrupted cut-backs and graft. Saigon was hated as a city that "took but never gave." The French colonial government made the provinces semi-autonomous and encouraged them to suspect and feel hostility toward each other. This made Saigon's rule easier.

Nor does this historic division make any easier the slow road to learning democratic processes. That congressmen in Washington should be demanding "clean" elections in a country which in past generations developed a reputation for crooked, stolen, maneuvered elections is not a very wholesome performance.

Andrew Jackson almost came to the point of loading up his pistol and going out after those who thefted the presidency from him in 1825. John Quincy Adams bought it — the House then being the arbiter. Adams won by a margin of one state. On his death bed, when a minister asked Jackson if he had any regrets to reveal, he said there were two. The minister bent low to hear the repentant words. Old Hickory said he regretted he hadn't shot Henry Clay and hung John C. Calhoun. (Calhoun had sought to divide the union, but had backed down before Jackson's stern eye and decisions.)

A nation that gave the world of democracy the steal and smell of the Hayes-Tilden election of 1876 can hardly be raising pious hands in protest to the first election in Vietnam. There will be corruption and sharp practices in the election. Common sense should let us know it will be just splendid if there is a minimum of such practices.

We should keep in mind the days when the railroad lobbies literally ran the country and the Congress — electing senators, governors, and presidents. Has Saigon asked about the historic smoke-filled room whose occupants came up with Warren G. Harding?

Turn to the chapter in Samuel Eliot Morison's "History of the American People," titled "The Gilded Age," and read as follows: Until Amendment XVII . . . United States senators were chosen by state legislatures, and it was much cheaper to "buy" members than to cultivate the whole electorate. Consequently, few members reached the Senate without financial support from one or more of the leading "interests such as railroading, oil, textiles, iron and steel, mining and sugar refining. There was a known, identified power group that "ran America." They made and unmade presidents. All became rich, some were gentlemen, some were not.

Our political history is filled with the names of bosses and corruption. The corrupt manipulation of President U.S. Grant was one of the major examples.

Against such a background, to have the Vietnam peace cult lobby and the senators and congressmen holding up pious hands and demanding that Vietnam give us pure, clean democracy in its first election is enough to make a buzzard gag.

The Iowa Tower

EDITOR:

Long Beach has acquired the Queen Mary. Some wag has suggested that we buy the London Bridge, which is also for sale.

Why not start dickering for the Eiffel Tower in Paris? France still owes the U.S. a lot of dough for financing its past several wars, so we might ship our dapper Vice Mayor Robert Crow over there to help settle the war debt with General De Gaulle.

The Eiffel Tower is 994 feet high and was erected for the Paris Exposition in 1889. It might be a bit rusty, but a little elbow grease would take care of that. If we got it here in Long Beach, it might be called the "Iowa Tower" in honor of those stalwart pioneers from the Hawkeye State who helped build this great city by the sea.

Barbaric Idea?

EDITOR:

As a constituent of Long Beach, Rep. Craig Hosmer was kind enough to send me his August Congressional Report.

Mr. Hosmer is concerned that we are not making much headway in the war in Vietnam and is pushing for "psychological" warfare. As an example of such warfare, Mr. Hosmer suggests throwing chemicals into the rice fields of the North, stating that such cheminals are not harmful, but only makes the rice "look, taste and smell bad," rice being the principal food of the people.

If this is "psychological" warfare, then Hitler was a saint.

First Mr. Hosmer offers no facts to show that these chemicals are not harmful, secondly the fact that women and children would not be able to stomach the rice and therefore lead to possible starvation, is also not mentioned by Mr. Hosmer.

It is said that war brings out the worst in people, but how barbaric can we get? By comparison with such thoughts of Mr. Hosmer's, the riots in our cities are the epitome of compassion.

They Misunderstood

EDITOR:

So they held their demonstration to protest the bombing of Hiroshima.

Where were many of these same people during World War II to protest the action taken against their fellow Americans, the Japanese, when they were stripped of their homes and jobs and herded into concentration camps?

Our Japanese citizens lost everything, but instead of protesting or rioting, they tried to understand that their beloved country was doing what it thought at the time, was the right thing to do. And to prove they understood, they sent their sons, brothers and husbands to fight the common enemy.

Today's Book

THE WEST IN ASIA, 1850-1914. By Michael Edwardes. Putnam. $5.95.

Here, comprehensively but concisely, is a badly needed study of the coming and entrenchment of European (and American) imperialism on the Asian continent. The events that transpired are not mere fleeting and forgotten episodes against exotic backgrounds, for they set the stage for problems and the wars that have plagued us in our time.

In another day, not so long ago, one's interest would center, in a book of this sort, on the British in India, on the Western powers' rape of China, the Opium War and the Boxer Rebellion, and on Japanese expansion. Today, for obvious reasons, we want to know more about Vietnam, and about its neighbors, Thailand, Burma, Laos. Author Edwardes deals at length with the record of France in Indo-China, a record from which the iVetnamese troubles of today follow as the night does the day. Much space is devoted to Russia's march, through Siberia, to the Pacific, and a fascinating story it is, if for no other reason than for the light it casts on the Sino-Soviet "cold war" now going on.—Nat Honig.

A—The ermine or stoat, a weasel that lives in cold climates. The animal usually is called an ermine only when its fur is white.

L. A. C. SAYS

How Columns Are Usually Written

By L. A. COLLINS SR.

QUITE often I am asked why I quote from magazines, other newspapers and other sources in these columns. My only answer is this is the sources of information used in many of these columns. Some of the quotes are long, some short. But they are the result of an average of 6 to 8 hours a day of research for the material used. Where such quotes are used I usually name their source. It is my opinion that the reader in such cases is entitled to know the source rather than to use the material without indicating the source.

The average writer on subjects such as used in this column must seek out material from many sources. In my case the sources are the weekly U.S. News, Time and Newsweek, four daily papers including the Wall Street Journal, such monthly magazines as Changing Times, Readers Digest, Nations Business and numerous business, labor, religious and government publications and of course, radio and TV newscasts and conferences with many people.

Some writers present the views without naming their source of information. In my view this weakens rather than strenthens their positions. No man can write six days a week without the information he accumulates from this research. It seems reasonable that the reader will have more confidence in the views if he or she knows the source of the information. When the columnist expresses them as his own he takes the chance that his reader will also have read the article in a national magazine. To not identify the source leaves the columnist as copying material without giving credit to the writer who researched and wrote the original material. Where actual quotes are used they are usually better written than the column writer would write.

Giving the source of information also gives the writer the opportunity to agree or disagree with the views expressed in the quotes. His interpretation of the materials is the basis of the conclusions he expresses — and the arguments he may use to express his own position on the issue under discussion.

Such quotations are used in a minor portion of columns in a year. But the reader should realize that all columns are based on hours of research among the sources of information on the subjects discussed. The problem of a columnist is to seek out subjects which are informative and which the great majority of his readers would be interested in. This means choosing from the many subjects that are not repetitious and which are challenging to the average reader.

Many years ago the great actor-producer and song writer George M. Cohan was appearing on Broadway. At that time four other theatres in New York City were showing his plays. Coming out of the theater one night a group of high school students were seeking his autograph. One asked him, "Mr. Cohan, to what do you attribute your success?" He replied, "I guess its because I am just an ordinary guy and know what an ordinary guy likes!"

It is a philosophy every columnist should hold. They are not supermen with such ability as was his. But if they can have the feel of their readers and seek out information those readers want he will be doing them a service. In my opinion they will have more confidence in the material presented when it is taken from sources in which they have reason to have confidence. This is especially true when the subject involves statements or views on finance, politics, world affairs or statements of well known individuals.

Do Americans Have What It Takes?

(Editor's Note: How American policy on Vietnam is viewed from abroad should be of more than passing interest to us. The editorial comments below are reprinted from "The Economist," one of the most respected and authoritative British news magazines.)

MAYBE THE AMERICANS don't have what it takes after all. What it takes in Vietnam is patience: the patience to slog on with a defensive war, and to accept the restraints on military action that this sort of war calls for. If the Americans can command enough patience, they can do what they set out to do in Vietnam.

This is a bloody war, and an expensive one, but for the Americans the cost is a long way short of intolerable. Even if they go on taking casualties at the rate they have been taking them this year, it will be 1970 before they have lost as many men killed as they lost in Korea; and it is unlikely that the Communists can stand the present pace as long as that.

The war is costing $25,000 billion a year; but that is only about half of what the Americans will be adding to their gross national product at the growth rate they expect to achieve by the end of this year. The United States can fight the Vietnam war and go on raising its standard of living at the same time. That is the measure of its economic power.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has the money and men to carry on the war at its present level for a long time to come. In this sense, he almost certainly has more staying power than Ho Chi Minh; and it is staying power that will count in the end. What Mr. Johnson may be running short of is something else: patient public support for the whole idea of a limited war.

This is the only explanation of the latest extension of the bombing of North Vietnam. The attack on the Paul Doumer bridge in Hanoi is probably fair enough. The cutting of the bridge makes it harder for the North Vietsamese to get supplies through to their men fighting in the south.

The attacks on targets in the previously forbidden zone along the Chinese border are another story. The most the Americans can hope to achieve by these attacks is to catch some supply trains a bit farther north than they would have caught them anyway, and make the North Vietnamese put a few thousand extra men on repair work. For these minor gains Mr. Johnson is running a big risk of bombing China by accident. The Chinese would not necessarily intervene even if they did get bombed; but with Mao Tse-tung in a state of half-gaga desperation there is a distinct chance that they might.

On this balance of advantages and disadvantages it is plain that Mr. Johnson's decision to strike new targets has very little to do with any calculation about the course of the war in Vietnam itself. The President's real target is in Washington. He is throwing a concession to the impatient hawks who still believe, against the evidence, that more bombing will pull a quick victory out of the hat.

The danger is that his new move will destroy the middle-of-the-road majority that the President has so far commanded for his conduct of the war. Until now Mr. Johnson has managed to keep both his oppositions under control. Neither those who wanted more bombing nor those who wanted less have really managed to set public opinion on fire. But lately the thump-em-hard boys have come to think that the opinion polls are beginning to move their way. And now, by making this concession to the hardliners, Mr. Johnson has lost the backing of a numer of former supporters who think he is taking an unjustifiable risk.

THE SOP TO THE HAWKS has produced a reinforcement for the doves. No one can calculate the mood of American politics better than Mr. Johnson can. He doubtless reckons that a few extra raids on new targets will bring the hawks fluttering safely down to earth again before a mistaken navigator takes a bomber over China. He may be right. But if the hawks remain unappeased we may be seeing the start of a polarization of American attitudes towards the war. It is just such a polarization that Mr. Johnson has fought long and hard to prevent: he knows that, if it happens, it will in the end face him with a straight choice between total war and getting out altogether.

This could be the cost of giving way to the impatient ones. It would have been better if Mr. Johnson had decided to ride out this attack from the opposition on his right just as he rode out the attack from the opposition on his left last winter. The President knows better than anyone else that the bombing of the north now has one real justification, and one only. This is not to break Ho Chi Minh's will to fight. That might have been the hope at the start of 1965, when the bombing began. When Ho first found himself faced with a different sort of war from the one he had bargained for — a war that was hurting North Vietnam too — it was on the cards that he might have decided to call the whole thing off. But he did not; and the relatively minor extra damage North Vietnam will suffer as a result of this month's new bombing is unlikely to change his mind.

This is not because the bombing actually stiffens the average northerner's will to resist. That is romantic nonsense, as anyone who has been through a prolonged bombardment knows perfectly well. It is because Ho Chi Minh does not have to bother much about public opinion, and because he knows that he can make good the material losses caused by the destruction of the fairly small remaining number of military targets by indenting for the necessary extra supplies from his Russian friends.

THE ONE VALID argument for the present bombing is that it physically limits the amount of men and arms North Vietnam can send through to the south. It is an interdiction job. But this interdiction job can be done equally well without sending bombers to China's border. It would have been better if Mr. Johnson had explained this to the hawks, and then ignored them.

If he wants to, the President can change the whole character of the war.

He can order a landing in North Vietnam, if he thinks there is a reasonable chance of catching the North Vietnamese army in open battle and destroying it the way the North Korean army was destroyed by the Inchon landing; but the North Vietnamese would probably slip away into the hills and fight as guerillas.

He can blockade Haiphong, and give Ho Chi Minh a real supply problem, if he is prepared for a direct confrontation with Russia.

If he wants to attack North Vietnamese morale by the terror tactics that Bomber Command used in the second world war he could take his air force off pin-point targets and send it out on obliteration raids. He doubtless sees the difficulty of all these courses of action: particularly the last.

But unless he is willing to embark on a new sort of war he must accept the logic of the strategy he has been following since mid-1965. The kernel of this strategy is the land war in the south. The bombing of the north is ancillary to this: its main aim is to harass the communists' supply lines. It also has the useful by-product of increasing North Vietnam's dependence on Russia, and thus in the long run increasing the Russians' influence in Hanoi. But it is not a substitute for the fight in the south.

THE MOST worrying thing about the war this summer is not the raids along the border of China. Mr. Johnson, who knows how limited their value is, is unlikely to push his luck too far up there. It is the failure of the South Vietnamese army to play its proper part in the fighting in the south. It is not just that this diverts many American units from the job of taking on the Communists' big formation. It also means that the task of reclaiming Viet Cong-held territory is going much slower than the Americans had hoped.

Counterfeit Drug Racket Goes On Despite Expose

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Eight years ago this reporter dug out the details of an insidious racket which still threatens the health of everyone who buys a pill or gets a prescription filled.

The expose caused a flurry of excitement throughout the drug industry and led to some solemn testimony on Capitol Hill. But the racket — drug counterfeiting — thrives virtually unchecked today.

The Food and Drug Administration's expert on drug abuse, John Finlator, estimates that the sale of counterfeit drugs far exceeds $25 million each year. This is alarming news indeed for our pill culture. Enough goof balls and pep pills alone will be manufactured in this country in 1967 to supply every American man, woman and child with two dozen pills.

Even more alarming, however, is the report of writer Margaret Kreig that the Mafia, or Cosa Nostra as it is known more intimately to its members, has moved into the drug counterfeiting racket. Her new book, "Black Market Medicine," presents a sobering account of how the racket has mushroomed since it was first exposed eight years ago.

IT DIDN'T even become an offense to make phony pills and powders until 1965; now it is merely a misdemeanor. In one case, the FDA spent $12,000 on counterfeit drugs in order to get evidence against a wholesaler. The counterfeiter, $12,000 richer from Uncle Sam's purchases, received a suspended sentence. He promptly wangled a loan from the Small Business Administration and opened up all over again.

Counterfeit drugs not only contain dubious ingredients but are produced under filthy conditions. One batch of tablets seized by the FDA has been sprayed with a Flit gun to make them look genuine and had been stored in containers that previously held rat poison.

Despite the grave danger to patrons of the nation's pharmacies, the American Pharmaceutical Association and National Association of Retail Druggists don't want any more regulations that might increase the paperwork of their members.

They have brought pressure upon Dr. James L. Goddard, the Food and Drug chief, who amazingly has testified that "we have sufficient regulatory authrotiy to meet the problems as we now know them."

An incredulous Rep. Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., pointed out that pet food production is better policed than drug manufacturing.

"The federal government appears to be more concerned with the manufacture of cat and dog food than the manufacture of drugs," he snorted.

"If you want to make that interpretation," admitted Goddard, with a shrug.

MAO TSE-TUNG, the wily old revolutionary who has become the fanatic Communist emperor of mainland China, may be fighting his last revolution. This is the view of many State Department insiders, though they frankly admit they can't be sure what is going on in the vortex of the Chinese whirlpool.

Apparently Mao's opponents control the Communist party machinery in most of the provinces. It also looks as if the army, which was supposed to be loyal to Mao, is sharply split.

Note: The insiders doubt, however, that the civil strife will ever rage completely out of control.

Congress Won't Cut Out Marble Gingerbread

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The 90th Congress is pretty well proving itself to be tight-fisted in many respects, but not in its Capitol Hill stomping grounds.

While the House in recent weeks was denying funds for rat control, important space programs and some overseas aid, workmen were busily putting an expensive fringe benefit on the Cannon House Office Building.

CAPITAL CHATTER

As part of a general renovation of the 60-year-old building, the structure's roof is being ringed with a fence of marble blocks and columns.

The white marble topping the gray granite walls serves no functional purpose, but is being added merely to gussy up the roofline.

The office of Capitol Architect J. George Stewart — creator of the multi-million Rayburn House Office Building — said it doesn't know how much the marble topping costs since it is buried in the overall renovation expense.

However, informed estimates calculate it will exceed $300,000.

A TEXAS schoolteacher has given 154 Democratic congressmen a start on their 1968 political campaigns.

The teacher, Thomas Fairclough of Wichita Falls, sent a $1 check to Democratic congressmen who voted in favor of the rat bill.

Each check was accompanied by a letter from Fairclough praising the recipient's stand on the issue and expressing his belief that "people like you should stay in Congress."

THE AGRICULTURE Department announced last week it is spending $9,330 on research aimed at eradicating a pest called the Confused Flour Beetle.

The critter lives on a diet of grains, flour, beans, peas, baking powder, ginger, dried plant roots, dried fruits, brand nuts, chocolate, snuff and cayenne pepper.

While this diet probably explains the beetle's odd name, it probably also makes it virtually immune to anything.

THE FEDERAL Communications Commission reported last week that one of the radio stations it supervises offered the commission equal time in which to reply to an attack on the FCC during a syndicated program.

This electronic apple to the teacher was declined by the FCC with thanks.

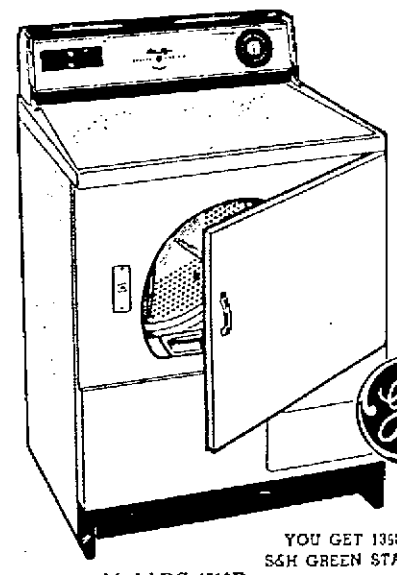

VICE PRESIDENT Humphrey demonstrated during his recent trip to Hawaii that he is a quick thinker.

Humphrey looked out his airplane window upon arriving in Honolulu and saw a cluster of anti-war pickets waiting for him.

He quickly asked Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., a leading Senate 'dove' who was also on the plane, to join him for the reception ceremonies and the pair walked off the plane arm-in-arm.

USS RAMSEY

New Guided Missile DE Arrives at Pier E Here

The USS Ramsey, first of the Navy's newest class of ships to be based in Long Beach, arrived Saturday at the Naval Station's Pier E.

The guided missile destroyer escort was commissioned May 27 at Puget Sound, Wash. The vessel is a compact antisubmarine warfare escort ship.

"We finally made it," Cmdr. William D. Robertson, commanding officer said.

"Being caught in the West Coast shipyard strike situation was no fun, and for a while I had some doubts about our getting to Long Beach," he added.

His ship is 414½ feet long, 44 feet wide and carries a crew of 16 officers and 240 men, all able to enjoy five, 24-ton air conditioning units.

To assist her in fulfilling the antisubmarine warfare mission are antisubmarine rockets (ASROC), eight torpedo tubes and long-range bow-mounted sonar.

Other armament includes the Tartar surface to air missile system and a 5-inch semiautomatic dual purpose gun mount.

Included in the advanced electronic system is the SPS-52 radar with a three-dimensional height finder shaped like an inverted table.

The ship has operations scheduled for the next several weeks, and on her first available weekend will be open for public visiting.

Ramsey is the first Navy ship to bear the name of Adm. Dewitt Clinton Ramsey, World War II attack carrier hero, former commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet and vice chief of naval operations.

The ship has been assigned to Destroyer Division 231, commanded by Capt. L. E. Davis Jr., now deployed. Capt. G. L. Clark, commodore of 232, met the ship for Commodore Davis.

Krause to Head CSLB Art Faculty

Dr. Joseph Krause, for 12 years a member of the art faculty at California State College, Long Beach, has been named chairman of the department. College President Dr. Carl W. McIntosh said Dr. Krause will assume his new duties effective with the fall semester.

Dr. Krause, who lives in Los Angeles, took his bachelorate, master's and doctorate at USC.

Twice president of the Southern California section of the Pacific Arts Association, Dr. Krause is a specialist in advertising design.

The new department chairman has served as adviser of art work and cover designs for many of the CSLB publications and served as art adviser to both the music and art departments.

DR. KRAUSE

More than 1,000 declared art majors will come under Dr. Krause's direction when CSLB resumes operations in September.

L.B. City College Sponsors Ninth Writers' Conference

The 9th annual Long Beach Writers' Conference, sponsored by Long Beach City College and a number of co-sponsoring community organizations, is scheduled for May 2-3-4 at the Pacific Coast Club. Conference director will be Mrs. Eva Logan of the LBCC English Department.

The 1968 conference will include luncheon, banquet and workshop sessions conducted by noted professional writers, editors and publishers. Designed both for readers and writers, the conference again is expected to draw hundreds of persons from the Long Beach area and other Southland communities.

No Writers' Conference was held last spring, pending a committee study of the conference format and the possibility of merging this annual event with the projected LBCC Summer Arts Festival. It finally was recommended that the 1968 conference be held separately, in downtown Long Beach, as it has been each year since 1959.

Persons who wish to be placed on the Writers' Conference mailing list may contact the City College Forums Office, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Program details and advance registration forms will be sent as soon as they become available.

It is expected that the 1968 conference will again include contests in faction, article-writing and poetry. Eligible to enter would be students enrolled in the Writing Techniques classes (English 133, 733, 139 and 739) and English composition courses.

San Gabriel River Project

By RALPH McCLURG

The harnessing of San Gabriel River into a permanent channel from the foothills through Downey, Norwalk, Bellflower, Cerritos and southward to the ocean has played a major roll in the urban development of the massive valley area.

The usually dry river, often referred to as the "Lazy River" because of itsin activity at various times, has not always been so irrepressible. It was erosion that made the fertile plains of the river valley and this had to be controlled before complete urbanization could be accomplished.

The major portion of the San Gabriel River is now encased in a concrete channel and the "near million-dollar-a-mile" San Gabriel Freeway, close to its banks provides a direct north-south thoroughfare from a point near El Monte to Seal Beach.

* * * *

VERY LITTLE WATER is seen in the river bed now, but it was not always that way. In slightly more than a century heavy seasonal rains swelled the river over its banks, changed its course at various points, and devastated the lands approximately half a dozen times.

The river flooded in 1862, 1884, 1889, 1916, 1938,1943 and prior to completion of Whittier Narrows Dam, the "Lazy River" had 1 final surge on Jan. 28, 1952. It was during that storm two teen-age boys were rescued from a sandbar when their makeshift raft floated down the river without them. The water reportedly was 15 feet deep.

* * * *

IT WAS DURING the storm just prior to the turn of the century that the early day school had to be moved from a point near the present Bellflower High School campus to high grounds because of a change in the river's course.

According to available records, it was in 1913 when Los Angeles County and the federal government agreed on a "gigantic scheme to divert the San Gabriel for irrigation by building a huge drainage basin." The project was also designed to prevent further erosion and silting of the harbor areas.

In 1915, the Los Angeles County Flood Control District was organized and work was started to harness the flood waters with a series of dams in the San Gabriel Mountain areas.

* * * *

THE SAN GABRIEL RIVER did not flood to any extent from 1916 until 1938, and work on the flood control dams was curtailed due to the lack of funds. Striking March 2, 1938, a flood gave impetus to the challenge after 10 persons were dead and thousands of southlanders were made homeless.

In 1939 the County Flood Control District under the direction of H.E. Hedger, chief engineer, requested federal protection. On Aug. 19, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed his historic San Gabriel Basin Flood Control Bill. Justification for the $25-million expenditure was to insure protection to the Harbor area naval bases.

* * * *

UNDER THE JURISDICTION ofthe U.S. Corps of Army Engineers and with the cooperation of Los Angeles Flood Control District a series of dredging, channelization and other projects have been and are still being carried on.

The latest project to be completed was the channelization of the river from Fairton Street in Norwalk to Cecilia Street in Downey at a cost of $2.6 million. Sections of the concrete channel have been left unpaved to allow rain and replenment water to settle in the underground water reserve areas.

Construction is now under way north of Cecilia Street in Downey for deepening of the channel which will, in effect, create a dam to allow further underground spreading of the water.

Navy Men Treat 19 L.B. Boys to Yosemite Holiday

Take one Navy petty officer, a junior officer, 19 boys 13 to 15 years old and a bus. Mix well, and what do you have?

A rewarding trip to Yosemite National Park via the Big Sur and Oakland.

This was the saga of two USS Yorktown men last week.

Gunner's Mate Technician 3.C. Chierepko and Lt. (jg) Dick Indegard were the Navy men on the trip with the group from the Long Beach Boys Club.

The Yorktown, an antisubmarine carrier, is in Long Beach Naval Shipyard for overhaul, and the boys' excursion is the brainchild of Medical Chief Conrad L. Pope.

"These men have taken their own leave time to accompany the boys on the outing. Our response was good when we got the opportunity to provide counselors for these trips.

"It met with such favorable reception that a member of the ship's Marine Detachment wanted to make a trip, too. So, our final group will have L-Cpl. James D. Lindsey going with Airman M. L. Kelly," Chief Pope said.

YORKTOWN'S commanding officer, Capt. Bill Bennett, heartily approved the plan, saying that "community service helps to make better men and a better ship."

Fire Controlman I.C. Larry Ellington and Lt. (jg) Terry McMullen made the first journey and considered it "an illuminating experience."

Generally a junior office and a petty officer were paired and all agreed they "felt good" about being a part of a program to aid a group that "probably would not be able to take a trip like this on its own."

'3Ms' Cause L.B. Teacher Turnover

Marriage, maternity and moving account for the major portion of the 10 per cent turnover each year in teaching personnel in the Long Beach Unified School District.

"Our turnover is relatively small compared with other school districts," said Dr. Donald P. Ashley, director of personnel for the school district. "The 'three M's,' however, do take their toll.

"We will have 270 new teachers on our rolls when schools open next month," Ashley added. "More than a hundred teachers will be on maternity leave this coming semester. In addition to the resignations resulting from marriage and moving out of the district, we, of course, have a sizable number of teachers who retire each year.

"Although the shortage of good elementary teachers is beginning to be felt in Long Beach as well as numerous other school districts throughout the state, we will have fully qualified teachers in every classroom on Sept. 11.

"Unless the recruitment of additional students for elementary school teacher training picks up materially in the colleges of the state, however, Long Beach like every other district will encounter serious problems in the year ahead. There is no shortage indicated in the immediate future in the high school teaching ranks."

New teachers to be added to the local school staff this year include 155 elementary school teachers, 91 high school and 24 in Long Beach City College.

Appoint Three New Principals in Harbor Area

Three secondary schools in the harbor area will have new principals when the schools open Sept. 11.

Supt. Jack P. Crowther of the Los Angeles City Schools said John J. Hunt will be the new principal of Gardena High School, Herman W. Adams will take over duties at Carnegie Junior High in the Carson area, and Norman C. Mathers will be principal at Dana Junior High in San Pedro.

Senior Citizen Talk on Medi-Cal Cuts

Jim Evans, Sacramento representative of the California League of Senior Citizens, will address a meeting of Long Beach league members at 1 p.m. Monday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Evans will discuss recent budget cuts by the Reagan administration, including reductions in the Medi-Cal program.

USC Project Wins Approval

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The federal government has approved the $16 million Hoover redevelopment project involving 166 acres surrounding the University of Southern California.

A spokesman for the Community Redevelopment Agency said it may begin acquiring property by the middle of next month if federal funds are immediately available.

35 Die in Plunge

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Police said Saturday 35 persons were killed and 28 others injured when a truck veered off a road and plunged 500 feet down an embankment Friday.

Opportunity H.S. Schedules Registration

Registration for Opportunity High School of the Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School District will be held from 8:30 to 12:30 a.m. on Sept. 1, 6, 7 and 8.

More than 200 students are expected to enroll in the school at 15411 Pioneer Blvd.

The school maintains both academic and vocational courses and is designed to help students who may have special problems in certain subjects required for a high school diploma.

Laguna's Festival of Opera Presents Romeo and Juliet

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

It's hard to believe Laguna Beach's Festival of Opera is already five years old. It seems only about a month since we saw the company's first "Carmen" in 1962.

Since then, this admirable organization has thrived, maintained the high standards it set for itself, and held on to a growing and loyal audience.

Under the direction of some of its original leaders, the company opened its sixth season of opera in English in Irvine Bowl Friday night.

The opera was Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and, as if to underline the company's function as a proving ground for not yet major singers, the Juliet was Carol Todd, a California soprano who, since her appearance as Frasquita in that first "Carmen" five years ago, has had success in a number of national showcases.

* * * *

EXACTLY WHY musical director Eugene Ober chose Gounod's obsolescent version of this tragedy is hard to tell, though one must admit it makes for balanced operatic fare considering the rest of the season brings "Blueheard's Castle," "Master Pedro's Puppet Show," and "Don Pasquale," to the short Irvine Bowl stage.

Still, it is, at best, a weak, old-fashioned piece, almost ineveitably silly in translation, promising as a vehicle for great singers, but ungrateful to those who are less than that.

What we saw and heard on Friday was a pleasant revivial of the work, straightforward, mostly uninvolved, musically presentable, but less than exalted.

Best of the participants was the orchestra, led by Ober in a way which stressed the work's continuity and dramatic points. With the instrumentalists, Ober proved this score can be exciting. He had less success with the singers.

* * * *

MISS TODD and Dan Marek (he sings at New York's Metropolitan — but not as Romeo), two good-looking young Americans, were the fated couple, achieving a certain level of heat in the bedroom scene, but staying below that level most of the evening.

Both make nice sounds some of the time, though he tends to strain, she to croon. Neither seems to care much about words, or, at this point, credible stage movement. In the last regard, they had only token help from guest director Irving Guttman's OK staging.

Their associates ranged from the good and promising to the poor and unready. The better ones were Royce Reaves (Capulet), Marvin Klebe (Mercutio), Harold Enns (Friar Lawrence), Richard Dastrup (Tybalt), Jack vander Laan (Gregory), and Andree Jordan (Nurse).

Homer Greathouse's sets and costumes were pretty and functional.

Teens Go on Rampage When Bands Fail to Show

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Failure of jazz bands to show up to entertain 600 poverty teen-agers was blamed for a looting rampage after a special performance of a prison play.

An estimated 30 youngsters participated in the outbreak on Geary Street. Three stores were looted.

The Cellar cocktail lounge was invaded first. Bartender Frank Welch, 56, said he was knocked down and two youths stole $232 from the cash register.

The Boutique of California reported 30 invading juveniles stole $1,000 worth of dresses and costume jewelry.

Twenty-seven suede and leather jackets, valued at about $1,500, were stolen by a gang raiding the Silverman Fur Co.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY

Boyish Eddie Fisher Reaches 39

By JOANDEPPA

LONDON (UPI) — Jack Benny may have a perpetual claim on the age of 39, but the realization that boyish Eddie Fisher has reached the milestone on the road to middle age comes as a bit of a shock.

"I still think of him as a boy," mused one elderly member of his entourage, watching as the singer cut the tracks for his new album in a giant recording studio in north London.

But Fisher, who grew up amid a welter of headlines over his marital breakups with Debbie Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor, is under no such delusions.

"Do you know I have two grey hairs?" he asked, then broke into a parody of the song he had just recorded, "When the World Was Young, and I'm Getting Old. . ."

He walked back to the microphone and got ready to cut the next track, the theme from "Un Homme et Une Femme."

His small slim frame was hidden by the booth-like arrangment that separated him from the orchestra. Earphones framed his face like giant earmuffs as he watched the control room through glass windows in the screens.

* * * *

THE MUSIC BEGAN and even with that limited view, anyone could see he was giving everything to the song — just as he was when Eddie Cantor discovered him in a Catskill Mountains resort 18 years ago and introduced him to the big time.

Fisher walked back into the control room, pulled his blue knitted shirt over his white jeans and looked down at his mocassin type sneakers.

He liked the song, like the arrangement, but was worred about the English lyric. He just didn't feel it. He listened to a playback and shook his head.

The door opened behind him and for a few minutes — but only a few minutes — the song was forgotten.

It was Connie Stevens, the pert blonde singer who now wears his engagement ring, with cold supper from one of London's best Italian trattorias.

BETWEEN MOUTHSFUL, Fisher consulted with the record producers and decided to drop the song from the album. The musicians were sent home and Fisher, Connie and the sound crew stayed to hear an edited version of the song that was to become his new single, "Jerusalem," the tune which became the vitual battlesong of the Israeli troops during the recent war.

"When we were in Israel, everyone, the cabdrivers, people on the street, everyone, was singing it," Connie said, recalling their brief visit to Jerusalem between Fisher's recording sessions.

Together they listened carefully. Fisher made suggestions. So did Connie, but she made her suggestions to Eddie, who considered them before passing them on to the sound technicians.

It was obvious in this romance, Fisher's career came first — for both of them. It was far different from the days when his singing came to a virtual halt while he devoted himself to organizing Elizabeth Taylor's personal and professional life.

Only when the final corrections had been made on the recording and Fisher had to wait for the cutting of a duplicate tape, did he drop his preoccupation with the business at hand.

"It's not as hard work as the theatre. I lose five pounds a week when I do a stage show."

Fisher starts something new for him in December. He will produce the film version of the musical "Paint Your Wagon." Having never tried such a job, he admitted he didn't really know what it would entail.

* * * *

"I WAS LUCKY ENOUGH to acquire the film rights several years ago," he said. "We've got Paddy Chayefsky to write the screenplay, lyrics by Lerner and Loew, and Josh Logan to direct. I don't really think I'll have ton much to worry about."

SLEEPING ON THE LONG BEACH

2 Dutch Youths Spend Little, See a Lot of U.S.

By TERRY SATTORIA

ANDRE HAAS

ARNE VILIJN

Two Dutch boys who arrived in New York June 24 with $40 apiece have spent 61 days touring the expanse of Canada and the West Coast of the U.S. and still have $40 apiece.

Arne Vilijn, 19, and Andre Haas, 20, both from Ede, Holland, hitchhiked into Long Beach Tuesday night from San Francisco and promptly made their beds on what they came to town to see — the beach.

"Long Beach is world famous," they said, "not because of oil or because you just bought the Queen Mary."

THE REASON they picked Long Beach from the list of places to see in the United States was the beach — a "long" beach, ideal for their sleeping bags.

Fortunately a kind-hearted Long Beach resident invited them to be house guests, so they only spent one night on the beach.

The two, who are writing about their experiences and sending them to their hometown newspaper, are heading from Long Beach for Las Vegas, their last stop before Washington, D.C., where they want to see the John F. Kennedy Memorial before returning home Sept. 15.

Andre is studying at the Academy of Physical Education where he is learning to be a physical education teacher. Arne will enter the Royal Dutch Air Force Academy and plans to follow in the footsteps of his father, who is an air force officer.

Actually the youths didn't travl some 9,000 miles without spending money. They had to stop three times to work.

Once they picked cherries at Hamilton, Ontario, for three days at five dollars a day — a bad experience, says Arne. After that, the two spent six days at Expo '67.

MOVING ON to Winnipeg they managed to get another job washing school buses for three weeks. They made $200 apiece on that job. It was so successful they decided to take in the Pan American Games.

Still money conscious because there was a long time and way to travel, they spent the week of the games as guests — sort of.

They were able to get free meals by pretending they were athletes from the Netherlands Antilles.

After the games the duo traveled to Calgary, where they worked on a wheat farm for a couple of days to get a little more cash.

The two stopped at Yellowstone, then San Francisco.

After arriving in Long Beach, they made the inevitable trip to Disneyland, which they feel is more fantastic than they imagined.

"The greatest thing about America is personal freedom — to dress, act and do the things you want to do — without criticism from the older people," the two insist.

BUT THEY say Americans are too reserved.

"Friendly, but not warm and spontaneous — not like Italians — but then not as cold as Englishmen."

The two said their paper has been pleased with their stories, but they did make one mistake that brought down a storm of criticism on them and the paper.

The first thing they saw in America was a highway in New York. After seeing roadside signs and litter along the roadway they wrote home the state of New York was "dirty."

The two came because they wanted to meet the people and they decided to do it now when they are still young and unmarried because. . ."after you're married you can't."

Bank Plans Expansion

The Bellflower National Bank, opened on Feb. 15, 1965, has received a charter for a second branch office from the U.S. Comptroller of Currency, Charles Victory, bank president, announced this week.

The charter will provide a branch in the vicinity of Norwalk Boulevard and Imperial Highway in Norwalk. A shopping center is in the planning stage in the same area. The Bellflower National Bank's first branch office is now under construction at 4916 Bellflower Blvd., Lakewood, and is tentatively scheduled for opening on Nov. 1, Victory said.

No date was given for opening of the new Norwalk branch.

EYOA Summer Day Camps Wind Up Vacation Programs

More than 700 harbor-area youngsters will wind up a summer-full of activities Saturday, when 10 Southland day camps end their vacation programs.

Based at parks near settlement houses, public housing units and other low income areas, the programs are providing such activities as swimming, crafts and field trips.

At the same time, teenage counselors are receiving job experience and learning leadership skills, according to officials of the sponsoring L.A. Region Welfare Planning Council.

Funded by a $71,500 anti-poverty grant from the Economic and Youth Opportunities Agency, camps operate three days a week. Leading the children, aged 5 to 12, in day-long activities are 100 junior and senior counselors from low income families.

For 20 hours of work a week, they receive salaries ranging from $1.40 to $1.75 an hour.

"Day camp jobs give teenagers and young adults from these small ghettoes the opportunity to assume positions of importance within communities that are traditionally without organizations and leaders," said Joe P. Maldonado, executive director of the EYOA.

"At the same time, day camps provide educational and recreational opportunities for young children who might otherwise be spending the summer vacations playing in back alleys," he said.

San Pedro camps are at Rancho San Pedro and Toberman Settlement House. In Wilmington, camps are located at Dana Strand and Mahar House. Torrance-area camps are at Avalon Village and Hammerton. Others are at Harbor Hills in Lomita and Normont Terrace in Harbor City.

Fishermen Fiesta to Begin Oct. 13

Los Angeles' salute to its $300 - million commerical fishing industry — the annual Fisherman's Fiesta — opens a three-day run Oct. 13 in the port of Los Angeles at San Pedro.

More than 2,000 fishermen and their families are expected to take part in the weekend celebration, traditionally to pay thanks for the year's catches and to seek Divine blessing for good luck on voyages to come.

An estimated 250,000 persons are expected to view this year's fiesta, which will feature street bands, folk dancing by Yugoslavian, Filipino, Scandinavian, Italian, Japanese and Spanish-descended fisherfolk, and the parade of lavishly decorated fishing boats on Oct. 15, final day of the event.

AS WITH ALL past fiestas, the 1967 event will be presided over by its own queen, to be chosen at a beauty contest earlier in the month. A panel of judges, selected from the entertainment field, will select the winner.

Fiesta President Joseph Monti said nine skippers already have signed up for the boat-decorating competition, and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fishermen's Cooperative in San Pedro will coordinate planning for the queen competition.

Official kickoff for the fiesta will be the coronation ball, Oct. 13, in the Yogoslav-American Hall at San Pedro. Highlight of the program will be crowning of the Skipperette, fiesta queen. Gov. Ronald Reagan, Mayor Sam Yorty, members of the Los Angeles Harbor Commission and other government officials are expected to attend.

Bellflower School Pay Raises OKd

Effective Friday, more than 800 Bellflower Unified School District employes will receive salary increases ranging from 4.5 to 5 per cent. Cost to the taxpayers for the raises for teachers and non-certified will be approximately $270,000.

Pay hikes will average 4.5 per cent for teachers and 5 per cent for non-instructional workers. The salary increases were made possible by the additional $690,056 that will be received from the state under provisions of state legislation.

Under the new scale, a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree will start at $6,200 a year. Top pay for a 15-year veteran with at least 75 graduate units including a masters degree will be $12,550.

L.B. Navy Man Killed in Auto Near La Jolla

Services were pending Saturday for a Long Beach Navy man killed in a one-car accident on Interstate Highway 5 near La Jolla.

The victim, Michael L. Taylor, 21, of the USS Whetstone, died at 11:05 a.m. when an auto he was riding in veered out of control, struck a center divider and flipped.

The driver, Gary Sullivan, 24, also of the Whetstone, was treated for minor injuries at San Diego Naval Hospital. Sullivan told San Diego police he fell asleep at the wheel.

Bomb Explodes in Playground

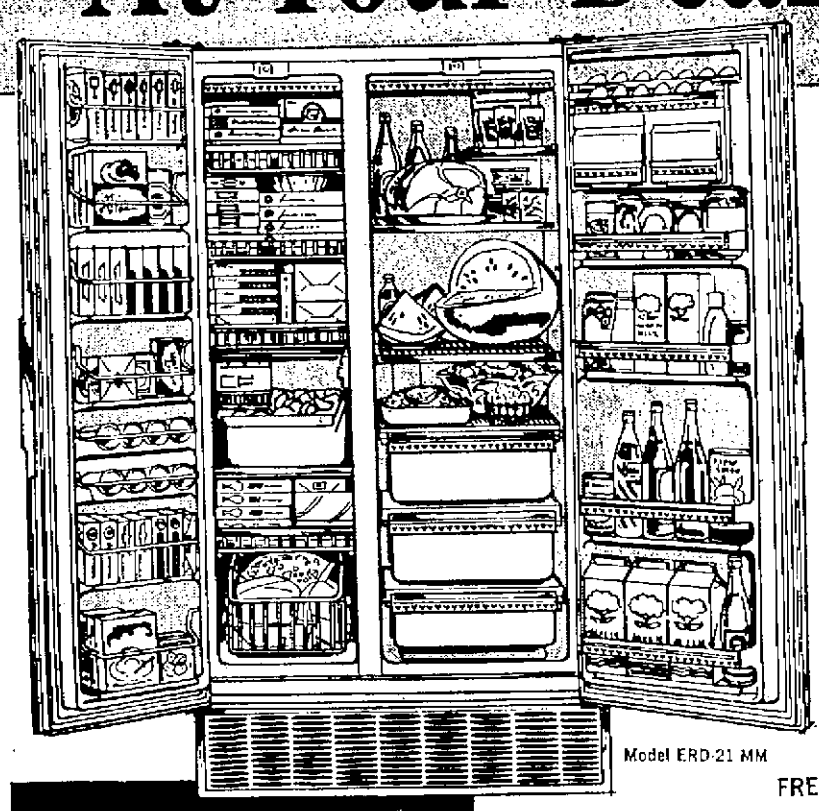

HONG KONG (UPI) — A terror bomb exploded in a playground Saturday and sent youngsters fleeing in panic.

No one was hurt in the blast, which was the second in a week to be aimed at children.

By SYDNEY OMARR

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Settlement of minor disputes indicated. Relative may act as go-between. Check messages. Return calls. Don't offend by appearing to neglect certain individuals. Be friendly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Give attention to monetary affairs. You could lose out on opportunity through carelessness. Not wise to delegate authority. Be there in person, alert, observant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high. Make appointments. See people in charge of projects. Exude confidence. Take special care with personal appearance. Be dynamic. Let others know your talents, abilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Important to be aware of behind-the-scenes activity. Excellent day for spreading influence, attending theater. Get out, around. Don't fall into trap of self-pity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with chance to make new friends. Some of your fondest wishes come closer to reality. Exude optimism. Inspire others to be happy. You will be regal.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22): Don't be bogged down with petty details, persons. Time to assert your intuitive intellect. Follow through on hunch. See important people. Study GEMINI message for hint.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Minor obstacles could create delay in travel, communications. Counter this through alternative methods. Highlight versatility. Don't take yourself too seriously. Smile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Complete important assignments. Live up to contract. Money due, but work will be checked. Know this. Be thorough. Have facts at hand. Some may demand accounting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Highlight ability to be resourceful. Aid could come from source previously opposed to you. Don't look gift horse in the mouth. Get facts without appearing arrogant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on work in relation to health. Means this may be good day to think of steps. Return calls. Don't offend by appearing to neglect certain individuals. Be friendly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Day favors romance, creative endeavors. Welcome opportunity to express yourself. Highlight willingness to accept challenge. Constructive changes due. Be ready to ride with tide.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You may be told to wait another day. But results will be forthcoming. Family members have a right to know what's involved. Don't be overly sensitive. Accept constructive criticism.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have a reputation for being original, willing to kick over the traces. You are also a romantic who attracts the opposite sex.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Gemini, Cancer. Special weed to Sagittarius: give special attention to mate, partner.

British, Arab Clash

ADEN (AP) — A British armored car opened fire with 76mm cannon at snipers on Saturday night and extensively damaged two Arab houses, an army spokesman said. No estimate of casualties was given.

Burial Insurance

Persons ages 1 to 80 years are now eligible to register under a plan of burial insurance. Costs only a few cents a day. In time of need, regardless of how little has been paid, the plan pays the face amount as specified. For example, $500 was paid recently on a funeral bill when only $4.58 had been paid.

Issued by an admitted legal reserved insurer. Good anywhere in the world. Other plans also available. For free information mail coupon today.

ENGINEERS

SYSTEMS ENGINEERS and PROGRAMMERS

Move now to Douglas Aircraft Division where you will have the opportunity to become involved in some of the most exciting and challenging programs of this decade.

Electronic Systems Engineers

Many positions are available right now for Systems Integration Specialists, Avionics Engineers & Systems Evaluation Specialists. Assignments will be in the conceptual design and analysis of advanced airborne command and control systems and tactical warfare and air defense electronics systems. The development of realizable avionic concepts in response to military requirements will be stressed in particular. These concepts will be analyzed to predict physical characteristics, reliability and cost. These challenging positions require that you have good electronic systems experience and an engineering degree.

Weapons Systems Engineers

Opportunities are available now in Operations Analysis, System Effectiveness & Economic Analysis. Assignments will be in the development of system/cost concepts to determine performance and feasibility parameters and detailed technical analysis of requirements. These positions require a degree and directly related aerospace system analysis experience.

Business Programmers

A variety of programming opportunities await you in one of the largest computer complexes in the industry. You will become involved in programming for various phases of business applications using the IBM system 360 computer series. Requires a minimum of 2 years of experience working with large scale equipment, operations systems and COBOL language.

Scientific Programmers

If you're experienced in systems simulation or modeling using GPSS, SIMSCRIPT or similar languages, we have exciting career challenges for you—and likewise if you're a programmer with Fortran experience. You'll be solving scientific problems using the IBM 360 Model 65 or 7094 computers. These positions require a minimum of two years of scientific programming experience with large scale equipment.

All-electric apartments from $80 per month!

Why rent anything but a Flameless All-Electric Gold Medallion Apartment when it's so easy to afford today!

The Gold Medallion Award tells you your new apartment is completely flameless—the easiest ever to care for—and fully equipped for the best of living.

Enjoy flameless electric heating—more comfort than you've ever known. Clean and quiet as sunshine too. Helps furnishing, drapes, carpets stay bright and new far longer.

Flameless electric water heating — the carefree way to have hot water instantly—without a hot, burning pilot light.

A modern all-electric kitchen—the cleanest and coolest!

Full "Housepower" wiring with all the circuits and outlets you'll ever need.

Fully insulated for maximum soundproofing, comfort and economy.

Move in now to cleaner, quieter, easier living in an all-electric apartment.

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

Arnold Berg was born and raised at Minot, N.D., where he graduated from high school and Minot State Teachers College. He later completed his education at the University of Minnesota and the University of Washington at Seattle.

A past-president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, Berg has been—and still is—one of the busiest men in Long Beach. His activities are manifold and are of local, county, state and national scope.

While president of the local Real Estate Board, Mr. Berg aided in the building program which resulted in a new home for the organization. Prior to entering his present profession, he managed several food firms, owned an ice cream company in Los Angeles, becoming affiliated with the Real Estate business in 1945.

In 1960 Arnold was chosen "Realtor of the Year." He was chairman of the Los Angeles County Council of Real Estate Boards from 1956 to 1967, and was elected to the board of directors, Los Angeles County Planning Commission in 1966.

Sandwiched in between all his civic and business activities, Berg does find time for an occasional game of golf, and hunts upland game in northern California and South Dakota.

Berg's Real Estate firm is headquartered at 418 East Broadway in Long Beach.

He has visited every state by travel-trailer and plans to do it again.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Glimmer of Glassboro Spirit in Geneva

THE WORLD

The spirit of Glassboro glimmered to life once more when Russia and the United States took a major step toward halting the spread of nuclear weapons.

After months of negotiations, both countries finally agreed last week on a draft text that could lead to a nonproliferation treaty.

The 18-member disarmament committee in Geneva had been mulling over separate Soviet and American texts for the past five years. But the talks deadlocked and there was no hint of any solution.

The first sign of a break-through came last October when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko indicated to Washington officials that Russia might accept the administration's word that the United States would not make its vast nuclear stockpile available to other nations, particularly West Germany.

BUT THE CLINCHER CAME at the Glassboro summit meeting in June between President Lyndon B. Johnson and Russian Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin where, U.S. officials said, both leaders gave "final, official, high-level confirmation" to push for an agreement.

Events moved rapidly after that, and two weeks ago the chief U.S. negotiator, William Foster, flew hurriedly to Geneva for the final stages of the talks.

On Thursday, both countries submitted identical texts of a draft treaty. Under its terms, the five major nuclear powers — the United States, Russia, Britain, Communist China and France — would be barred from giving nuclear weapons to nations that don't have them. The countries also would be prohibited from helping other nations develop atomic arms.

Despite remaining stumbling blocks, administration officials voiced cautious optimism that the long-sought treaty was at last within grasp.

AN UNPRECEDENTEDLY-SAVAGE Red Chinese mob attack on the British Embassy in Peking plunged relations between the two countries into crisis last week.

Smoke pouring from the chimney of Red China's London legation suggested that the Chinese were burning secret documents in anticipation of a possible break with Britain.

A horde of "Red Guard" teen-agers stormed the Peking Embassy Tuesday with firebombs, destroying the chancery and damaging the ambassador's residence. Charge d'Affaires Donald C. Hopson and at least three other members of the embassy staff were beaten.

THERE ALSO WAS A flareup of trouble in Hong Kong, the British, China-coast colony, which has become a bone of contention between the two countries. Communist mobs attacked border outposts, and in Hong Kong itself an anti-Communist Chinese comedian died after he was doused with gasoline and set on fire by Red terrorists.

In Britain, the Home (police) Office announced that Red Chinese traveling in the British Isles must carry passports. At latest reports, there were some 2,500 Communist Chinese living in Britain, but the order appeared to be leveled specifically at about 50 diplomats, newsmen and businessmen.

Helmeted British bobbies stood guard outside the Red Chinese legation.

THE WAR

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara differed with some of his generals again — this time over the effect of bombing North Vietnam.

Testifying before a Senate subcommittee, McNamara insisted that the bomb strikes over North Vietnam were only a supplement to the ground war in South Vietnam and that air attacks alone would never bring Hanoi to its knees.

McNamara said the Joint Chiefs' operating target list contains 427 targets — 68 of which even the joint chiefs did not recommend hitting. But the military leaders listed 57 targets — including major ports, jet airfield, and points along the buffer zone near the Chinese border — that they thought were prime targets. McNamara said, however, that strikes against these prime targets had not been authorized.

"Whatever the merits of striking these 57 targets may be, I believe it is clear that strikes against them will materially shorten the war," he stated.

THE U.S. COMMAND CONTINUED heavy air strikes last week near the Hanoi region. Six planes were lost Wednesday, another six Monday and one Friday, bringing to 660 the total of planes lost during the Vietnam conflict.

The Defense Department announced casualty figures for the previous week which showed that the U.S. casualty total had passed the 90,000 mark.

THE NATION

Two U.S. Army sergeants have been arrested on charges of conspiring to deliver national defense information to the Soviet Union, the Pentagon announced. Two top-ranking Soviet diplomats, named as conspirators, left the country before the arrests.

The Pentagon said Sgt. 1st Class Ulysses L. Harris of Neptune, N.J., and Sgt. Leonard J. Safford of Chillum, Md., were arrested on charges they conspired with Nikolai F. Popov, a first secretary at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, and Anatoloy T. Kiryev, a counselor of the Soviet mission at the United Nations.

The Defense Department said Harris, 38, and Safford, 31, "are alleged to have conspired to deliver information pertaining to the national defense to unauthorized individuals."

It said that on June 3 Safford received from Popov "a photographic device known as a roll-over camera." The department also accused him of delivering documents to the Soviet diplomat on two other occasions.

Harris was taken into custody Sunday in Korea and was returned to the United States. He is being held in the post stockade at Ft. Belvoir in Virginia.

Safford was taken into custody in Chillum on Aug. 19 and is being held at the Ft. Meade Post stockade in Maryland.

HE TALKED HATE — and dreamed of glory.

In 1972, he told people, he would be elected president of the United States on a Nazi party ticket.

This, he said in a magazine interview would be his campaign platform: "I'm going to completely separate the black and white races and preserve white Christian domination in this country, and I'm going to have the Jew Communist and any other traitors gassed for treason."

Friday the fantasies of George Lincoln Rockwell, 49, were punctured by a snipers bullet.

The self-appointed Fuehrer of the American Nazi party, who held Hitler as his prophet, was shot to death as he backed his 10-year-old car out of a shopping center in Arlington, Va.

John Patler, a purged "captain" of the American Nazi party, was charged with slaying his leader. Heir-apparent to the leadership of the American Nazis is Matt Koehl, national secretary of the party.

A SCHOOL DROPOUT who built a $2-billion industrial empire, died Thursday at his home in Honolulu. He was Henry J. Kaiser, 85.

"I always have to dream up against the stars," he once commented. "If I don't dream, I'll make it, I won't even get close."

Most of his dreams came true. He gained nationwide fame as a shipbuilder during World War II and then he put together an industrial giant that included steel, cement, real estate holdings and aluminum. For a brif, hectic time he even produced automobiles, but the venture was one of his few failures.

THE MYSTERIOUS Columbia University cigarette filter remained a mystery. Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of the university, testified Thursday in Washington before the Senate Commerce subcommittee that the dramatic announcement of the filter last month was premature.

"Until a testing program — a very extensive program — is completed and the results prove entirely satisfactory, we will not license any cigarette company to produce the filter anywhere in the world," Kirk said.

Republican committee member Thruston Morton of Kentucky, a leading tobacco producing state, told the same hearing that two major cigarette companies had tested the Columbia filter invented by Robert L. Strickman and had found it unsatisfactory.

Nevertheless, it was announced Friday that a major cigarette company has made an offer for use of the filter.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES last week passed a $2.8 billion foreign aid bill after a marathon session that saw $344 million slashed from the measure. Administration forces narrowly averted even greater cuts.

The reductions, along with earlier cuts in committee, brought the bill $563 million below the original aid request of the Johnson administration, but still left it nearly $200 million above the Senate version passed the preceding week.

Senate and House conferees must now reconcile the two measures.

THE WEST

A blanket stay of execution for 61 inmates on California's Death Row was ended by a federal judge who ordered them to make their appeals individually.

U.S. Dist. Judge Robert Peckham also rejected arguments that the cases should be heard under terms of the Civil Rights Act.

Judge Peckham had issued the blanket injunction July 5 on a suit filed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Legal Defense Fund and a group of San Francisco attorneys. The suit contended the condemned men had been denied due process and equal protection.

In ending the stay, the judge said his court would appoint attorneys for any of the men on Death Row who are not represented at federal habeas corpus proceedings.

IN A MESSAGE RELAYED by a top political emissary, President Johnson asked Democrats for the same kind of support they gave his Democratic predecessors in "the crises that darkened their days."

Postmaster Gen. Lawrence F. O'Brien brought the message from Washington to the Western States Democratic Conference in Los Angeles, which is making plans for the 1968 election.

In a prepared speech O'Brien said the President told him to say:

"The smoke of domestic and foreign violence is thick and blinding. Men of little vision panic, men of little knowledge of the crises of the past feel lost, men of little courage feel threatened.

"When panic, aimlessness and fear are in control, a nation is in danger of acting in ways foreign to its spirit and its history.

Johnson, in the message, said Democrats must show the people "the difference between easy and negative solutions to the nation's problems and the meaningful actions and programs of our party.

"I call upon every Democrat for the kind of leadership and support that made it possible for Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, and John F. Kennedy to meet and overcome the crises that darkened their days."

Democratic State chairman Charles Warren rejected a suggestion that the militantly liberal California Democratic Council be disbanded.

Warren, a Los Angeles assemblyman, said he disagreed with the CDC's emphasis on its opposition to the war in Vietnam, but he said there was no point in trying to read the group out of the party.

Democratic National Committeeman Eugene L. Wyman called for an end to the CDC Thursday. He said the organization had become a liability to the party.

LEGISLATION LIMITING expenditures for Medi-Cal during the current fiscal year was signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. Passed the last day of the legislature's regular session, the measure outlines procedures the state administrator of health and welfare shall use in limiting costs of the medical assistance program.

The bill limits expenditure of state funds for the program this year to $305 million. Week before last Spencer Williams, the health and welfare administrator, announced cutbacks in Medi-Cal services that will hold spending from all sources — including federal and counties — under the program to $600 million.

The cuts will total about $210 million. They go into effect Sept. 1.

Showdown: Rams-Chargers

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — The moment Ram and Charger fans have looked to for eight years becomes a reality today as the rival NFL-AFL forces bring interleague play into sharp focus at San Diego Stadium.

Kickoff is set for 1:30. Southern California football enthusiasts not interested in the Sunday drive may watch the game via delayed TV tape starting at 4 o'clock on Channel 2. It will be broadcast live over KABC.

The Chargers, founded in 1960 and coached by former Ram mentor Sid Gillman, have repeatedly challenged the Rams to combat. Although the Chargers might have been able to whip the Rams in some past years, they are substantial underdogs today . . . like 13 points.

Radio, Delayed TV

The game will be broadcast on radio KABC and KNX at 1:30 p.m. and tape-telecast on KNXT (2) at 4 p.m.

The Chargers are rebuilding after winning five division titles and an AFL crown in the first six years.

Gillman's defense, which rewrote AFL record books two years ago, sagged last year, and last week the Detroit Lions rolled easily, 38-17.

Long gone is his strong front foursome including Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison. The Chargers got end Tom Day from Buffalo and tackle Scott Appleton from Houston to bolster the line.

The Chargers had a good —but brief — running game against Detroit, led by Paul Lowe. But quarterback John Hadl had to go to the air after the Lions built up a quick lead. He threw four interceptions.

Lowe has the tough job of running through or around the Rams' front wall of Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Lamar Lundy and Rosey Grier. New Orleans, Dallas and Cleveland failed the test.

To Gillman, the merger of the American and National Leagues might be the greatest thing since the amalgamation of Adam and Eve. But you can carry a good thing too far, and that is what Sid possibly has done by scheduling three consecutive exhibition games with NFL teams.

LARSON'S LOSER:
Rams 39, Chargers 24

"If the merger hadn't come about," Gillman said, "we as a club would have been dead, assuming we followed the same policy."

He referred to the Chargers' policy of not extending lucrative bonuses to college players who also had been drafted by the NFL. The chargers failed to sign their high draft choices for two years, and they paid for it last year by skidding from the top of the Western Division to within one spot of the bottom.

Came the merger and common draft, however, and the Chargers started signing their draft choices again. They also scheduled three inter-league games with Detroit, Rams and Pittsburgh. No other AFL team scheduled more than two games with the NFL.

The Chargers split their first two games against AFL clubs and were blitzed by the Lions in their first encounter with the NFL.

San Diego's offense will be hampered by the absence of flanker Lance Alworth, who is sidelined with a bruised back. Other members of the club's veteran backfield — Hadl, fullback Gene Foster and half-

Dodgers Win in 12th, 2-1

By GEORGE LEDERER

Attendance at Dodger Stadium is down 459,743 and the deficit may hit a million when the season ends, but the fans are getting their money's worth, at least on a time basis.

Jeff Torborg's two-out single with the bases full in the 12th inning gave the Dodgers a 2-1 decision over the Cardinals Saturday night, setting a club record for extra-inning games.

It was the 22nd overtime match of the year, one more than the previous Los Angeles high, at the Coliseum in 1961.

The Dodgers have won 10 of the 22 marathons, seven of 13 at Dodger Stadium.

It's almost a 4-1 wager that the Dodgers will go into extra innings when Don Drysdale is the starter.

Drysdale has started 30 times and has been involved in eight overtime games. He has won only one, lost one and failed to get a decision in the others.

Five times in Drysdale's last nine starts have the Dodgers gone into the 11th inning or beyond. Big D has pitched well enough to win each one and has yet to get a decision.

Phil Regan (5-8) was Saturday's winner in relief over Hal Woodeschick (2-1), also relief.

Regan had been a standby starter until Drysdale, who has had back trouble, was well into his warmup. Drysdale came through with a clutch performance.

Torborg, the 17th player summoned by manager Walter Alston, gave the Dodgers a 2-1 edge in the current series and trimmed the Cardinals' league lead to 10½ games over Cincinnati.

Torborg singled to center on reliever Ron Willis' second pitch after Bob Bailey had led off with a walk, Jim Hickman had singled infield and Jim Lefebvre was walked intentionally. There were seven intentional walks in the game.

Wes Parker had four of the Dodgers' dozen hits.

Drysdale and Ray Washburn dueled through six scoreless innings and each yielded nine hits, Drysdale in 10 rounds, Washburn in 9 1-3.

Drysdale had to pitch his way out of trouble most of the evening as the Cardinals had men on base in seven of Drysdale's 10 innings. His best under-pressure effort was in the eighth, when the Cardinals tied the score at 1-1 and had the bases full, still with only one out.

Tim McCarver's third hit drove in the tying run after Roger Maris had singled infield and Orlando Cepeda lined a single to left.

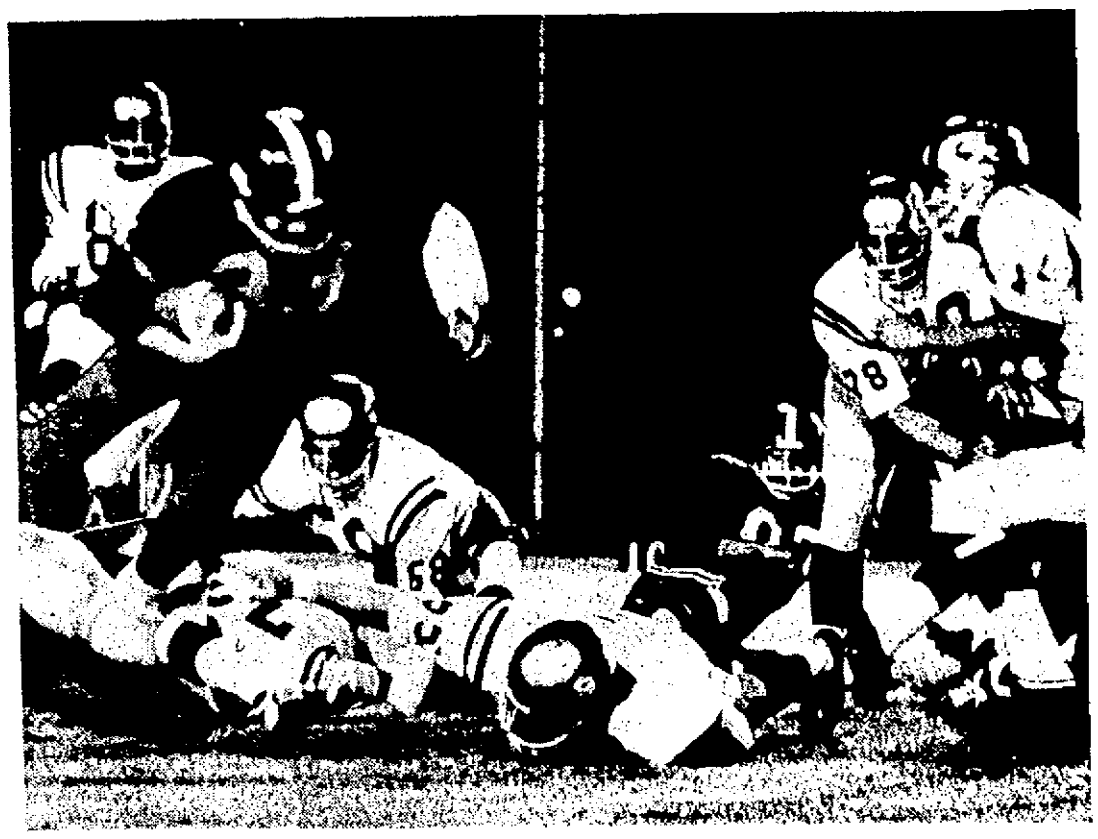

When Ron Fairly juggled the ball in right field, the runners took an extra base and pinch-hitter Phil Gagliano was walked intentionally to fill the bases. Drysdale got Julian Javier to pop to shortstop and Dal Maxvill flied to left, ending the inning.

Fairly had given Drysdale a 1-0 lead with a sacrifice fly, following singles by Al Ferrara and Parker in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers chased Washburn in the 10th, but reliever Joe Hoerner had a true line on the last two hitters with the bases full.

'THEY'D BE EIGHTH'

Dean Feels Angels Better Without Him

By ROSS NEWHAN
Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — Dean Chance required 19 days between no-hitters and the Angels wouldn't have any regrets if he were to throw one every start.

Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall continue to vindicate the trade.

They swung the bats which converted a 4-0 deficit into a 5-4 victory over Baltimore Saturday night in the opener of a singleheader.

The nightcap was flooded out in the fourth inning of a scoreless duel between Curt Simmons and Gene Brabender.

It amounts to a sweep for the Angels, who surge to within six and one-half games of today's American League leaders, the Boston Red Sox.

With a doubleheader scheduled this afternoon, the nightcap must be made up in Anaheim where the Angels are 42-24 compared to a road record which is now 23-38.

The game likely will be played on Sept. 5, following a labor day doubleheader between the Angels and O's.

It doesn't matter to Hall and Mincher. They've hit consistently in Anaheim and on the road, and even Chance admits that the Angels are better off without him.

Contacted in Cleveland following his second no-hitter of the month, Chance was asked where the Angels might be if he was still wearing a halo.

"They'd be eighth," said Dean. "They needed hitting. Mincher and Hall have given it to them."

Ejected by umpire Bill Haller in the fourth inning, Bill Rigney did not see Hall hit a two-run single and Mincher follow it with a three-run homer as the Angels scored all their runs in the sixth.

Rigney echoed Chance's sentiments.

"There was never a doubt in anybody's mind that Chance will win 20, but you can't second-guess the trade."

Mincher leads the Angels in homers (20) and RBI (62). Hall has 16 homers and 45 RBI.

Ironically, on the day following Chance's mini no-hitter of five innings, Mincher stroked the pinch-hit single which extended a seven-run, eighth-inning rally and crushed the Yankees.

This time Tom Phoebus was working on a one-hitter with a 4-0 lead when Bubba Morton, batting for Jim McGlothlin, singled to open the sixth.

Jose Cardenal doubled, Jim Fregosi walked to load the bases and Moe Drabowsky replaced Phoebus. Hall promptly rapped a single to right, reducing the deficit to 4-2.

Mincher followed, cracking a belt-high fast ball over the right-centerfield fence, burdened Drabowsky (7-4) with the defeat, rewarding an unenthused McGlothlin (11-5) with the victory.

"I didn't deserve it," said McGlothlin, "but, then, these things even out. I'll take it."

The ace had yielded an unearned run in the first and then three more in the fifth on singles by Luis Aparicio and Paul Blair and Frank Robinson's 25th home run.

With the Angel rally leaving McGlothlin the pitcher of record, Bill Kelso had the initial opportunity to save it. He walked the first two batters in the seventh, however, and Minnie Rojas responded with his 19th save.

It was a reassuring effort

GAME (37-13) AND GATE (950)

Admirals Lose Twice

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

The Long Beach Admirals, playing probably their final game in this city, sputtered badly in the second half Saturday night and dropped a 37-13 decision to the Seattle Rangers at Veterans Stadium.

A "crowd" of about 950 watched as the Admirals were able to sustain only one drive, that an 80-yard touchdown pass from Jack Reilly to Jack Tucker in the second quarter.

Admirals' general manager Bob Spitler, who a day earlier had said that the club would move to Portland, Ore., unless 6,000 paid admissions were recorded for the Seattle game, was thoroughly disappointed by the attendance.

He and owner-coach Shelby Calhoun will meet at 10 a.m. today to decide whether or not the Admirals will remain in Long Beach.

"I don't know how to get the people of this city out for a game," said the Continental League team's general manager. "We've tried everything. We had a deal with the Douglas Aircraft plant where for $1 the whole family could watch a game. That fell flat.

"We even cut the prices from $4.50 — which the rest of the league is charging — to $2.50, and that obviously didn't work either."

"The Portland officials greeted us with open arms. They said they'd cut the stadium rental from its normal 10 per cent to 5 per cent or even nothing. They showed us the encouragement that we haven't received in Long Beach."

Long Beach opened the scoring with Bob Humphreys kicking a 15-yard field goal. Twenty seconds later, Seattle notched its first touchdown with Marty Wyatt plunging for two yards.

The Rangers completely dominated the second half, scoring three touchdowns while holding the Admirals to a lone 35-yard field goal by Humphreys.

The big, hard-socking Seattle club netted 351 yards for the evening with Long Beach settling for 183. The Admirals gained only four yards rushing, which was exactly two more than they gained in last week's game.

Maybe the Roses in Portland will do more for the Admirals than the Ocean's salt air.

Boston on Top of AL First Time in 18 Years

CHICAGO (UPI) — Reggie Smith and George Scott each banged out three hits and drove in one run as the Boston Red Sox vaulted into first place Saturday for the first time this late in the season in 18 years, downing the Chicago White Sox, 6-2.

It was the first time since Oct. 1, 1949, the Red Sox have led the American League as late as August. The victory was their 12th in 15 games and moved Boston into a half-game lead over Minnesota.

Scott, who went 5-for-9 in Friday's doubleheader against Chicago, and Smith each collected three singles to help Jerry Stephenson win his second in as many decisions.

In the sixth, Don Buford singled, Wayne Causey doubled and Ken Boyer singled for both Chicago runs, bringing in Darrell Brandon to pitch the rest of the game for Boston.

The Red Sox blasted Chicago's Joe Horlen for 10 hits and five runs in 4⅓ innings for his fifth defeat.

Ex-Teammate Lauds Rick Barry's Jump

The much-publicized Rick Barry jump from the San Francisco Warriors to the Oakland club coached by his father-in-law in the new American Basketball Assn. is defended by Rick's former teammate, Paul Neumann, who now is Stanford's assistant coach.

A judge ruled recently that Barry can't play for anybody but San Francisco until next year. Whether Rick dons Warrior togs for the 1967-68 campaign remains a moot question, but Neumann — a conference dean for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and a Southern California visitor this past week — has a succinct opinion.

"I'm all for Rick's attempted move," said the soft-talking Neumann. "In pro sports the player is like a piece of livestock. He's got to look out for himself."

Neumann claims two other Warriors also associated with the Fellowship of Christian Athleses — former Long Beach resident Jimmy King and Clyde Lee — also agree with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes—former Long letes last season.

Paul, an almost all-America candidate during his playing days at Stanford, doesn't shout, but does give a candid opinion . . . which is a rarity among athletes these days.

"Two players formed the nucleus of the San Francisco Warriors last season," declared Neumann. "One was Rick and the other was Nate Thurmond. I understand Rick got knowledge of Thurmond's salary and wanted as much, which is understandable. He was turned down.

"Rick is a great player and has to look out for himself. He got a great offer from Oakland and just couldn't turn it down. I don't blame him."

The next Neumann remark may startle you, as it did me:

"Barry's contract definitely is up in September and if it is anything like mine, which I'm sure it is, it only states that a player cannot go with another NBA team. It makes no mention of another league. The judge, however, must have found something else."

INDULGING IN THE ASSUMPTION that Neumann is correct — and there's no reason here to think otherwise — maybe some athletes' contracts should be aired for public benefit.

Still going on an assumption, this writer fails to see where Barry's contract would differ from the one signed by Neumann . . . except, naturally, in salary terms. If Barry's contract was worded in the same language as Neumann's, Rick should have every right to play in ANOTHER league.

The only barrier would be the reserve clause — which compels a pro athlete to play an additional year with the same club, and which always has been tantamount to slavery.

"PEOPLE TALK ABOUT team loyalty," continued Neumann, "but pro sports is a unique sort of business. A company won't trade you, will it? But in pro sports you belong to the club and that club can do what it wants with you. If you are traded — and really nobody like to be traded unless they hate the boss — you either report or quit. You're a piece of livestock to be bought and sold as the teams see fit."

A regular with San Francisco last year until slowed by a knee injury, Paul explains his early retirement: "After six years in the pros I didn't want to become merely a guy who hangs on. I have four youngsters and when the Stanford opportunity came along I knew I should take it. I've seen too many players in all sports simply hang on, and I think it's pathetic."

PAUL NEUMANN had some thoughts about the new league, too.

"It may have its problems. The Rick Barry triangle perhaps was the key. It may not make it," declared Neumann. "Then again it might turn out like the American Football League.

"I admire Barry. He took a chance he thought was worth taking. San Francisco will really hurt without Rick, and also without Tom Meschery. They complemented each other well."

A pertinent comment: "I don't think Rick will go back to the Warriors. Pride means too much to him and he wouldn't give out his best. I think he'll sit out the year and then go to Oakland, if the league still exists."

It goes without saying that the Warriors without "One-Punch" Rick, who can deck anybody in the league with a solid blow, will be considerably less formidable than last season when they reached the summit.

A NATIONAL SPORTS MAGAZINE reported that Paul was witness to a verbal clash between Barry and his often-irritating coach Bill Sharman last year. The report was that subsequently a rift existed between the two.

"Yes, I saw it," responded Neumann. "It was a slight mixture of emotions during a playoff game. But I'd rather not comment on it. Rick is a player of great desire. He wants to be the best . . . and he's close to it, if you knock out Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell, who have the height and reach that Rick doesn't have.

"Really, though, Sharman is a fine coach. For the most part, he and Rick got along well."

WITH REGARDS TO LEE, who left the Warriors to sign with the fledgling New Orleans team, then returned to Baghdad-by-the-Bay, Neumann signed off:

"Clyde is an excellent pivot man who played Russell and Chamberlain even last year when Thurmond was hurt. I think he made a legitimate move in jumping to New Orleans.

"But he's such a niceguy and doesn't want to hurt anyone, so somebody apparently talked him into returning. I think HE could have made it legally stick."

Round-and-round goes the merry-go-round.

RALLY KILLERS

Alvis Hitting Knocks Twins Out of First

CLEVELAND (AP) — Max Alvis drove in three runs with a homer and single Saturday and the Cleveland Indians killed four Minnesota rallies with double plays on the way to a 5-2 victory that knocked the Twins out of first place in the American League.

The loss, which ended Minnesota's four-game winning string, coupled with Boston's 6-2 victory over Chicago, dropped the Twins into second place, one-half game behind the Red Sox and one-half length in front of the White Sox.

Alvis rapped a two-run homer in the fourth inning, breaking up a tight pitching duel between winner Steve Hargan and Minnesota's Jim Kaat.

The two hurlers combined to retire 22 men in a row before Wagner singled and Alvis smashed his 17th homer.

Hargan got 13 straight before Harmon Killebrew singled past third in the fifth. Sandy Valdespino then hit into a double play.

Wilson Wins 18th, Tigers Trail by 1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Earl Wilson became the major league's first 18-game winner Saturday night, pitching Detroit to a 5-2 victory over Kansas City as Al Kaline drove in two runs and Norm Cash homered.

The Tigers, in fourth place in the American League, one game behind league-leading Boston, have won seven of their last nine games, Chicago is in third place, one percentage point ahead of Detroit.

Wilson, who has lost nine games, struck out 10 batters, walked two and allowed six hits. He gave up the Kansas City runs that ended a 22-inning scoreless streak in the fifth when Bert Campaneris and John Donaldson singled in runs.

2ND CONSECUTIVE SHUTOUT

Wise Hurls Phils to 3rd

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rick Wise's six-hit pitching and a second-inning homer by catcher Gene Oliver gave Philadelphia a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night and sent the surging Phillies into third place in the National League.

It was the Phillies' sixth straight victory and the 19th in their last 27 games.

Oliver's 10th homer — and sixth against the Pirates — decided a duel between Wise (8-9) and southpaw Bob Veale (14-7), who allowed only one other hit in the seven innings he worked.

The Pirates threatened in the sixth when Roberto Clemente singled with two out and Willie Stargell followed with a double to right center. But Clemente was nailed attempting to score on a Don Lock-Cookie Rojas-Oliver relay.

Wise, who blanked New York Tuesday night, hasn't allowed a run since Aug. 17 when the Cubs scored off him. Wise is now 8-9 for the season, including five straight home victories. Wise struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

3rd Strong Win in Row for Maloney

HOUSTON (UPI) — Injury-plagued Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds figures he is somewhere between 75 and 95 per cent healed, but if he gets much better, they are going to have to create a super league for him.

In his last three games, the fireballing righthander has allowed only 11 hits and one run. He won his third successive Saturday, 6-1 over the Houston Astros in the first game of a day-night doubleheader.

Jimmy Wynn and Bob Aspromonte drove in two runs each as Houston defeated Cincinnati, 8-6, and gained a split.

ANGELS WIN, 5-4

by Minnie, who has been laboring through a hot August.

"This is first time in month I've pitched good," said Rojas. "Imagine, only three good innings in one whole month.

"But I think I have my second wind now. I hope it's not too late. We still have chance."

Not exactly.

Chance is with Minnesota. The Angels have Mincher, who walks softly but carries a big stick.

"I couldn't be happier," said Mincher in a filibuster. "I don't care if the Twins win it. I'm delighted with the Angels."

The feeling, of course is mutual.

ANGEL OF DAY

DON MINCHER smashed 20th home run in sixth inning, driving in three runs to give Angels 5-4 win over Orioles.

ANGEL ANGLES: Rigney was elected when Haller, umpiring at third base, reversed a ruling by plate arbiter Jim Odom. McGlothlin, with two men on, had fielded Mark Belanger's swinging bunt down the line and thrown out the O's infielder. Odom ruled the ball fair, but Haller, with the play over, said it was foul . . . Rigney insisted that Haller had no voice in the play and raised his own in protest. His choice of words offended the ump . . . Billy Herman served as interim manager although it's suspected that Rig pulled the strings from a hideout in the tunnel.

Rain also threatens today's doubleheader which doesn't start until 2:30 edt. Angels are tentatively scheduled to arrive in L.A. at 1 a.m., but 4 a.m. might be a better guess. They open next to-last home stand Monday night with a four-game series against Detroit. Cleveland follows for three, then Baltimore Angeles send George Brunet (11-16) and Jack Hamilton (7-5) against Wally Bunker (3-5) and Jim Hardin (3-1) today.

F. Robinson complained that his double vision has not cleared completely. "I don't pick up the pitch as quickly," said Robby. "Actually, it probably makes me a better hitter for average. I wait on the pitch longer and I hit more to the opposite field. I can't jack-up and fry for the long ball." . . . Entering Saturday's action, Robby was hitting at a .330 clip since his return on July 29. He missed 32 days.

Rosewall Earns Late Revenge

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ken Rosewall, the little tennis artist from Australia, gained revenge on Lew Hoad on Wimbledon's center court Saturday after waiting 11 years.

Rosewall defeated Hoad, 6-2, 6-2, in the semifinals of a $14,000 tournament, the first professional event ever staged on the sacred lawns of the all-England club.

The last time the two men played each other on the center court here was in the final of the Wimbledon tournament of 1956. Hoad won that match and the Wimbledon title. Both players turned professional within two years.

In the other semifinal, Rod Laver of Australia overpowered Andres Gineno of Spain, 6-3, 6-4. The final is set for Monday.

JAPAN WINS SMALL FRY WORLD TITLE

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Japan won the Little League World Series for the first time in the 21-year history of the annual classic for small fry with a 4-1 victory Saturday over North Roseland of Chicago.

Masahiro Miyahara, a 194-pound righthander who pitched a one-hit shutout in the first game of the series, won his second game, allowing only three hits and an unearned run.

The Japanese were only the third foreign team ever to win the Little League title. Monterrey, Mexico won it in 1957 and 1958.

Newton-Edgmont, Pa., won third place by nipping Linares of Mexico 2-1 in a rain shortened four-inning game. Dan Kelley's two-run homer provided the winners with both of their runs.

With three on and one out, Jim Lefebvre lined Hoerner's first pitch to Gagliano at third and pinch-hitter Jimmy Campanis lined to Javier behind second.

St. Louis left three on against Regan in the 11th when Dave Ricketts batted for Hoerner and grounded out to end it.

The Cardinals also stranded a pair in the 12th for a total of 15.

MAY BE OUT FOR YEAR

Juan's Future Uncertain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ailing Juan Marichal, San Francisco's $100,000 pitcher, decided to remain on the Giants' active roster Saturday but there was some question as to when he would pitch again.

San Francisco general manager Charles (Chub) Feeney made the announcement after meeting with Marichal for about 10 minutes prior to the start of Saturday's doubleheader against Atlanta.

The high-kicking right hander told Feeney he would remain with the club and undergo physical examinations, but gave no indication when he would take his regular pitching turn.

The Dominican Dandy walked off the mound Friday night after the Braves had pounded him for 11 hits in 4⅔ innings. The Giants lost 5-1 for their fourth setback in the last five games.

"I think that will be all this year," Marichal said after the game. "My leg hurts all the time and I can pitch no more."

Marichal, who came to terms for $100,000 last spring after holding out for $125,000, had been idle since Aug. 1 because of a sore muscle in the back of his left thigh.

This month he had been scheduled to start several times. On each occasion he said the leg still hurt.

"I tried too quick," the handsome Marichal declared after the Braves had sent him to the showers. "The leg hurts worse than before. You can't try something that's impossible and it's impossible now for me to pitch."

Marichal, 14-10 this year, went into the campaign seeking to become a 20-game winner for the fifth consecutive season.

He went the distance Aug. 1 to defeat Pittsburgh 3-1 with a six-hitter. The right-hander said he then injured his leg while running in a game against the Mets in New York.

Valentine's Homer in 9th Nips Yanks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred Valentine's two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning gave Washington a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

The Yanks had scored three runs in the eighth inning, taking the lead on Jake Gibbs' double, but Mike Epstein got a leadoff single in the ninth off Jim Bouton.

After being sacrificed to second, Steve Hamilton came in to pitch and gave up Valentine's ninth homer.

Rams Meet Chargers Today

back Lowe — and end Gary Garrison of Long Beach are expected to provide the scoring thrust.

San Diego's pass defense, which proved to be ineffective against the Lions, may be even weaker today. Starting cornerbacks Speedy Duncan and Nat Whitmyer are sidelined with injuries.

Directing the Ram offense will be Bill Munson, getting his first start since November, 1965. Roman Gabriel, regular last year, has started the three preseason games for the Rams this summer, all of them victories.

Bill has hit only 7 of 24 pass attempts for 54 yards and one touchdown — the one deciding last week's 24-17 victory over Cleveland.

Before being hurt in the 10th game of '65, Munson connected on 144 of 267 for 1,704 yards and a .539 completion average.

It's Bucky Pope's turn to start at flanker where he, Bernie Casey and Tommy McDonald all have had previous shots.

On defense, coach George Allen announced one change. Chuck Lamson pulled a hamstring muscle in practice and will turn the left safety job over to Claude Crabb.

SHOWDOWN AT LAST, BUT . . .

Wrong Time and Place

"It would be very enjoyable beating the Rams. It would be compounded enjoyment . . . them being NFL and also the other Southern California football team."—Ron Mix of the San Diego Chargers.

At least until he sees the movies, for Sid Gillman it's just another football game today.

Just because the team he's facing once canned him because he couldn't handle his job, and the town that team represents then jeered him off to the bushes for trying to pass off a bunch of semipros under a phony big league label, you don't think it really means anything, do you?

Of course not. It's just another football game.

The players, too, tend to follow the coach's line, perhaps as insurance against the consequences of a game that has all the earmarks of a tragic mismatch. But they would be less than honest to persist in that theme beyond the point of reason.

"The only challenge the Rams really pose is that they're an excellent football team," says Ron Mix, the well known offensive tackle — perhaps the only well-known offensive tackle in the American Football League. But then his conscience, and his intelligence, get the better of him.

"Let me take that back," he says firmly. "I think it is more important than just merely a game. I wasn't trying to disguise anything, but as I was talking I remembered all my friends from L.A. I think it has a little special importance."

MIX — OR GILLMAN — would be insulting the intelligence of any knowledgable observer to say otherwise. The only problem is that today's game will be played at the wrong time and in the wrong place.

"My regret is that at a time when I expected that the Chargers would be a super-team, we're in a rebuilding stage," Mix says, well aware that the Chargers reached a peak three or four years ago when the Rams were at the bottom of their cycle. Now the trends are reversed.

The Detroit Lions administered a gentle humiliation to the Chargers, 38-17, before the hometown fans in the flashy new stadium last week. The Rams may not be so kind.

"We're just coming off a sound whipping," Mix says honestly, "But I still believe that the two leagues are competitive. It would have been nice to have a good showing against Detroit, because then this game would really have taken on importance. It would have been a major rivalry with busloads of fans and a lot of wild betting. But now I'm afraid we dimmed some of the enthusiasm of the San Diego fans."

IF MIX SOUNDS a bit above the "we'll-kill-de-bums" class of athlete, it's not surprising.

Around San Diego they know him as the "Intellectual Assassin," a title no doubt dreamed up by a Chargers PR guy formerly associated with this newspaper but nevertheless an accurate reflection of his character.

Mix played his high school football at Hawthorne High, toiled three years under Don Clark at USC and has been pursuing studies of the law since leaving town with the Chargers in 1961. Otherwise, only Paul Lowe and Ernie Wright — and Gillman — remain among the original Los Angeles Chargers.

In the AFL especially, the game seems to be getting tougher every year, which may force Mix into a law career before his ability is exhausted. He has three semesters to go for his degree but hasn't decided on a speciality.

RICH ROBERTS

"It sounds kind of attractive to become a divorce attorney," he muses, "to be that first strong shoulder that the weeping girl has to lean on."

Ron was about the first big score for the AFL. The Baltimore Colts also drafted him first but the NFL's refusal to take the new league seriously made the decision easy.

"I guess they (the Colts) felt it was enough of an honor to make me their No. 1 draft choice, but they wouldn't show their interest by paying money," Mix recalls. "The Colts offered (a salary of) $8,500. The Chargers paid me $12,000 and a $5,000 bonus."

Small change for a hot prospect? Not in those days. The AFL did very well signing the college crop that year, although Mix feels the founders "made a big mistake; what they should have done was immediately raid the other league.

"They could have turned it into a first-rate operation almost overnight. At any rate, they didn't do that, and it was rather easy playing then. I never regretted the move at all. The comparisons were inevitable, but they didn't begin to bother me until a few years later."

TODAY MIX WILL shoulder a portion of AFL prestige in an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with the Rams' "Fearsome Foursome," a title nurtured by a Rams PR guy also formerly associated with this paper, but also awesomely accurate.

Specifically, Ron will be mixing it up with David Jones. "I haven't seen him play, except once on television, but I know his reputation and his reputation says he's the best."

So as the Intellectual Assassin peers through his contact lenses at The Deacon today, it will be interesting to ponder their respective roles.

"I think the consensus of the coaches' opinions is that it takes more ability to play offense," Ron says. "There's more to learn—but I don't think it takes even average intelligence.

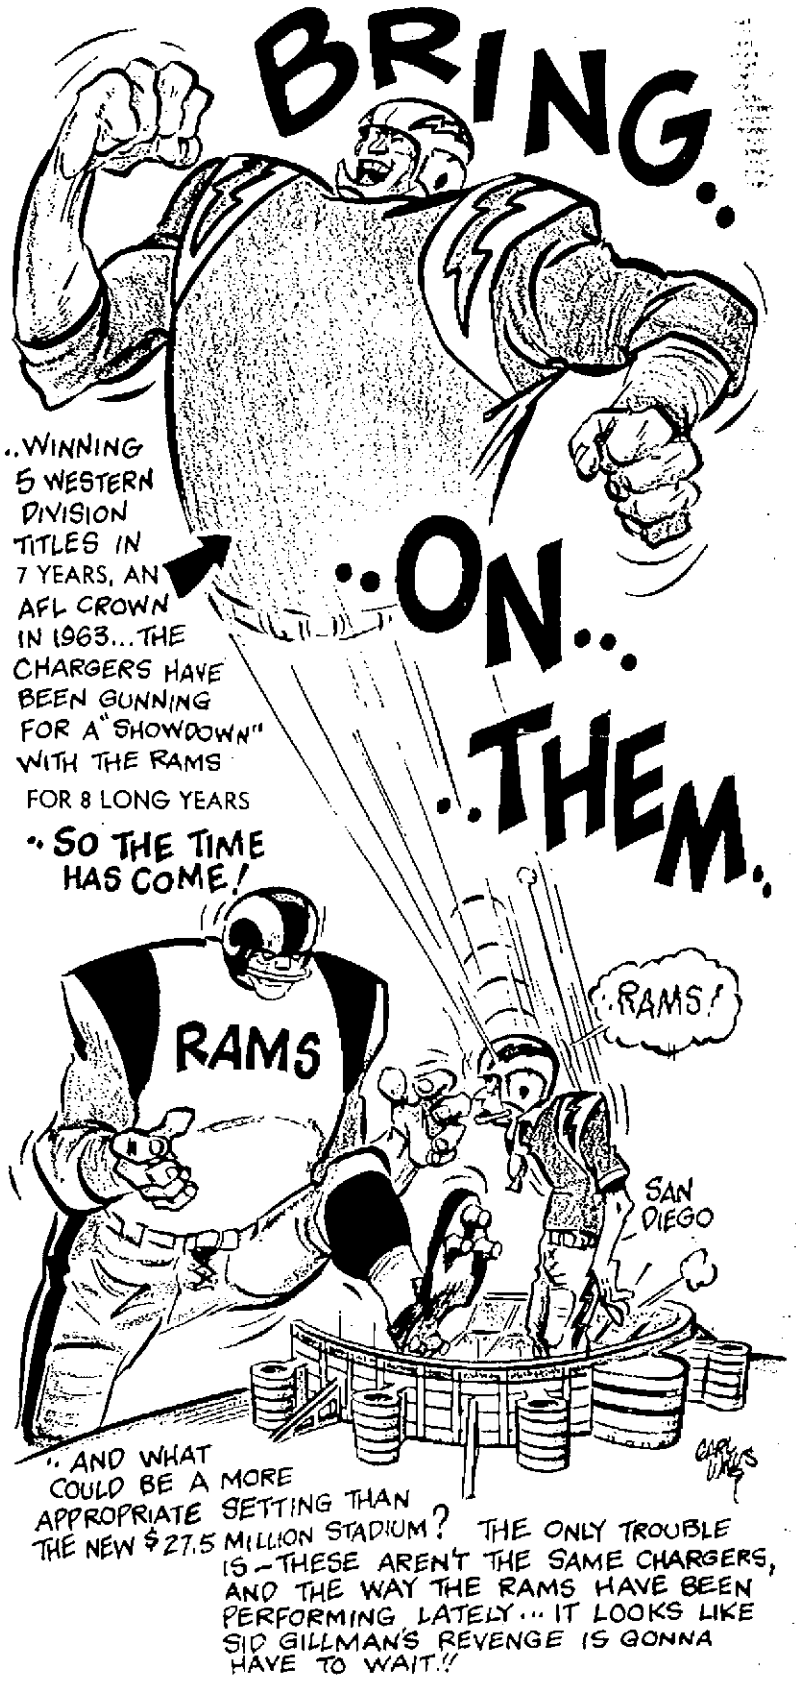

"A great part of it can be attributed to instinct and flair for the game. The rest of the stuff can just be drilled in by repetition. Even a dodo can learn. You can teach a dog that way. That's the way they treat us!"

PRO-O-RAMA: The Rams aren't taking the Chargers lightly, and might even give Dick Bass and Tommy Mason their first taste of action today. With the Kansas City Chiefs' game only five days off, the Rams will need all their guns if they expect to stay afloat. . .For the fourth time this season Allen will call on Les Josephson to do the bulk of the fullbacking, not out of any lack of respect for S.D., but to sharpen up a man who could be of outstanding value. . . .In pre-season competition, Josie has run with the football more than any other player, and has averaged 4.33 yards per carry. . . . The Rams' defense, which has yielded 30 points in three outings, has not given up a touchdown on the ground. All the TDs have been registered through the air.

Kilmer Hot as Saints Stun 49ers

PORTLAND (UPI) — Bill Kilmer fired three first-half touchdown passes to lead the New Orleans Saints, the newest member of the National Football League, to a 24-10 exhibition victory over San Francisco Saturday night.

It was the third consecutive victory over an NFL team for the Saints, who started the season with a narrow loss to the Rams.

Kilmer, formerly of the 49ers, had scoring passes of 25 yards to Walter Roberts, 4 yards to fullback Jim Taylor, and 5 yards to Rookie John Gilliam.

Kilmer and Gary Cuozzo split the Saint's quarterbacking duties, with Kilmer playing the first half and Cuozzo the second. Kilmer hit 13 of 19 passes for 126 yards.

New Orleans, which held a 21-3 halftime lead, got its other points on a third quarter field goal from the 23 by Charles Durkee, a rookie from Oklahoma State.

Nelsen's Passes Spark Steelers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Quarterback Bill Nelsen passed for three touchdowns to lift the Pittsburgh Steelers out of the winless column with a 24-13 victory over St. Louis in a national Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

Although dumped repeatedly for losses by the Cardinals' pass rush, Nelsen put together three scoring drives for a 24-6 lead before St Louis got its first touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Nelsen's scoring strikes went to Dick Compton, rookie Chet Anderson and Roy Jefferson.

Jim Hart, the second-year quarterback filling in for Charlie Johnson who is in the Army, set up St. Louis' only touchdown with a 26-yard pass to Davie Williams and then sent Johnny Roland over from the one on the next play.

Pittsburgh's first two touchdowns followed alert defensive plays — a blocked field goal attempt by the Cardinals' Jim Bakken and Paul Martha's interception and 24-yard return of a Hart pass.

The third touchdown, a 40-yard pass to Jefferson, came after there incompletions and a defensive holding penalty which gave the Steelers a first down.

Colts Defeat Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — The Baltimore Colts turned a Detroit fumble and a pass interception into a soggy 14-5 victory over the Lions Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Colts were leading 7-5 with 1:09 to play when former Michigan defensive star Rich Volk intercepted a Karl Sweetan pass and ran 45 yards for the clinching touchdown.

Jim Gibbons caught a five-yard first-period pass from Milt Plum, fumbled when hit, and Baltimore rookie Bubba Smith from Michigan State recovered on the Detroit 30-yard line.

John Unitas, who played the first half for the Colts, directed Baltimore to a touchdown in six plays. Tom Matte scored on a five yard burst at 7:33 of the first period.

Sweetan, who took over for Plum at quarterback for Detroit in the second half, moved Detroit to a field goal on a 16-yard boot by Garo Yepremian in the fourth period.

A bad pass from center sailed over Baltimore punter Dave Lee's head into the end zone and resulted in a two-point safety for Detroit.

A torrential downpour during the first half turned the field into a quagmire and hampered both offenses.

Jurgensen, Gogolak Pace Redskins Win

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Sore armed Sonny Jurgensen passed for a touchdown and Charlie Gogolak booted a pair of second half field goals in boosting the Washington Redskins of the National Football League to a 13-7 victory over the penalty plagued Boston Patriots of the American League Saturday before an exhibition game crowd of 15,523 at Harvard's Stadium.

Jurgensen, who has calcium deposits in his right shoulder, gave his ailing wing a stiff test, playing three quarters as the NFL took a 7-3 advantage over the rival AFL in the first year of preseason meetings.

The 11-year pro veteran from Duke took charge by leading Washington to an 80-yard touchdown drive the first time the Redskins had the ball.

Nunn, Van Blom Win National Rowing Crowns

PHILADELPHIA (Special) — John Nunn and John Van Blom, members of the Long Beach Rowing Assn., won two of the eight national rowing titles up for grabs Saturday in the U.S. Rowing Championships.

Nunn, who stands 6-5½, captured the national singles championship.

Van Blom, a 19-year-old sophomore at Long Beach City College, was the titlist in the quarter-mile singles sculling competition.

The host club, Vesper, captured three titles to build a huge lead for the club championship with an overall total of 84 points. Detroit is second with 34.

Thorley Wins Drags

Doug Thorley of Long Beach beat Don Prudhomme in a special match race at Orange County International Raceway Saturday night. Thorley clocked at ET of 8.15 for an average speed of 179.64.

Mets, Pirates in Funny Film

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: One of the top films of the fall-winter movie season will be "The Odd Couple" starring Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

As in their latest film, "The Fortune Cookie," it will have a sports flavor.

Matthau plays a sports writer separated from his wife who is rooming with a friend, Lemmon. The latter has a phobia for tidiness . . . and, needless to say, his new roommate is a sloppy character.

Matthau, of course, stole their last film, winning an Academy Award for his classic role as Lemmon's brother-in-law, "Whiplash Willie." Betting in some circles is that Walter will pull it off again.

One of the highlights of the forthcoming film will be a 40-second sequence in which Matthau in the press box at Shea Stadium misses a triple play when Lemmon calls him with the urgent message not to eat any hot dogs as he is cooking frankfurters for their dinner.

The triple play was filmed by a 75-man movie crew, the Mets and Pirates at a cost of $40,000 prior to a game earlier this summer between the two clubs. Those involved had just a half-hour to complete the job.

Roberto Clemente of the Pirates, who was to hit into the triple play, pulled out at the last minute, apparently offended at being offered only $100. Then Maury Wills refused to be one of the baserunners when his agent advised him that he might run into union trouble because of his off season career in show biz.

And when Harry Walker, then manager of the Pirates, had to give up 30 minutes of batting practice, he flipped his lid.

BUT IT ALL TURNED OUT beautifully . . . as Bill Mazeroski replaced Clemente at bat and Donn Clendenon took over for Wills.

The triple play was positioned with Clendenon the runner at first, Matty Alou at second and Vernon Law at third.

Mazeroski stepped up to the plate and promptly hit a couple of line drive singles before successfully bouncing into the triple play.

He tapped to the Mets' Ken Boyer, who stepped on third for one out and then threw to Jerry Buchek, who got the next out at second. Buchek then completed the three-ply killing by throwing to Ed Kranepool at first.

All the time, Matthau in the press box, with his back to the field, is discussing frankfurters with Lemmon.

Ironically, the Pirates went on to blow the game by batting out of turn, prompting one wit to comment they ought to leave that in the film as one of the comedy highlights.

Incidentally, one of the original stage play's funniest lines is recorded when the sports writer tells his roommate, "I been the highest-paid sports writer in the East for the last 14 years . . . and me and my wife, we saved $8.50 in pennies!"

WITH HERMAN FRANKS being criticized from all sides for the failure of the Giants to make a stronger run for it this season, the rumor has popped up again that Willie Mays may be given the managerial job next season.

Willie, it is said, is eager for the chance . . . but the betting is strong that he won't get it — at least for the time being.

A top baseball man, pointing to the racial unrest, says several clubs wouldn't mind being the first major league team to hire a Negro manager.

"But," he explains, "they don't want to be put in the ticklish position of being the first to have to fire one!"

DEL MAR CAN BOAST of being the only horse racing track with its own theme song.

Del Mar's slogan, "Where the Turf Meets the Surf," was coined by the wife of one of Bing Crosby's writers in 1937 and, after James Monaco wrote the music, Bing and Johnny Burke wrote the words.

A recording by Bing, the first president of Del Mar, is still played before the first race and following the last race each day.

Incidentally, Bing's silks were carried to victory in the very first race at Del Mar when his maiden 2-year-old, High Strike, romped home.

Del Mar's unique architecture was inspired by the old Spanish missions and its buildings still constitute the largest adobe construction project in California history. An entire hill was used to provide material for the adobe bricks.

WITH THE GRID SPORT arriving on the scene, here's some interesting "firsts" in the college football:

The oldest football stadium — Harvard Stadium built in 1903.

First intersectional game — 1881, Yale defeating Michigan, 17-0.

First regularly-scheduled game to be televised — Penn vs. Marland, 1950. First coast-to-coast TV game — Illinois vs. Wisconsin, 1951.

Coldest game — In 1944 when University of Nevada defeated the Alaskan Air Transport Command, 12-0, in game played at Edmonton, Canada. Temperature was nine below zero.

ROOKIES STARVING

Tough Trail to Golf's Easy Money

By DOUG IVES

One look at the official money-winning list in pro golf and dad is likely to rush out and buy junior a set of clubs.

After all, maybe not everyone can match the $138,000 Arnold Palmer has pocketed this year, but the No. 10 man, Don January, has earned $60,000 and even a virtual unknown like Charles Coody has collected a whopping $36,000.

Easy money, you say?

Not at all. Half the golfers on the pro tour barely make expenses and, what's worse, the rookies are starving. If a sport's lifeblood is its youth, then golf is anemic.

This reporter has charted the 32 rookies who set out in January to gain some of golf's gold, which now has surpassed the $4.5 million mark for some 40 sanctioned tournaments.

Two years ago 17 men came out of the PGA Approved Tournament Players School and only one of them, John Schlee, showed a profit. Their sponsors' money exhausted most of the others have since given up or lost their playing privileges.

This year, the ATP School yielded what it advertised an outstanding group. The 32 survivors waded through 144 holes on a tough Florida course and left 63 others without official sanction.

What has happened to them in eight arduous months on the pro circuit you wouln't believe. Only THREE have earned more than $7,000, which is about what eight months of expenses would add up to for a frugal man.

The top dog, ironically, is Rives McBee, who qualified last in the ATP School. Thanks to one big check of nearly $10,000 in the '500' Speedway Open, his total winnings show $12,059.

The next two leaders aren't even American citizens and shouldn't be called rookies. Allan Henning of South Africa ($11,840) and Bob Stanton ($8,748) played some tour golf in their countries and, as a result, are doing well here.

Statistically, they are better than McBee. Both started after the winter circuit and have finished in the money in half of the tournaments they have entered, and both have gained momentum in the last two months.

Of the original rookie crop, only 22 are still able to pursue their careers on a full-time basis due to, of course, a shortage of funds. All had sponsors (as required) before they started but many have found life on the tour unbearable.

Incredibly, eight players have not made a nickel of official money. John Joseph, a Californian, has gone to the post 19 times without success for the worst record.

Monty Kaser ranks No. 4 and yet his gross receipts are a paltry $3,870. That means the other 19 guys who have made at least a few bucks still qualify for the bread line.

Unofficial money (non-PGA sanctioned events) spends just as well as official money, but rookies don't easily get into tournaments like the Crosby and the Hope and don't make many pro-am fields. As for endorsements, they are virtually nil.

Arnold Palmer-brand golf balls sell rapidly, but who buys one signatured by Bruce Cudd?

Starting next year there will be a few subsidiary tournaments for rookies, but the purses will be small. The token gesture by PGA officials is the first step to keep its young from dying off before they can get a foothold.

As of now, though, statistics from this campaign don't paint a rosy picture.

The 32 players, combined, have entered tournaments 494 times and finished in the money 76. That's a meager 11.9 per cent. Another 15.4 per cent qualified for four rounds but didn't make a check.

Most of the time the rookies didn't come close to a paycheck. On 178 occasions (36.2 per cent) they didn't make the 36-hole cut and 180 times (36.5 per cent) they didn't even qualify to get into the tournament.

Jim Weichers, unquestionably one of the country's top amateurs for several years, figured to make it big as a pro. He has played 22 tourneys and been in the money six times for $2,612.

Harry Toscano, valedictorian of the ATP School, struggled 10 weeks before making a check. He has since made $3,026, but that kind of money can't keep a family.

If there is an encouraging note, it is that the yearlings have shown steady improvement. In the first 14 tournaments, their winnings were $12,884 and no one made $1,000 in any one event.

In the past 11 tourneys, however, the rooks have collected nearly $50,000. Fifteen times a check has exceeded $1,000.

It should be noted, though, that the average "take in these tournaments represented only 4 per cent of the total purse. All the rest went to the veterans.

With the last third of the season yet to come, it is possible that the newcomers will make more progress, but even so, probably only four or five will exceed expenses of about $15,000.

McBee made $9,750 in one delightful week in the Speedway Open at Indianapolis and that is all the incentive his fellow rookies need to keep going. Maybe their week will come, and 'then watch my smoke,' they say.

In December we will update the charts and see if any of the bright-eyed youngsters caught lightning in a bottle and became, as it were, a star overnight.

But for now, dad, buy your boy a baseball bat.

Sam Loses 68 as Rain Hits Again

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — A wretched, stubborn rain washed out the second round of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic for the second straight day Saturday and sent down the drain superlative rounds by Tennessee's Mason Rudolph and a pair of middle-aged immortals, Sam Snead and Roberto de Vicenzo.

The second round was rescheduled for today with the same starting times, and the final two rounds Monday and Tuesday.

The event will not be televised today, but channel 9 will carry the final two rounds.

SNEAD

Rudolph, a 10-year tour veteran from Clarksville, Tenn., had forged to the front of the field with a three-under-par 69 for 135 while Snead (68) and De Vicenzo (69) had moved in right behind him at 136 before the sky fell on the Westchester Country Club in mid-afternoon.

Their scores, plus those of 66 other early starters, were eliminated and they will start the second round anew today. So will the 75 others who were caught on the course by the downpour.

"It's tough luck — I could just sit and wait," said Rudolph, who hit 17 of 18 greens in a phenomenal display of approaching accuracy.

Rain Halts Play in Nat'l Doubles; Resume Today

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (UPI) — Rain hit the Longwood Cricket Club again Saturday, causing officials to postpone to today the national doubles championships.

Today's action will include the fourth-ranked team, Australian Roy Emerson and Ronnie Barnes of Brazil, against unseeded South African Davis Cup players Cliff Drysdale and Ray Moore. They were halted by rain and darkness at 6-6 in the fourth set of their quarterfinal duel.

In other play today, topseeded Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco meet South Africa's Annette Van Zyl and Pat Walkden of Rhodesia in a semifinal match.

5 Share Lead in Women's Golf

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Mickey Wright and Judy Kimball, playing in the same threesome and matching each other stroke for stroke, fired two of the best rounds Saturday and moved into a five-way tie for the 36-hole lead in the $13,000 Amarillo Ladies' Open golf tournament.

HORNE OF PLENTY

Cards Expected Title — Even in First Year

National baseball championships are nothing new for Long Beach, but when the Cardinals came home from New Mexico with the Connie Mack title they did it in their first year of operation.

"We accomplished what we set out to do," said coach Bob Harrison, "but I was particularly proud of the fact we won in our very first season."

In 1963, Peterson Post of Long Beach won the national American Legion title and two years ago a team from this city claimed the national Pony League crown.

"We figured we had the best 16-18-year-old talent in the country," said Harrison, "and we thought all along we could bring another title back to Long Beach.

"We used all 19 players on our team in doing it, and we got great pitching from Randy Moffitt, Bruce Ellingsen and Jim George.

"Perhaps the best break we got, however, was the drafting of catcher Mike Barnes from the Tordena club, which won the national title last year. Mike is a good handler of pitchers and it enabled us to move Jay Horne to third base."

The Cardinals lost their opening game, then came back for five consecutive victories.

Assistant coach Ray Miller believed that the mile-high altitude and team's late arrival from the West Coast played a major part in the first-game loss.

"I know one thing about the altitude," he said, "when centerfielder Freddie Long made a throw to second, it wound up at home plate. There isn't much air resistance, and it was hard to run the first two days. We were pretty sluggish then, but once we got untracked . . . wow!"

Speed was a major factor in the team's success, with Jim Martinez, Long and Wayne Holland showing their heels the most as the Cards set a tournament record of 16 stolen bases for all games and 8 in one game — the finale.

After the tourney, Long was awarded second base by the Farmington, N.M., hosts.

Coach Harrison felt that the inability of the opposition's southpaw hurlers to stop portside hitters Steve Frankel, Horne and Russ Bennett probably turned the tide.

"Usually young lefties have trouble hitting left-handed pitching," he commented, "but not these three." Horne was drafted from the Johnson Sawdust team along with George and Willie Norwood.

And what about next season?

Slugging hero Horne and no-hit pitcher George will be returning, as will a full outfield of Frankel, Norwood and Andre Ellis.

"We lost the opening game and everyone thought we were overrated," said Miller. "Well, we showed 'em what we could do when the chips were down. Why not again?"

FARMINGTON FACTS: Attendance at the seven day event was over 50,000, yet the town lists a population of only 24,000 . . . Jim Piersall was the featured speaker at Connie Mack events this year . . . Ex-major league umpire Bill McKinley was umpire-in-chief . . . because of the altitude, the Cardinals had an oxygen tank in the dugout at all times . . . Cardinal players were busy signing autographs just like big leaguers, and most of them came home to Long Beach wearing the traditional straw "cowboy" hats worn in Farmington . . . California teams have won the crown four of the last seven years, and no team east of the Mississippi has ever won it . . . The Cardinals had no local sponsor. The entire financing was done by the two coaches, Harrison and Miller . . . An even dozen major league scouts were on hand most every day, with the Angels' Jack Paepke staying to the very end and slightly pulling for the locals . . . Harrison's son Bill won the outstanding batboy award, going away . . . Chicago came into the tournament with a record of 54 and 3 but lost both games and went home early . . . The Nashville team had blisters and individual traveling bags, yet they also lost their only two games . . . Portland brought 47 bats but only 15 players . . . Long Beach had 19 players but only 24 sticks! . . . Cardinal players and coaches appreciated "WIN" telegrams from Long Beach Mayor Wade and scorekeeper Judy Peterson, plus No. 1 fan Lee Brewer . . . Most interested parents? The Moffitts, Berensfords, Frankels, Barneses and Rickells. Some flew with the team, others drove 830 miles . . . The winner's trophy, donated by the Quaker Oats Company, required two players to carry aboard the plane . . . All Cardinal players were given new red warm-up jackets by the Century Club. They came in handy during the frequent summer rainstorms.

Pro Grid Briefs

FALCONS — Lost No. 1 draft choice, defensive end Lee Carroll of San Diego State, due to knee injury in 34-31 victory over Cleveland Friday . . . Starting guard Dan Grim is out with muscle pull . . . Cut quarterback Archie Roberts.

EAGLES — Corner back Al Nelsen suffered broken radial bone in right arm in Friday game with Buffalo. He will be out six weeks.

FLECKMAN FALLS, 3 AND 1

Deadly Chips Win for Smith

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bob Smith turned the tide with deadly chips for three consecutive birdies in the last three holes and beat long-hitting Marty Fleckman 3 and 1 for his second Western Amateur golf championship in three years Saturday.

Smith, a 24-year-old strawberry blonde from Sacramento, Calif., broke into the lead with an eight-foot birdie putt on the 50-yard par-3 No. 15, then poured it on with his excellent iron shots. He was four under par for the match.

Ironically, Smith's nose-dive started on No. 8, which he considers a jinx hole. He admitted, "I've got a mental block on that hole because I feel it should be an easy birdie 4 — but I can never get one."

Smith got the break he needed on No. 11. His second shot was over the green and hit a spectator, preventing it from going into the lake. He recovered beautifully and got a par to stay 1-down.

His traveling mate, 22-year-old Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif., said he did it with his cheering.

"I gave him the kick he needed," Cerrudo said. "I put the whammy on Marty."

Rain threatened during the morning semifinal matches, in which Smith struggled to a 2 and 1 victory over Chip Stewart of Dallas, Tex., and Fleckman beat Cerrudo 1-up, avenging a loss to Cerrudo in the British Amateur semifinal.

Take a Look at These Distinctive Vanderbilt Premium Features

Full 4-Ply Nylon Cord

Four full plies of tension-tempered nylon cord deliver extra strength and safety. Greater carcass strength than most original equipment tires. Supports sharp turns and sudden stops. And you get added protection from bruise, cut, heat, moisture, and flex damage.

Rugged Permatuff Tread

Vanderbilt's exclusive Permatuff tread design puts more life in your tire. This unique blend of 15 rubber and chemical ingredients dissipates heat faster than it can build up. That means your tires run cool, even at prolonged freeway speeds.

Wrap-Around Tread

Vanderbilt's wrap-around tread design puts more tire surface down on the road where it counts. And the tread curves around the shoulders. That means these tires lean into curves, instead of buckling under like conventional square-shouldered tires. You get greatly improved steering control and stability.

High Performance Proved

Vanderbilt tires are subjected to a series of grueling torture tests under racetrack conditions — far more rugged than you'll ever encounter. And they passed with flying colors. Although you'll never subject your tires to punishment this stiff, you know these high performance tires will hold up, give you that extra bit of safety in any driving situation.

VANDERBILT PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE

Every Vanderbilt tire is guaranteed against defects, road hazards and wear-out.

Tread Life Guarantee against all Failures: Every Vanderbilt Tire is guaranteed for the life of the original tread, against manufacturing defects and workmanship, and against all failures from road hazards. If tire fails, we will—at our option—repair it at no cost, or in exchange for a new tire, charging only for the tread used. The amount charged will be on a pro-rata basis against the current selling price at time of adjustment plus Federal Excise Tax.

Tread Wear Guarantee Every Vanderbilt Tire is guaranteed against wear-out for the number of months specified. If tread wears out (less than 2/32") within the stated period, return the tire to any auto center selling Vanderbilt tires. We will exchange it for a new tire, charging the current selling price at a time of adjustment, plus Federal Excise Tax less a stated allowance.

Charlie Boots in DM Derby Victory

DEL MAR — Amazingly-improved Charlie Boots took advantage of the late defection of a pre-race choice Jungle Road Saturday to score an impressive three-length triumph in the 23rd running of the $32,600 Del Mar Derby before 13,662 fans.

With Jungle Road put out of action by a quarter crack in his left hind hoof, Charlie Boots assumed the role of favoritism and came through with the best race of his rags-to-riches career in winning the mile and one eighth classic for 3-year-olds.

Under a precise ride by Alvaro Pineda, Charlie Boots, a $12,500 claim early last month by trainer Willie Wyndle, surged into command in the upper stretch and then drew out to a handy victory in 1:47 2-5, just two-fifths of a second off the stakes record.

In the day's supporting feature, veteran sprinter Royal Grounded charged to his second victory of the summer and provided Jerry Lambert with his second winner of the day.

John Sellers also had a double, clicking with Rajamaya at $11.60 in the fourth and then Del Mar Futurity nominee Sand Pebble at $9.80 in the fifth.

Jr. Football Tryouts

The Los Altos Renegades (100-130 pounds) and Rebels (131-170) of the Long Beach Junior Football League are conducting tryouts Monday through Thursday at 6 p.m. at Millikan High. All junior high boys are eligible.

Easy Prom in Swift Sulky Win

Easy Prom may only be number two in Bob Farrington's mind, but he's certainly number one as far as the 15,262 fans who were at Hollywood Park Saturday are concerned.

Farrington, who owns Easy Prom in partnership with Lloyd Arnold, feels Dancing David is the best pacer in his stable. That's why he wasn't at Hollypark Saturday to drive Easy Prom in the $10,000 Inglewood Pace. He was en route to Montreal, where Dancing David has an engagement today.

Subbing for Farrington with Easy Prom was Jack Williams Jr., and all Easy Prom did was carry Williams to one of the fastest miles of his life, hitting the wire in a sensational 1:57 4-5.

Ambro Frank, driven by Eddie Wheeler, took the day's secondary feature, the $8,000 Century Pace, getting up in the very last stride to win by a nose over Bout Due.

Wheeler, whose luck hasn't been the greatest this season, also tallied in the fourth race, when Elegant Wick slipped through between horses for a nose victory over Marson Hanover. This was the meet's tightest finish, as Armbro Champ was another nose back in third and just a neck in front of Jonboy Star.

Clark Earns Pole for Canadian Prix

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI)—Scotland's Jimmy Clark Saturday earned the pole position for today's Grand Prix of Canada for Formula One cars, one of 11 races counting toward the world driving championship.

Clark, 31, climaxed two days of qualifying for the 220-mile race with a time of 1:22.4 around this 2.45-mile course 50 miles northeast of Toronto.

USC, UCLA OPEN DRILLS

Troy to Flash Fleet Receivers

By LOEL SCHRADER

Last season, former Long Beach City College star Ron Drake caught a record 52 passes for USC and he' was the cover boy on the leading 1967 football magazine.

But Drake, who skipped spring football practice to play baseball for the Trojans, is expected to encounter stiff opposition when USC opens workouts Wednesday at Bovard Field.

Trojan coach John McKay lists Earl McCullouch, another ex-Long Beach City player, as Drake's No. 1 opponent for the starting split end position.

McCullouch, who recently tied the world 110-meter hurdle record in the Pan-American Games and also was a member of the world record-setting USC 440 relay team, was stationed on defense in 1966. But he was a pass-catching flanker at Long Beach Poly and McKay is intrigued with the possibilities of sending receivers with the speed of McCullouch (13.2 in hurdles) and halfbacks O. J. Simpson (9.4 100) and Jim Lawrence (9.6 100) at USC foes.

McCullouch, who will be wearing contact lenses for the first time, has expressed a determination to break into the Trojan lineup.

McKay expects 75 players to report Wednesday, including 21 lettermen. The Trojans will pose for pictures by press, TV and radio reporters on Tuesday. USC will drill at 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. each day through Sept. 8. The Trojans open at home against Washington on Sept. 15.

The Trojans face a murderous schedule, with games against Michigan State, Notre Dame, Texas and UCLA, all figured to be among the top ten teams in the nation. Additionally, McKay must take his team to Seattle, a graveyard for visitors in the past.

USC also will face four quarterbacks considered among top all-America candidates — Gary Beban of UCLA, Jimmy Raye of Michigan State, Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame and Super Bill Bradley of Texas.

UCLA, picked by Pacific Eight publicity directors to win the conference championship, also will begin two-a-day drills Thursday after posing for pictures Wednesday morning.

Twenty lettermen among a squad of 75 are expected to report to coach Tommy Prothro.

The Bruins face Tennessee in their home opener Sept. 16, a game which may decide the Heisman Trophy winner. Certainly UCLA's Beban and the Volunteers' quarterback, Dewey Warren, will be among leading candidates for the award.

What A Reason Collects $74,083

Combined News Services

What A Pleasure, given a great home stretch ride by Braulio Baeza, carried the yellow and purple silks of Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable to a narrow victory over eight of the top 2-year-olds in the $113,975 Hopeful at Saratoga race track Saturday.

With the finish of the 6½ furlong race just yards away, What A Pleasure stuck his nose in front and held it there for a head decision over lightly regarded Royal Trace. It was only another neck back to Exclusive Native.

For this fourth victory in six starts this year and his second stakes triumph, the long striding What A Pleasure earned $74,083.75 to boost his budding bank account to $128,137.75.

Diplomat Way found his best stride on the grass and won the $53,800 Lawrence Armour Handicap at Arlington Park.

The three-year-old son of Nashua, who was ridden by Ishmael Valenzuela, turned back Aczay.

Patrick Madden's Pink Pigeon and June Benson's Farnest Nan, a pair of outsiders, won the divisions of the Pageant Handicap before a weekend crowd of 24,005.

They had the identical time of 1:49 4-5 for the 1 1-16 mile grass test.

Pink Pigeon earned the $15,128 share of the $23,275 purse.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — Southern California takes the spotlight today as play resumes in the International Softball Congress World Tournament here.

The Long Beach Nitehawks, recent winners of the State Tournament held at Park Ave. Field, see action at 3 p.m. PDT, meeting Prince George, Canada. The Canadians were winners over VanWert, Ohio, 1-0, in Friday's tourney opener.

Lakewood's M&M Charters will play their first game at 6 p.m., PDT, meeting the winner of a contest played late Saturday night between Phoenix, Ariz., and Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Defending world champion, Gardena, will precede Lakewood on the field as it tackles Ft. Worth, Tex., at 5 p.m.

The Texans, equipped with big hats and all, scored big Saturday, routing Chicasa, Okla., 7-0.

In other Saturday action Moline, Ill., downed Bartlesville, Okla., 1-0.

IN BUSINESS TOO LONG

Chance 'Not Thrilled'

Dean Chance, who modestly discounts his Friday no-hitter for the Minnesota Twins, said Saturday he wanted a chance to pitch in a World Series.

"I've lived through too much in this business to get steamed up over a no-hit game," Chance said. "It was nice, but it didn't mean that much to me.

"The World Series, that's what turns me on, I want that shot more than zero hits. Now you're talking thrills."

MILTON Lang can thank his mother-in-law and a joke that backfired for an all-expense vacation at Rye, N.Y., site of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Tournament director Fred Corcoran was addressing a golf gathering of 500 last winter in Orlando and in a kidding gesture, offered an all-expense trip to the tournament to anyone who carried a picture of his mother-in-law. Lange stood up.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES . . .

Chest, Yes; Head, No!

BABE HERMAN
A Spry 64

It is not true, insists Floyd Caves (Babe) Herman, that he once was hit on the head with a fly ball.

"The chest, yes; the head, no," chuckles Herman, who has learned to live with the humorous, but largely untrue, stories of his fielding difficulties.

"Actually, I wasn't that bad an outfielder," says Herman. "I caught about 3,200 fly balls during my career and was the highest-paid outfielder in the National League until Hack Wilson hit 56 home runs in 1930."

Playing right field at old Ebbets Field in Brooklyn could be brutal, Herman points out. "The sun used to come through an opening in the stands and it made seeing the ball very difficult at times."

No one ever laughed at Floyd Caves Herman when he had a bat in his hand. Babe compiled a batting average of .324 in 13 major league seasons and had whopping marks of .381 in 1929 and .393 in 1930.

The Dodgers in Herman's days were managed by eccentric Wilbert Robinson, who contributed liberally to the legend of the "Daffiness Boys."

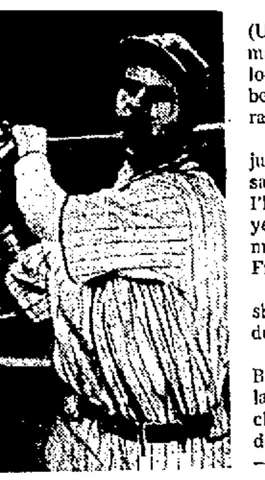

For example, the story goes that a cab driver waiting outside Ebbets Field yelled to a fan to ask how a game was going. "The Dodgers have three men on base," replied the fan.

"Which base?" the cabbie is supposed to have inquired.

"The sports writers had a field day with us," admits Herman. "Some of the stories weren't true, but we didn't mind."

A spry 64, Herman is semi-retired, living in Glendale, "a few blocks from Casey Stengel." Babe manages his property holdings and travels extensively with wife Ann. They are grandparents four times over.

Babe's sole connection with baseball is serving as batting instructor each spring for the Guadalajara team of the Mexican League. After Herman's first spring of tutoring in 1965, Guadalajara jumped from last to third. The club finished a strong third in 1966 and won the 1967 pennant.

BABE AS DODGER
Feared Slugger

He notes a couple of things about the current crop of young ballplayers. "They're all trying to knock the ball out of the park. These kids are rushed too fast. They're not taught to hit the breaking stuff before getting to the big leagues."

As for fielding — well, that's somebody else's area of expertise.

Sierra Fishing Near Its End

The Labor Day weekend is coming up and that means the summer, fishingwise, has been all too short. Most of last week's inquiries to my desk have concerned trout fishing in the Sierra Nevada, both the western and eastern slopes, although more attention is paid to the country in and around Bishop and north of there.

I can not enumerate the number of times I have been asked this question: "Where can we go where there won't be such a big crowd and where the kids can catch some fish?" In the legendary farmer's words at his first circus: "There ain't no sech animal!"

For the trout plants in the Inyo-Mono sector, most popular with Southland vacationers, get a copy of last Thursday's Independent, Press-Telegram, and you'll find that the planting program will be just about the same for the coming week. After that, the stocking of catchable-size rainbows drops to almost nothing.

The warm weather has reduced the plant in Southern California to almost zero in the creeks, but all of the high-mountain lakes (Arrowhead, Big Bear, Green Valley, Gregory and Crystal) will be stocked.

The only stream that will be stocked will be the East and West Forks of the San Gabriel River, and I know from past experiences that those planting spots are fished out almost as fast as the fish can be placed in the water.

FROM THE STANDPOINT OF FISH, the 13th annual All-City Kids' Fishing Rodeo probably was the poorest in years, but the enthusiasm was there just as always. Attendance also was off from former years, but youngsters who fish are smarter than you think. Many of them had drawn blanks at Belmont Pier in recent days and decided against trying.

The rodeo, however, is a good thing and most certainly the Long Beach Recreation Department should draw a vote of thanks from all concerned. So should the Southern California Tuna Club, members of which always turn out to help in every way they can. Mostly, on Thursday, they were kept busy handing out free ice cream bars and Cokes. When the fishing is slow, one can always eat and drink, and that's what the kids were doing.

Bill Winston was SCTC chairman for the rodeo and did a good job in tying loose ends together. There wasn't a hitch in the entire program. Bill couldn't help it if the fish didn't cooperate.

He had as assistants Dr. J. Gordon Bateman, president of the SCTC; Cliff Brignall, head judge; Vern Williams, Dr. Eugene Jones, Fred Hershorn, R. Burr Dilday, John Frank, John Osler, Dr. J. Thomas Hardesty, Charles W. Forbes and this writer, who did nothing except wander around and take notes. Even Harold B. Clemens, one of the Department of Fish and Game top biologists, took time out from a busy schedule to attend and identify fish.

WALTER (BLACKIE) HELBACH, 74, widely known in fishing and hunting club circles, died Thursday morning at San Pedro nursing home. He had been associated closely with the Wilmington Sportsmen's Club and the Long Beach Rod and Gun Club, just to mention a couple.

However, Blackie was a member of the Long Beach Spin-Fishing Club and others. He loved to attend meetings of any club and he was one of the first to volunteer when help was needed in the kitchen or any other place. Blackie was retired and lived with his wife, Hazel, at 1307 N. Lagoon Ave., Wilmington. He wrote fishing news for some of the publications in this area.

One of his last requests, expressed to a friend, Al Cole, the night before he died, was to go fishing. He told Al: "Just wheel this bed down to the ocean and let's go fishing, but you'll have to get me back when it's time for my next 'shot'."

Funeral service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the Wilmington Funeral Home, 702 Broad Ave.

Blackie spent 15 years working for the U.S. Post Office Department. He was a veteran of World War I and, in addition to his fishing and hunting activities, had been active in the American Legion.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — There's a new lure control — yessir a lure control — on the market, mostly in Northern California, but gradually working its way southward. It's called the Hydro-Kite, and its manufacturer, the Hubbard Lure Control Co., 4838 N. Blackstone, Fresno, Calif., 93726, claims it defies stream currents, ignores the wake of a boat and, keeps your lure where you want it.

It is made of plastic and is virtually indestructible unless you put it on concrete and jump on it. What is amazing is its ability to swim out into a current and stay there, with your lure dangling under water or popping along on the surface.

Instead of falling behind a boat, it swims alongside. There is almost no weight to it and, once a fish hits, your line is arranged in such a way that you fight the fish, not the lure. Once I get a chance to try it, I'll let you know more about it.

Casitas, one of the "younger" lakes of Southern California, yielded the largest catfish in its history the other day. The fish weighed 34½ pounds, possibly a record for the state this year.

RAMBO TALKS AT 19TH ST. FAMILY NIGHT

John Rambo and Long Beach City Councilman Emmet Sullivan will be principal speakers at the 19th Street Park Family Night Tuesday.

Entertainment and awards will feature the free program from 6 to 9 p.m. Parents are urged to bring their children.

Special guest will be Dale Hoskin, recreation supervisor.

Rambo, former Cal State Long Beach basketball star and Olympic bronze medalists in the high jump, will soon join the San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Assn.

PCC Boys in Gloves Finals

Two members of Val Matcheski's Pacific Coast Club junior boxing team have reached the finals in the Junior Golden Gloves tournament.

They are 8-year-old Dan Pelsinger, 53 pounds, and 17-year-old John Van Vales, 169 pounds.

Pelsinger, son of Mike Pelsinger, former heavyweight champion of Stanford University, defeated Danny Robledo of the famous Pasadena boxing family en route to the finals.

Van Vales is a strong favorite in his division.

The final bouts are slated for Friday night at the Olympic Auditorium.

Billie Jean Has Retiring Thoughts

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (UPI) — The tennis world may get just one last long look at Billie Jean King, the bespectacled Rembrandt of racquetdom.

"I think I'll probably play just another year," she said. "It's not definite but I'll probably quit after next year. I'd like to make one more swing — Australia, France and so on."

Her eyes opened wide as she added, "And Wimbledon."

The 23-year-old Long Beach product has won the last two Wimbledon singles championships, adding the doubles—with Miss Casals — and the mixed doubles with Owen Davidson of Australia this year for a rare "triple."

Her next goal is the national singles unfolding later this week at Forest Hills, N.Y.

"That's about the last goal I've got," she said. "I actually completed all my goals last year when I got Wimbledon. To win the nationals here would be a bonus."

What difference has a Wimbledon title made to Mrs. Larry King, world famous wife of an unknown second-year law student at the University of California?

"Pride. I guess that's the big thing. I have more pride in my play now. I go out every day to play the best possible game I can, where I might have been happy with only a good score or a couple of upsets at Wimbledon every now and then before."

Navy Slo-Pitch Play to Start

Ten teams open play Monday in the 11th District, Northern Area, Slo-Pitch Softball Tournament at Long Beach Naval Station.

The station also will host the district finals Sept. 6-8.

Slo-pitch, using a 16-inch ball, is new in Navy play this year, Mary Spall, sports director for the station's Special Services Dept., said Saturday.

Winner and runnerup qualify for the finals.

MONDAY'S GAMES
11:45 a.m.—USS Alfred A. Cunningham vs. USS Marsh; USS Pluck vs. USS Gridley.
4 P.M.—USS Arnold J. Isbell vs. Naval Base; USS Canberra vs. Gridley-Pluck winner.
5:30 p.m.—USS Princeton vs. Cunningham-Marsh winner; USS Yorktown vs. Mine Force.

Flag Football Entries to Close Sept. 6

Entries for the adult flag football leagues conducted by the Long Beach Recreation Dept. will close Wednesday, Sept. 6.

League play starts Sept. 18 at Cherry Park and games will be played each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Interested teams may contact Rod Ballard, supervisor of sports, at 436-9041.

Top Mexicans Fight Bulls at Tijuana

TIJUANA—Manolo Martinez, the brilliant newcomer who has recently emerged as Mexico's No. 1 bullfighter, and Manuel Capetillo, the man he is trying to replace as his nation's idol, will meet in the ring today at seaside Plaza Monumental.

Alfonso (Calesero Chico) Ramirez will also appear on the program.

L.B. Soccer Club Opens vs. Hungary

The Long Beach Soccer Club will open its season today at Heartwell Park at 2:30 in the first pre-season games, Long Beach will face the L.A. Hungarians.

Practice sessions for Long Beach is being held at Pan American Park on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested is welcome to try out for the team.

Chute Title to Czechs

PORTOROZ, Yugoslavia (AP) — Czechoslovakia won the men's team championship and the Soviet Union captured the women's title Saturday in the International Parachuting tournament for the Adriatic Cup.

Japanese, Legion All-Stars to Play at Blair Field Sept. 6

A contingent of 20 young Japanese baseball players will be arriving in Long Beach soon for the first game of an annual match between the Japanese high school all-stars and the Southern California American Legion all-stars.

The first engagement between the all-star teams will be Sept. 5 at Blair Field. In 1968, the Legion all-stars will play in Tokyo.

This year's Japanese team was chosen from an island-wide newspaper-sponsored tournament.

Hosting the visitors will be the 442nd Veterans Assn., the famed "Go for Broke" Japanese-American division from World War II.

Jack Graham, coach of the Long Beach 27 Flyers team and Hershel Musik of the Santa Ana-South team, will coach the American all stars. Tickets will be available at the gate.

NO...they didn't pass the test

When quizzed on girls' pants styles that will pass muster in the classroom, school officials turned thumbs down on these—for the following reasons: First picture, too much like a playsuit . . . second, too short . . . third, looks like swimsuit from Mack Sennett days . . . fourth, more like little boy's suit . . . last, looks like abbreviated jumpsuit. As one said: "They're fine—but NOT for school."

SCHOOL MEN QUIZZED

Coeds can wear the pants IF . . . .

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Director, Women's News

For the first time in Long Beach history, divided skirts will be allowed to attend public schools this fall.

Call them culottes, pantskirts, pantdresses or two-legged skirts, they've passed the entrance exam and are listed as acceptable in dress regulations printed annually by the Long Beach Unified School District.

The item reads: "Culottes cut like skirts may be worn."

Don't underestimate that "cut like skirts" phrase.

In fact, before filling your back-to-school wardrobe with the new split-personality fashions, officials caution you to take a studied look at what you buy.

Be sure the garment's schizoid tendencies lean more toward dress than pant. Some styles being shown as back-to-school fashions wouldn't pass muster at nursery school.

TO GET THE ANSWERS on what IS acceptable and what isn't, we subjected local school officials to a picture quiz.

Armed with news photos taken at back-to-school fashion shows, we asked for definite answers. We got them. The name of the game was fashion division.

They can be summarized in the comment of Dr. Vernon A. Hinze, associate superintendent of the Long Beach schools: "Divided skirts are all right provided they're cut like skirts."

Academically speaking, that means there will be no jumpsuits, playsuits, Buster Brown knickers, little boy pantsuits, bloomers, pantaloons or Little Lord Fauntleroy britches allowed in classrooms this year.

Although most conceded that, when properly cut, culottes are more modest than too-short skirts, school officials agreed with Dr. Hinze's statement:

"We want to be reasonable about this, but when clothes get to the point of looking like play clothes, we won't accept them."

LOUIS A. COOK JR., director of high schools, elaborated further: "We feel school is the student's place of business . . . and to us this means skirts which are of reasonable length and styles that don't fall into the sports clothes category.

"We're not trying to dictate fashions. On the other hand, we're not running a perpetual fashion show of the latest fads."

And he has a point!

With many dress and skirt styles now survived only by minidresses, overgrown sweaters and long shirts, many mothers have called both the school board and newspaper to inquire about acceptable skirt lengths for school wear.

We inquired, too.

"If the skirt is too short, we're going to ask the student to go home and change," said Dr. Hinze.

What's "too short" wasn't spelled out, however the two skirt lengths pictured on page W-7 were judged "unacceptable."

"We'll consider each case individually," the associate superintendent said. "We need and appreciate the cooperation and assistance of parents in helping students select clothes that are appropriate for school. When problems arise, we certainly plan to discuss them with the parents."

THAT, OF COURSE, won't be necessary if style-conscious coeds and moms study up on the smart—and practical—fashion accessories available in local stores.

It's quite simple to be contemporary—VERY

Lucy, Duane's party was not Kusters' last stand

By Iola Masterson
Society Editor

LIVELIEST EXCUSE in the world to have a party, far as Lucy and Duane Kuster was concerned, was to entertain for Jeanette (Coffin) Walker and her husband, Bill, who have been on West Coast for a few days from Washington, D.C.

Jeanette, who used to teach here and was a bridesmaid at Lucy and Duane's wedding, met Bill in Naples, Italy, while he was serving with the U.S. Navy and they were married about six years ago. This is their first trip to Long Beach since their wedding and first time Jeanette's local friends have had an opportunity to meet Bill.

Party in their honor was a champagne punch and buffet dinner. Among the 40 there to toast the visitors were Dr. Art and Ruth Evelev, Borgny and Woodrow Baird, Pete and Audrey Peterson, Ross and Betty Cash, Jay and Theresa Gibson, Isodene and Ken McCall, Al and Dorothy Munson and Louise and Boyd Leckington.

FOR HEAVEN'S sake, don't get a tummy or a tooth ache or require the personal attention of your favorite pharmacist a week from Wednesday, Sept. 6. That's date of the 32nd annual DDD Field Day when doctors, dentists and druggists will gather at Lakewood Country Club to compete in either a golf or tennis tournament.

For those who don't like the racket or care to putt-er around, Dr. Preston Smith will referee a good, blazing game of gin rummy in the cool of the clubhouse. Charlie Stuart, a member from the pill pusher contingent of pharmacists, is chairman of the golf tourney in which about 150 are expected to play, and Dr. Ross Denlinger is tennis tournament chairman.

Among men participating will be Drs. Herb Fishbein, Tom Hardesty, John Kashiwabara, Vernon Brickey, John Barloon, Jack Tylicki, John Mitchell and Earl Feiwell along with such druggists as Gus Dugas, Bob Wilson, Chuck Ryan, Noel White, Don Walter and Harry Brown.

Following the action on course, court or card table, the men will hie themselves off to Petroleum Club for their customary stag banquet. Dr. Barloon will be master of ceremonies and program will feature comedian Pat Buttram of TV and movies.

Dr. Eldon Hickman, overall chairman, expects at least 250 DDDs at banquet, drawing added attendance from those fellows who can't or don't care to participate in the daytime recreation.

THERE'S A wedding date just around the calendar corner for Eugene Driscoll and Marjie Smith. They haven't set an exact date as yet but they are tentatively planning a mid-September ceremony.

Marjie, who was a reporter on the old Independent before the merger with the Press-Telegram, has subsequently been in public relations work and has been making her home in Santa Ana. But she'll be moving back to Long Beach with daughters Kim and Alison and son, Sandy, after the marriage and they'll live in Gene's Naples Plaza home.

Currently there's great hammering and pounding going on at Gene's house as an addition is being completed to make plenty of room for Marjie's children and his collegian daughters, Sheila and Mimi.

ONE OF WEEK'S most festive parties was the cocktail buffet Tom and Barbara Rowan had in their home cohostessed by Barbara's mother, Leila (Mrs. M.S.) Walker. Affair honored Barbara's niece, Lee Lochridge of San Marino, prior to her wedding to Jim Hamm of Longmont, Colo.

Assisting were Tom and Barbara's daughters, Cathie, Susan and Diana. To name but a soupcon of the 50 attending, present were John and Norma Craig, Bert and Joyce Paul, John and Jackie Wallace, Charlotte Waldvogel, Helen Jenney, Bill and Babs Jenney, Charlie and Gladys Campbell, John and Marjory Clarke and Eleanor and Harvey Lochridge, Lee's grandparents.

AUGUST SHOULD be spelled "party" as far as Susan Yunker, who weds Charles Armstrong next Friday, is concerned. Thursday Phyllis Alcorn and Ruby Kean gave a luncheon for the bride-elect in the Alcorns' new Palos Verdes home-with-a-view. After luncheon the hostesses provided dish towels and guests spent the afternoon monogramming them for the honoree.

Friday Susan's cousin and maid of honor, Nancy Ellis, flew in from Washington, D.C. and Saturday Chuck's parents, the Gilbert Armstrongs, arrived from Louisville, Ky., so there was a big family dinner. Today Dorothy Wiltse and daughter, Emmy Woudenberg, are having an all-girl brunch for Susan. "Work" for the day will be to tie dozens of fancy little rice bags (opened, of course) to be tossed at bride and bridegroom next Friday.

Tuesday Susan and her mother, Vivian, will have a bridesmaids luncheon in their home for members of the bridal party flying in from just about all over the country. Wednesday evening Chet and Ann Yunker, the bride-elect's aunt and uncle, will honor her and Chuck at a barbecue with all the wedding party as guests plus many of Chuck's former classmates from Stanford Law School who will have arrived for the big date.

Thursday the bridegroom's parents, Martha and Gil, are giving the rehearsal dinner at the Newporter in Corona Del Mar.

Whew! And then the wedding with everyone supposed to look, feel and act as fresh as daisies.

WHEN Marvin Cloyd gave a party to honor Marni Nixon, soloist at this past week's Starlight Serenade concert, guests included a generous number of the most musically talented people of Long Beach from LB Symphony Guild, Civic Light Opera, etc.

Marni agreed, by request, to sing a duet with Marvin —the "Rain in Spain" song from "My Fair Lady" score. The crowd was delighted. Then came the search for an accompanist. In all that singing, arty, music-loving crowd there was not ONE pianist. Marni and Marvin's appearance had to be postponed. Indefinitely. Rose Bishop, where werrrre you?

TODAY IS the day Dr. Russell and Odetah Fisher have invited about 200 to an open house and post-nuptial reception so friends can congratulate their son, Jim, and meet his bride, Judyth, who were married last Sunday in her home town of Santa Rosa.

The newlyweds are due to arrive today from their honeymoon. They'll make their home in Glendale while Jim takes graduate work at USC in biology and she completes nurses' training at Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

A SPARKLE-PLENTY party was the champagne tea Margaret (Mrs. Richard) Russell had at her home, 5586 Naples Canal, Thursday. Purpose was to introduce her daughter-in-law-to-be, Katherine Endress of Pasadena, to local friends. Katherine and Russell's son, Rick, will be married Sept. 9 in the chapel at Occidental where they met.

Katherine and Rick are now attending McGill University in Montreal where both have fellowships and both are working toward doctorates in psychology.

Assisting Margaret Thursday were Bee Hart, Ruth Dougherty, Sally Graham, Fran Nason, Mabel La Force, Doris Merrick, Mary Merrick and Marge Merrick. Marge, incidentally, is entertaining for Kathy at a small brunch Sept. 6.

THEY PRESCRIBE DAY OF GOLF, TENNIS OR GIN RUMMY FOR THEMSELVES . . . Eldon Hickman, MD, chairman of DDD field day for doctors, dentists, druggists, issues tickets to presidents of participating groups Tom Kiddie, MD, John Taylor, DDS, and Gus Dugas, pharmacist.

Carmel, Mexico honeymoon follows Sullivan-Parlett rite

MRS. TERRENCE E. SULLIVAN

Carmel and Mexico are destinations of a wedding trip being made by Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Earle Sullivan (nee Lynda Dorothea Parlett) who exchanged vows Saturday in St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Glendale.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Garland Parlett, South Pasadena, and Councilman and Mrs. Emmet Michael Sullivan, 1540 Elm Ave.

The bride chose a redingote gown of silk peau de soie fashioned with a portrait neckline, re-embroidered insert of Alencon lace on the center skirt and detachable court train.

Moss green empire gowns of Alaskine were worn by her attendants: Susan Logan, maid of honor; Margaret Anne Hoffman, Carolyn May Grimm, Mmes. Dean A. Pierose Jr., F. Patrick Doyle and Roger DeKatone, bridesmaids.

Robert E. H. Sullivan of Alberta, Can., was best man for his brother. Ushers were James E. Sullivan, John W. Parlett, Michael Emmett Sullivan, Gustave S. Chabre Jr. and Anton Voogd.

Todd Sullivan, the bridegroom's newphew, was ring bearer.

The couple will live in Long Beach.

MRS. STEPHEN D. CANNON

San Francisco home awaits S.D. Cannons

More than 300 guests witnessed an exchange of vows Saturday in All Saints Episcopal Church between Susan Virginia Arnold and Stephen DeWitt Cannon.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. AtLee Summerfield Arnold, 1611 Greenbrier Road, wore a Cahill original lace gown styled with a modified A-line skirt which swept into a cathedral train.

Mrs. Kerry Teeple was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Victoria Ann Newman, Linda Gail Olson, Karen St. Clair and Louise Macatee.

Knox Cannon was best man for his brother, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Darch Cannon of Sunset Beach. Ushers were Stephen Groat, Gregory Lawson, James Watkins and Ronald Harris.

Following a garden reception in the home of the bride's parents, the newlyweds departed on a trip along the Oregon coast. They will live in San Francisco.

Both were graduated from Wilson High School and UCLA, where Mrs. Cannon affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and her husband was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and Blue Key, men's national honorary.

Cook-Golleher

In Big Bear following their exchange of nuptial vows Saturday in St. Pancratius Church are Mr. and Mrs. H. Douglas Cook (nee Linda Louise Golleher).

MRS. H.D. COOK

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Golleher, 2145 E. 65th St., wore an empire gown of sik organza over taffeta designed with elbow-length bell sleeves and a cathedral train.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Carl Steinert, matron of honor; Geri Miller, Joann Golleher, Linda Collins, Christine Mitrak and Beverly Cook.

Duane Brown was best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Cook, 4328 Decboyar Ave., Lakewood. Ushers were Don Nathe, Tom Dimas, Richard Stayton, Larry Cassell and Greg Cook.

Both are graduates of Jordan High School. The bridegroom also is an alumnus of Long Beach City College. The couple will live in Long Beach.

After a wedding trip to Mammoth Lakes the couple will live in Long Beach.

Blair-Edwards

A home in Long Beach is planned by Mr. and Mrs. Don W. Blair Jr. who were married Saturday in St. Cornelius Catholic Church.

The bride is the former Michelle. Ann Edwards daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Edwards, 3053 Karen Ave. The bridegroom is son of Mrs. LaVerne Blair, 3526 Greenbrier Road, and Don W. Blair, Carmichael, Calif.

The bride was attired in a floor-length empire dress of lace peau de soie satin with Watteau train.

Attending the couple were Jeanette Marsh and Mike Magnell.

Both were graduated from Millikan High School. He was graduated from Long Beach City College and will be a senior at California State College, Long Beach.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony.

The rocky road to romance

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Bill and I were going together, until he thought there was something going on between his best friend and me. Bill then started going with another girl, but she found out he was doing it to get even with me so she quit him.

Bill knows I like him a lot and I can't see why he's jealous of Jim. The only thing he has to go on is the fact that Jim and I had a good time at a picnic we all went to, but we didn't do anything a bit out of the way. I could see Bill was mad but what the heck, he had broken up with me already.

I want Bill back and I think he cares a lot for me. How can we get all this straightened out?

—LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING OUT:

Looks to me like you two are playing games. You take turns bugging each other — just to keep even.

If Bill gets so jealous over nothing at all, except what his imagination cooks up, he'll never make much of a boy friend. A little jealousy is all right, but carried to extremes it can cause a lot of trouble.

Maybe Jim is the best of the lot. Maybe you'd be better off to forget about Bill. You might insist on a straight talk with Bill in an effort to clear the air. If that doesn't bring about a change of attitude, mark it up as one lost boy friend.

—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father tells me it's very impolite to eavesdrop. So what does he do? He listens to my phone conversations on our extension. Now, I ask you, is that "practicing what you preach"? He starts out with "hurry up. I'm expecting a call!" (which isn't true either!), then continues to listen to my boy friend and me.

And my mother! When I started dating Fred (I'm 15), Mother had a private talk with him. She actually begged him not to see me any more because I was "just a baby." When he told me about it, I could have died!

Do you think that's a fair way to treat a girl? Wouldn't you say my parents are extremely old-fashioned?

DEAR L.B.D.:

I couldn't say your parents are "old-fashioned" but they are, shall we say, not exactly hep.

Eavesdropping is in extremely bad taste, to say the least. And your mother makes herself ridiculous in appealing to your boy friend behind your back. Such discussions should be between you and your parents.

There certainly could be a better relationship in your family and I hope, with an outside opinion, you can reach a compromise.

—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My 14-year-old sister is going with a 16-year-old dropout. She says she loves him and wants to marry him.

He drinks and smokes and encourages Sis to do the same. She skips school to be with him. She tells Mom she is going to babysit when she is really going out with her boy friend.

Mom and Dad have caught her lying several times. They have talked to her and Dad has even spanked her, but she keeps right on seeing Buck.

I am her older married sister and I would like to know how to set Sis straight but she won't listen to anyone. Maybe you can say something that will help her.

—J.G.D.

DEAR J.G.D.:

Not a chance! This little gal needs strong measures and tight discipline.

I'd suggest Mom and Dad take all privileges away from her. Take her to school and pick her up. That should prove quite embarrassing to her and maybe she'd shape up to avoid that sort of thing.

Treat her like the little liar and cheat she is instead of expecting her to do as she's told. Sometimes, stern disciplinary measures are the only answer to delinquency.

—M.M.

Fruit toppings

If you heat fruits and nuts in the oven before you add them to the batter of a cake, they will not sink to the bottom. This is true of puddings, too, to which nuts or raisins are added.

Mehta directs finale

BATON LOWERED, Zubin Mehta rings down curtain on Hollywood Bowl season this week.

Another outstanding Hollywood Bowl season comes to an end this week with the final two concerts Tuesday and Thursday evening. Both will feature Zubin Mehta, music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Mehta is returning from a summer of European and East Coast engagements to conduct the concerts. Tuesday at 8:30 he will lead the Philharmonic in Act II of Verdi's "La Traviata" with Canadian soprano Colette Boky, Canadian tenor Pierre Duval and American baritone Chester Ludgin.

Following intermission, Mehta will conduct the orchestra, Roger Wagner Chorale and three soloists in a performance of the cantata "Carmina Burana" by Carl Orff. The concert will open with Verdi's Prelude to Act I of "La Traviata."

Andre Watts, young American pianist, returns to thhe Bowl as soloist for the season finale Thursday, playing Liszt's Concerto No. 1 in E flat major for Piano and Orchestra.

Mehta will open the concert with Enesco's Rumanian Rhapsody No. 2 and close with Mahler's Symphony No. 1 in D Major.

In June, Watts was soloist for two concerts with the Berlin Philharmonic conducted by Mehta.

Palette varied by youth

Fruits of the long hot summer are the colorful paintings, collages and sculptures displayed in Polytechnic High School's Hicks Art Gallery. Sneaking a preview of the exhibit which will remain through opening weeks of school are Cindy Wulfoberg (right) of 3750 Country Club Dr., and Vance Lorencini (left below) of 6105 Lemon Ave. With Vance is the man responsible for the exhibit, John O. Jenkins, who taught a summer class for 56 honors art students selected from the five Long Beach high schools.

Arts

Melodyland darkens

The current summer season at Melodyland Theatre comes to an end Sunday, Sept. 3 with the final production of "South Pacific" starring Betsy Palmer, William Chapman and William Tabbert.

The final week beginning Tuesday, marks a reunion of Miss Palmer and Chapman who have played the leads in the Rogers and Hammerstein musical numerous times in the east but have never before been seen together on the West Coast.

The Anaheim roundhouse will remain dark for refurbishing for 10 days following the current run. Reopening date will be Tuesday, Sept. 12, when Johnny Mathis and Our Young Generation are scheduled for a one week engagement.

Tickets for the final performances of "South Pacific," including Saturday and Sunday matinees, and for the Mathis show are on sale at the Melodyland Box Office and all ticket agencies.

MONTEREY MAGIC

Big names lured to jazz festival

More names have been added to the list of headliners due to make music at the Tenth Annual Monterey Jazz Festival Sept. 15-17 on the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Added to the performers for the "Big Blues Bag" concert Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16, are Muddy Waters and His Band and blues-folk singer, Richie Havens.

Previously announced artists who will perform in the blues concert are The Clara Ward Singers, T-Bone Walker, B.B. King and Big Brother and the Holding Company, featuring singer Janice Joplin.

Muddy Waters (McKinley Morganfield) was born in Mississippi and discovered by folklorist Alan Lomax, achieving considerable popularity as a blues singer and guitarist.

Information and reservations for the festival may be obtained by writing P.O. Box "Jazz", Monterey, 93940.

Art 'pops' all over

GEORGIA SET an example for other states this month with establishment of a pilot program to bring original art to public schools.

Two permanent circulating collections have been chosen and include paintings, drawings, graphic prints, sculpture and crafts by Georgia artists. The pioneer program, which will reach 108 schools, is financed by a grant from the National Foundation of the Arts and Humanities, with matching state funds.

A STARTLING EXAMPLE of the way in which art has inundated the Southland was shown at the Santa Monica Sports and Arts Festival last weekend in Palisades Park.

Competing for only seven cash awards, 230 artists submitted a total of 1174 entries — an average of five works per artist.

Welsh, Scots roll drums for pageant

Two units of Queen Elizabeth II's Brigade of Guards will join forces for a military spectacular in Los Angeles Sports Arena Nov. 3 and 4.

The Regimental Band of the Welsh Guards will combine with the Pipes, Drums and Highland Dancers of the Scots Guards to present a pageant of marching, music and dance. The groups are on an extensive North American tour.

It marks the first time Welsh and Scots have appeared together on this continent. They are coming under the auspices of S. Hurok.

Dunn ceramics show deft touch

By VIRGINIA LADDEN

Larry Dunn has taken ceramic sculpture on a trip of his own. Twenty-seven of his finely-potted works continue on exhibit at the Dorian Hunter Gallery in Fullerton through Sept. 9.

Dunn's technique of lacquering ceramics with a fine gun spray, often metal flecked, is similar to that of Kenneth Price.

Dunn's work has a machined quality. It is completely symmetrical — spheres, cones, mammilliforms, bullet or missile shapes. Most are joined to concave bases. However, the missile shapes, two joined units, are presented on aluminum or steel bases like "15" in vibrant blue with blendings of black which is cradled in curves of machined metal.

Dunn's use of lacquer, sometimes matte finished, sometimes with deep gloss, is fascinating. He has explored this medium in many directions. Colors blend imperceptibly as in "18" in which blue-green, yellow, and brown swirl like the colors on a spinning top.

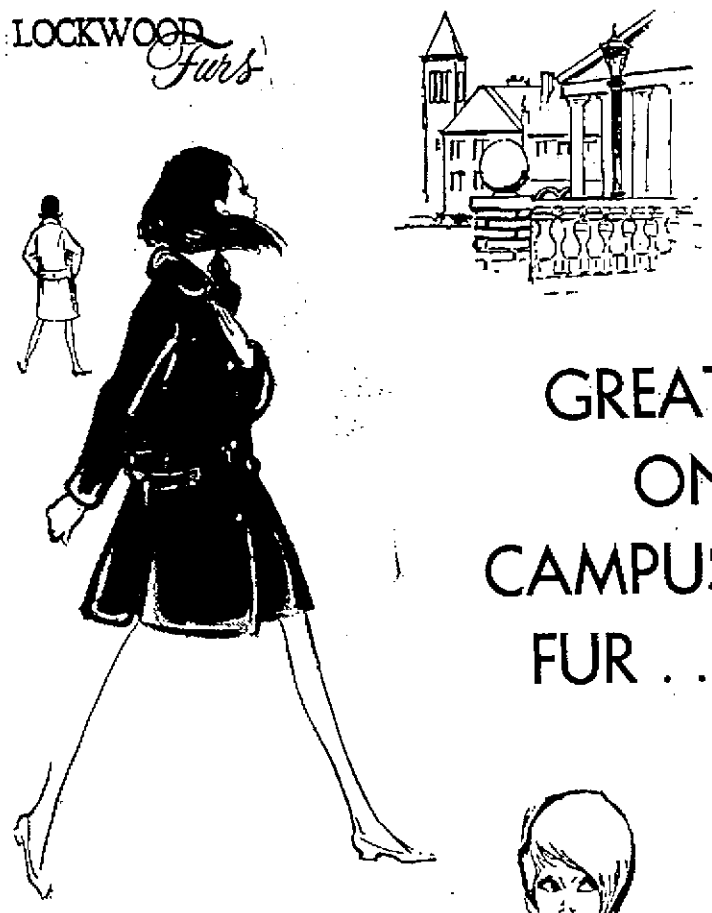

In several pieces, metallic gold or silver rings flow into a rich mustard tone as in "7" and "13." In others, like number "2", metal flake can be seen through a rich red gloss.

In size, these works range from about 4" in height to 3' in the instance of "16." Here, the base of deep red is a swelling globe joined to a curved sleeve which is surmounted by an onion turret similar to that on a Russian church.

Dunn has exhibited in Michigan, Ohio, Arkansas, Philadelphia and New York. Dunn's virtuosity is in his exquisite control, both in the throwing and in decoration. It is most effective.

The gallery at 524 West Commonwealth Ave. is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Forsythe, Wellman say vows

A buffet wedding breakfast in the home of the bride's parents, where the newlyweds cut a four-tiered traditional English wedding fruit cake, followed the marriage of Ellen Chase Wellman and Kenneth Douglas Forsythe. They were married in Emmanuel Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chase Wellman, 2609 Wall St, are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is son of Mrs. Doreen Forsythe, Honolulu, Hawaii, and J. A. Forsythe, West Vancouver, B.C.

The bride wore a mini dress of Irish linen eyelet and lace with a shoulder-length illusion veil attached to an Irish lace bow.

Mrs. Earl Brooks was matron of honor. Her attendant was Marilyn Sue Wellman, a sister of the bride. Candlelighters were Robin and Marta Wellman, sisters of the bride.

Jeff Forsythe was best man for his brother. Ushers were Dan Forsythe, another brother, John Richards and Knut Olberg.

After a trip to San Francisco and Canada, the couple will be at home in Sacramento where both will attend Sacramento State College.

Announcement news incorrect

Due to erroneous information given the Independent, Press-Telegram, it was reported Sunday that Miss Nicola Damigos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Damigos, was betrothed to Alexandros Tsimerakis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tsimerakis of Athens, Greece.

The couple is not engaged.

Community Hospital horse show

42 classes for exhibitors who will compete for first place trophies and ribbons in all classes plus prize money in the stake classes.

The show, managed by Harold Dakan, is operated in accordance with the rules of the American Horse Shows Association, Inc., of which it is a regular member show.

Special feature on Saturday will be crowning of the new Horse Show Queen by reigning queen, Pam Mitchell of the Los Altos YMCA. Competing for the title are Patricia Combe, Long Beach Philharmonic Association; Candy Groves, Los Alamitos Youth Center; Janice Holm, Ami Welfare Club of Wilson High School; Jackie Martin, Los Altos YMCA. Sponsorship of the candidates enables youth groups to raise funds for their own projects through sale of tickets. Selection of the queen is based on number of tickets sold. Mrs. Hal Sleet is queen contest chairman.

Scheduled Saturday evening in the Jockey Room at the clubhouse is an exhibitors party. Some 300 participants, their families and friends are expected for buffet dinner, entertainment and dancing.

TICKETS ($1 for adults and 50c for children) are good for events on all three days and also entitle the purchaser to a chance on numerous door awards. Tickets are on sale at the Community Hospital Gift Shop or can be purchased at the gate on show days.

Mrs. B. Wallace Neumaier, horse show chairman, is being assisted in key positions by Mmes Jack Stanley and Ray Bean, trophies; Guy Kingsbury and Donald Burke, programs; James Knowles and Ralph Russell, finances; Leonard Haynes, grandstand maintenance.

Mrs. Carlton Peters, auxiliary president, is anticipating the group's most successful show to date. Money raised will help to meet a $50,000 pledge to the hospital for the purchase of a nuclear scanning camera. The auxiliary has donated $135,000 to the hospital in the last 10 years.

Veltmans take trip up coast

A wedding trip in Northern California is being made by Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Veltman, the former Linda Jean Van Alstine. They were married at 4 p.m. Saturday in Lakewood Methodist Church and later honored at a reception in the church.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Van Alstine, 2806 Bomberry St. Her husband is son of Mrs. Arthur N. Hall II, 2211 Estribo Dr., Rolling Hills Estates, and Harry Veltman Jr., Anaheim.

She wore a formal gown of silk organza with bodice and sleeves in alencon lace. The straight line dress formed a cage effect with a sweeping Watteau chapel train.

Karen Towne was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Van Alstine, Toby Hurley, Joyce Haas and Celeste Hall. Eileen Roche was flower girl.

Thomas Rose served as best man. Ushers were William Thompson, Leon Durlene, Richard Cook and Arthur N. Hall III.

The couple will be at home in Paramount after a wedding trip to Northern California.

She was graduated from Lakewood High School and attended Long Beach City college. He was graduated from Compton High School and is a student at California State College, Long Beach.

Los Altos Methodist Church was setting for a ceremony Saturday linking names of Susan Carol Young and Lansing Lynn Johnson.

The couple exchanged vows before 150 guests and family members, and was attended by Mrs. George W. Gentile, sister of the bride and matron of honor, and Gene Orison, best man.

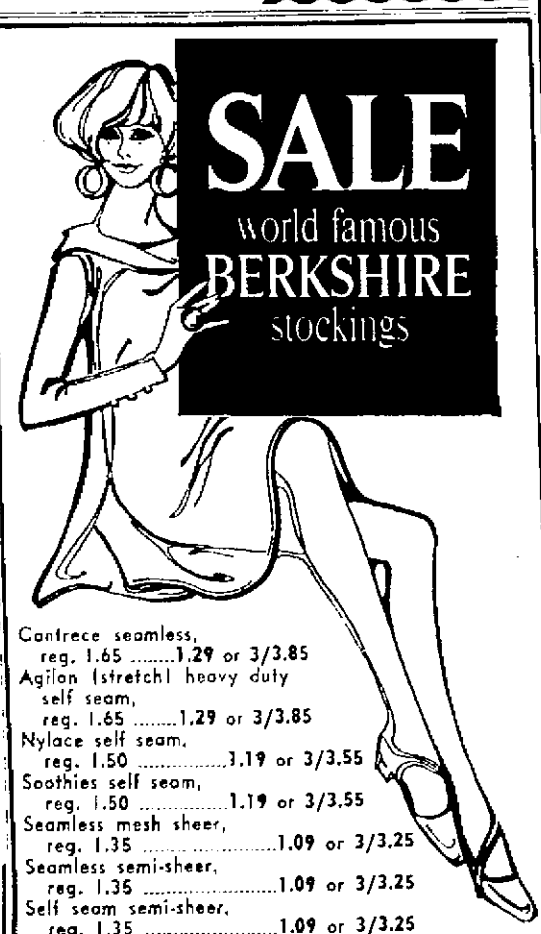

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richard Young, 279 Novara Drive, the bride chose a bouffant gown of silk organza over taffeta with a chapel train. Bridesmaids were Patricia Marie West, a cousin, and Jean Kent.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Larry W. R. Spooner of Lakewood and Duane E. Johnson, 2660 Senasac St. His brother, Steven Scott Spooner, and the bride's nephew, George W. Gentile II, were ringbearers. George W. Gentile and Doug Severson were ushers.

A church reception followed the ceremony. A buffet was served later in the home of the bride's parents. The couple will honeymoon in San Luis Obispo and San Francisco before making a home in Long Beach.

Luau to spark Yacht Club regatta

CHARTING PLANS FOR POLYNESIAN SPECTACULAR
. . . Alamitos Bay Yacht Club Commodore and Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby IV

It'll be luau time Saturday at Alamitos Bay Yacht Club when members, their families and guests gather at the flower-decked clubhouse for a Polynesian feast, floor show and evening of dancing.

The event is in conjunction with annual Labor Day regatta sponsored by ABYC Saturday through Monday.

Grass skirts, vividly colored sarongs and bright print sports shirts will be interspersed with salty sailing togs, beachcomber and stowaway attire. Prizes will be awarded for costumes.

Mammoth paper flowers and leis will augment decorations which have been turned out through August at weekly workshops directed by Robin Anne Croxson.

More than 450 guests are anticipated, according to Mrs. Roger Lindemann, general chairman. Greeting arrivals will be Commodore and Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby IV.

Following a 4 p.m. cocktail hour, at which mai tais will be the specialty, a luau feast will be served from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on the patio lawn and in the upstairs dining room.

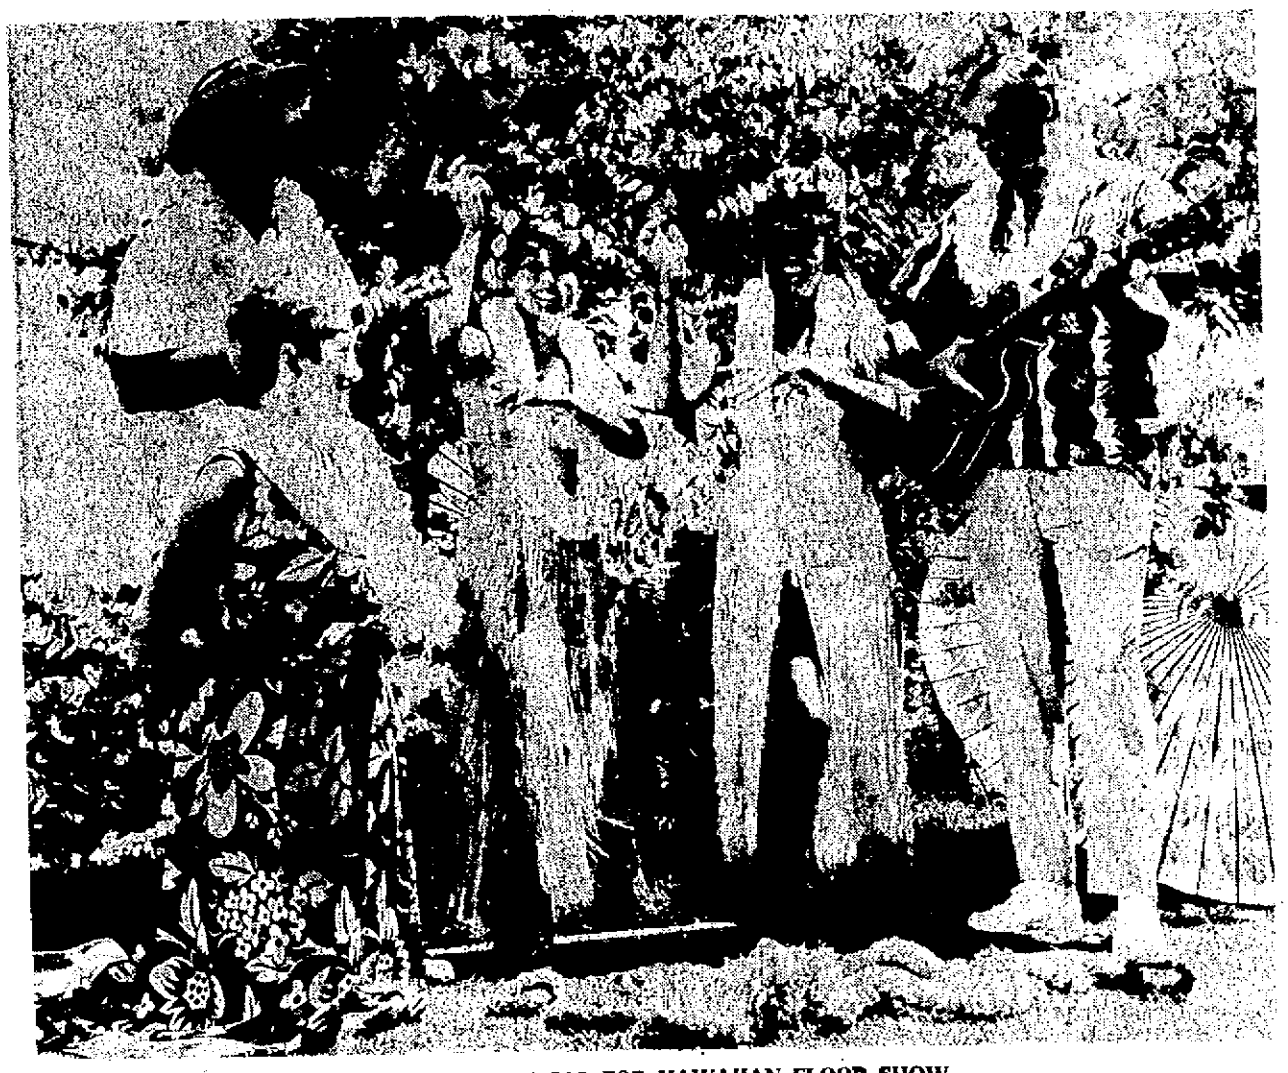

Club members will present a full hour of entertainment at 9 p.m. Neal Dundas will direct a men's hukilau. Hula renditions by little girls and women will be directed by Shirley Ross and Mrs. Robert Ross, respectively.

Solos will be by Mrs. James Griswold and Mrs. E. M. Amos. Musicians will be Dr. Maurice Haskell, Paul Wheeler, Arthur Hjelms, Frederic A. Nied, Stan Miller and Mrs. Harry Landis.

Rick Squire and his band will perform for juniors, while the "Swinging Salts" will provide dance music for adults in the dining room.

Assisting at hostess duties will be Mmes. William Jensen, Ernest Marr, John J. McDade Jr., Terol Gene Lore, Evan McDowell, Frederic A. Nied and Miss Sharon Nied.

Reservations may be made through Tuesday with Mrs. Henry Weiss.

Pamela Hunt, Phil Wood wed, take trip to Hawaii

More than 650 guests witnessed an exchange of vows Saturday in St. Luke's Episcopal Church uniting Pamela Jeanne Hunt and Phil Stanley Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Leonard Wood, 1465 Bryant Drive.

A reception followed in the 1425 Bryant Drive, home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wayland Hunt.

The bride's colors of hot pink, orange and white prevailed in garden appointments, while a life-size floral swan floated in the pool. Music was provided by a Hawaiian combo and mariachi musicians flown from Senora, Mexico, for the reception.

An original Miss Betsy creation of ivory silk organza was worn by the bride. Appliques of Alencon lace and seed pearls adorned a full front panel and detailed the queen's neckline. Detailing was completed by a voluminous Watteau train.

Her chapel veil of French silk illusion was secured by a bonnet of Brussels lace, first worn by the bride's grandmother.

In contrast to the bridal white was the shocking pink crepe gown worn by Mrs. George Azevedo, who was matron of honor for her sister.

Vivid orange gowns of silk crepe were worn by bridesmaids Catherine Hartley, Phyllis Horton, Karen Fleischli and Janie Cosseboom.

Robert Wood was best man for his brother. Ushers were James Kenyon Hunt, George Azevedo, Kirk White, Robert Brain, George Gill and Michael Brohn.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Hawaii, the newyweds will be at home at 4100 Colorado Ave. Both were graduated from Wilson High School. Mrs. Wood attended San Diego State College, where she affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta. Her husband was a member of Vidar at Long Beach City College.

Lloyd E. Gaspar marries Sally Neal

Wedding vows were solemnized Saturday afternoon before 300 guests at California Heights Methodist Church when Sally Kathleen Neal became the bride of Lloyd Edmond Gaspar Jr.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Barritt Neal. She is the daughter of Mrs. Rolland Neal, 3719 Pacific Ave., and the late Rolland M. Neal, a long-time resident of this city.

Her sheath gown of re-embroidered lace was fashioned with a bateau neckline and accented with a flowing chapel train.

Mrs. Walter C. Phillips was matron of honor for her sister. Attendants were Karen Recla, Linda Walker, Mrs. David Cassell and Mrs. Thomas Blandford.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gaspar of Lakewood, was served by William Brummel as best man. Ushers were Jack Gaspar, Walter Phillips, Patrick Mulleavy and Thomas Crowther.

After a church reception, the bridal party and relatives gathered in the home of the bride for champagne, after which the couple left for a honeymoon in Oregon.

Upon their return, Mrs. Gaspar will resume her studies at California State College, Long Beach. Her husband, who was graduated from the same school, teaches at Hamilton Junior High School.

MRS. LLOYD GASPAR JR.

Salvation Army Women slate Home League dinner

"Wonderful World of Women" will be theme of Home League dinner at 5 p.m. Thursday when more than 1,000 Salvation Army women and friends gather in Lafayette Hotel.

Key speaker will be Mrs. Commissioner Erik Wickberg of London, international president of Salvation Army Girl Guards and world president of nurses' fellowship.

Illustrating international scope of the Salvation Army will be taped messages from Salvationist women in Germany, Australia, Sweden, Italy, Argentina, the Philippines and Japan.

Mrs. Commissioner William J. Parkins of San Francisco, president of women's services, Western territory, will present the annual Loving Heart award.

The dinner will mark 10th anniversary of annual camp meetings in Long Beach. This year's session will continue through Sunday at Municipal Auditorium.

Long Beach auxiliary and Inglewood Home League are in charge of banquet decorations.

Other leaders to be on hand will be Mmes. Lt. Commissioner Paul J. Carlson of Chicago, central territory president of women's services; and Col. Leslie Pindred of Toronto, national Home League secretary for Canada and Bermuda.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Never have I written to anyone for advice before, but I need help from an outsider. I've been going with Ben (fake name) for nine years. We are both in our early fifties and can't marry now for reasons beyond our control. I have loved Ben faithfully all these years. He has his good points, but what upsets me is the way he acts whenever a good looking woman comes on the scene.

He looks her over as though he were judging a heifer at a livestock show. If she pays any attention to him he carries on like her long-lost lover, putting his arms around her and giving her pats and squeezes. He forgets I am even in the room.

I have pleaded with him and threatened him, but it hasn't changed this 52-year old playboy.

If we should marry, do you think our marriage would stand a chance?

BEN'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I have the feeling you may be worrying about a problem that you may never have to face. The most you can hope for is for Ben to quit looking at other women while you're looking at Ben.

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband he was a quiet, gentle man. Now success has changed him. I have just returned from a "vacation" with him, which I must admit I did not enjoy.

My husband's financial success has given him what he calls "confidence." I call it an overbearing tendency to brag. Everyone we met had to listen to his Horatio Alger life's story. Abby, it was embarrassing. He had made a fine success in business, but where is his modesty and taste?

I am probably not saying this right, but proud as I am of his tremendous "Operation Boot Strap" success, I long for the humble man who sat quietly by my side and talked of something other than himself and his money.

I love him. How can I help him?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell him, my dear. Tell him.

DEAR ABBY: Last Saturday night I had a date with a guy I'll call Joe. It was supposed to be a double date with another couple I'll call Jim and Sue.

Sue had a headache, or so she said, and couldn't make it, so Jim came along with Joe and me.

I felt sorry for Jim being without a girl and all, so I tried to make it up to him and I danced half the dances with him and half with Joe.

Joe got mad at me, and now he won't even speak to me. Who is wrong? If I'm wrong I'll apologize as soon as I see Joe again.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Since Jim didn't have a date, he was rather presumptuous to have gone along with you and Joe. You may have meant well, but I'm afraid you went too far trying to give both Joe and Jim a pleasant evening. Apologize to Joe. If he doesn't forgive you—well, there's always Jim.

FORMER LONG BEACH GIRL IS ONE OF THE MODELS

U.S. style show behind Iron Curtain

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW—"We won't have any topless bathing suits, but we'll have almost everything else you can think of," said a U.S. participant in the forthcoming Moscow Fashion Festival.

About 150,000 Soviet citizens, most of them women, are expected to see the daily U.S. fashion shows featuring everything from $750 cocktail dresses to sequined pajamas.

Whether Russian women, long resigned to frumpy frocks and drab designs, will ever see the glittering American fashions in Moscow stores is another question.

"We don't expect to sell certain items," admitted Andrew Wingate, fashion show director. "We put them in just to make the show look bright and gaudy."

THE MOSCOW fashion show, with designs from America and 26 other countries, is being held at the 10,000-seat Sports Palace. At a separate location during the two-week festival beginning Tuesday, 1,100 clothing industry companies from 26 countries will display their wares in pavilions at Sokolniki Park.

Seventeen U.S. companies are represented at the America Pavalion, which expects attendance there to reach some 750,000.

Peter Corn, over-all director of the U.S. pavilion and the fashion show, said: "We're hopeful we can sell synthetic fibers, textiles and finished garments.

"We expect Soviet interest in wash-and-wear sports clothes and low-priced dresses, and certain specialized items that have a market here — such as work socks for railroad men or loggers."

The fashion show will feature outfits by such famous designers as Anne Fogarty, Rudi Garnreich and Bill Blass.

DOROTHY ELLIS, former resident of Long Beach who served as secretary of Long Beach's 1963 Diamond Jubilee celebration, is one of 12 professional models on U.S. fashion tour behind Iron Curtain.

SOME OF FASHIONS FROM AMERICAN COUTURE being shown this week and next in Russia at Moscow Fashion Festival . . . part of six-week's fashion tour behind Iron Curtain sponsored by U.S. State Department. Following showings in Moscow, group will move on to Poland and Czechoslovakia for showings in Warsaw and Prague. It's first serious effort ever made by U.S. clothing industry to sell to Russia.

Goucher Club sets benefit

Annual benefit of Goucher Club of Southern California will be Thursday at Hollywood Bowl. Each year alumnae of Goucher College in Baltimore, Md., present a fund-raising event to provide financial assistance to Southland coeds attending the school. Reservations may be made through Mrs. Mitchell Lathrop, 1375 Inverness Drive, Pasadena.

Style-conscious coeds study fashion rules contemporary—and still keep propriety intact.

Take short skirts, for instance—the ones that hit well above the knee, as they do this season in teenage circles.

The thing to remember is that abbreviated skirts have a difficult time keeping the situation covered when stocking tops, girdles and supporters are involved.

The answer to the problem of what to wear underneath is pantyhose or tights. The new knee socks are smart, too, worn with kicky kilts and sporty skirts.

And there IS a way to make your shortest skirt look longer. Just throw away your sheer nylons (they run, anyway) and buy opaque stockings that match the color of your skirt.

By continuing the color of the skirt into the leg, the eye does not jump to the hem and shortness of the skirt is not as obvious. The naked leg or the leg that is color-contrasted to the skirt is the one that emphasizes shortness.

AND FOR THE GIRL who would like to keep in step with the textured look without looking as if she just walked off nursing duty or got caught in someone's fishnet, there are the new dark stockings that provide the perfect stance for fall's squared-off blocky shoes.

Short skirts can—and do—look smart when worn with the right underpinnings and all-in-one leg coverings. It's all a matter of the right girl, the right go-with accessories, the right clothes sense.

That's why—when I was at the board of education—Mr. Cook said, "We don't want to make any hard and fast rule about skirt lengths. It's only the extremes that pose a problem."

TOO SHORT TO MAKE THE GRADE . . . the striped sweater dress (left) and the flounce of a pleated skirt, too scanty even though panty girdle matches knee socks.

This is no hippie car—it's a 'smile buggy

Every time she goes driving in her VW, commercial artist Mrs. Perry Griffith creates a "smile-in." Reason for all those amused grins is that her formerly dingy grey auto is now wall papered in a gay green, blue and yellow floral print. "About six weeks ago, I was moaning that it needed a paint job," she explained. "My son thought zippy wallpaper would be more exciting." So 18-year-old Bill Griffith, recruiting the aid of close friend Bill Smith, went to work. Two days' labor and $16 later, the redecoration was complete, including a bright yellow enamel trim. To weatherproof it, the exterior decorators sealed the finish with a liquid plastic compound. "People can't resist smiling when they see it," Mrs. Griffith said. "They usually wave and offer a few good-natured comments." Last week a tourist with Illinois license plates asked if his wife could shoot "technicolor" movies of the happy little car. Next step? A large bumble bee attached to the aerial, of course!

Carol Larimer changes name to Mrs. J. Mahoney

An 11 a.m. Mass Saturday in St. Matthew's Catholic Church united Carol Larimer and James D. Mahoney Jr. in marriage.

Parents of the couple witnessing the rites were Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Larimer, 1118 Roswell Ave., and Dr. and Mrs. James D. Mahoney, Council Bluffs, Iowa. Also on hand was the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Katherine O'Conner of Pittsburgh, Pa.

An empire gown of silk organza and imported Chantilly lace fashion with lily-point sleeves and detachable train was worn by the bride.

Sally Lunn was maid of honor for her cousin, while the bridegroom's sisters, Robin and Mary Kate Mahoney, were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Carol Patten.

Michael Mahoney was best man for his brother. The bride's brother, Ken and Larry Larimer, and Tom Mahoney, bridegroom's brother, were ushers.

A reception followed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harsch.

The couple will live at 1780 Park Ave. Mrs. Mahoney is an alumna of Wilson High School and Long Beach City College, where she affiliated with Ramayana and Kassai. Her husband is a student at LBCC.

MRS. SCOTT GRATTON

Gratton-Refsnider

Lakewood Community Methodist Church was the scene of nuptials uniting Janice Ellen Refsnider and Scott Edwin Gratton at 11 a.m. Saturday.

A reception in Wardlow Park Clubhouse followed the ceremony and later the bride's mother entertained at a buffet luncheon for close friends and family.

The bride is daughter of Mrs. Albert Refsnider, 4522 Briercrest Ave., Lakewood, and the late Mr. Refsnider. The bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gratton, 4513 Knoxville Ave., Lakewood.

For the wedding, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over taffeta beaded with pearls and crystals. Her train formed a V-line and also was beaded.

Mrs. Greg Searles was matron of honor. Attendants were Jane Refsnider, a sister of the bride, Mrs. Gerald Schlee and Susan Bartlett.

Roy A. Rahn was best man and ushers were Thomas Stanton, Donald Colton, Richard Rucker and David George.

Candlelighters were David Childress and Stphen Judd. Laurie George was flower girl and Douglas Childress was ring bearer.

The bride was graduated from Lakewood High School and California State College, Long Beach. She is a past state officer of Order of Rainbow for Girls and past worthy advisor of the Belmont Shore Assembly.

The bridegroom was graduated from the same schools and also attended Long Beach City College.

Hazlett-Ferris

Mr. and Mrs. Jon Michael Hazlett, whose wedding in First Nazarene Church was Saturday evening, will make their home in Alhambra after a honeymoon in Santa Barbara.

The bride is the former Sandra Sue Ferris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Ferris, 3248 Senasac Ave. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hazlett of New Bloomfield, Mo.

The bride chose a gown of silk organza and appliqued lace with a chapel-length train. Mrs. Donald Bone was matron of honor, Julie Springgate was flower girl and Bridesmaids were Mrs. William Hormann, Mrs. O. D. Ferris, Sherry Shroeder and Jerre Anderson.

Gary Ristrom was best man and Larry Springgate served as ringbearer. Guests were seated by Robert Hazlett Jr., brother of the bridegroom, David Bohannon, Gary Young, David Green, Olive Campbell and Ricci Rerris.

Both are graduates of Pasadena College, where the bride was 1965-66 homecoming queen, and the bridegroom was selected as outstanding athlete for 1966-67. The bride is an alumna of Millikan High School.

MRS. JON HAZLETT

MRS. JOHN ROBERTS

Roberts-Robertshaw

Beth Anne Robertshaw exchanged wedding vows with John Leslie Roberts in a double-ring ceremony Saturday in St. Timothy Lutheran Church.

For her nuptials, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Robertshaw of Lakewood chose a traditional gown of silk organza appliqued with lace.

Mr. and Mrs. William Strohmeyer and Miss Lynda Miedema assisted at the reception.

Her sister, Cathy Robertshaw, was maid of honor; Mrs. Raymond Roberts and Mrs. Lowell Hatfield were bridesmaids; and Janet Jones was flower girl.

The bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Roberts, 6764 Lemon Ave. His brother, Raymond, was best man and other brothers, Robert and James, were ushers. Jeffrey Jones was ring bearer.

The reception was in the home of the bride's parents. The couple will make a home in North Long Beach upon returning from a wedding trip to Carmel. Mrs. Roberts is a graduate of Lakewood High School, Long Beach City College, and California State College, Long Beach. Her husband is an alumnus of Jordan High School and attended LBCC.

Mr. Roberts is employed by the Independent, Press-Telegram and his bride is secretary for United California Bank, Bixby Knolls.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Plaintiff tips scales when partners argue fine points

If you ever get into an argument with your partner and the argument progresses to the point where a bet is made you will do very well if you bet that your partner did something wrong.

If you make a mistake and bet that you were right then you are likely to lose because on most argumentative occasions an impartial referee is likely to rule that both partners were wrong.

Of course, if you bet on degree of guilt the chances are that one partner is more guilty than the other.

West opened the queen of diamonds against the contract of five clubs doubled. East played the four. West continued the suit whereupon South ruffed, cashed his ace-king of trumps and ace of spades.

Then he led a spade to dummy's king, ruffed a third spade, went back to dummy with the ten of clubs, discarded two hearts on the good spades and made his contract.

West felt that East should have won that first diamond and led back a heart. East pointed out that he had played his lowest diamond and that West should have shifted to a heart. We are asked to adjudicate and our verdict is that both partners went wrong but that East was far more guilty.

East had bid brilliantly and succeeded in pushing South one beyond his depth. West had made a free bid of three diamonds and doubled five clubs and East should have known that diamonds would not go around twice.

Therefore he should have won the diamonds and led a heart. On the other hand West also should have led a heart at trick two. He could be sure that his partner would hold either the ace or queen of hearts and that a heart shift could not be wrong.

KERN RIVER IS BOUNTIFUL

Rover TC is quite unique

By BILL EMERY

A favorite year-around vacationland just 3½ hours from Long Beach offers recreation unlimited on the fabulous Kern River in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

We made this circle tour last weekend in the new and unique Rover 2000 TC Sports Sedan borrowed from Frank Marshall of Import Auto, 1460 Long Beach Blvd.

What makes the 2000 TC (for twin carburetor) Rover different from other sedans is its unusual monocoque structure. The body-chassis is a rib cage-like structure of steel that protects the passengers even from the engine, deflecting it down beneath the steel floor in event of an accident. Individual body panels make minor repairs easy and inexpensive.

* * * *

OF PARTICULAR interest is the fact that the complete car was designed around radial cord tires for improved road holding and three times longer tread wear. Pirelli "Gold Stripe" Cinturato tires are standard equipment.

The engine is a two-liter (121 cu. in.) four-cylinder single overhead cam with combustion chambers in the pistons instead of in the head. This is a common diesel engine practice, but a comparatively recent innovation in automotive engines.

Equally up-to-date is the advanced suspension system as well as the braking system. The Rover was made to go (top speed is 120 m.p.h.) and it was also made to stop in as short a distance as possible. Dunlop disc brakes are used on all four wheels. Warning lights tell you whether the brake fluid is low or the emergency is on.

* * * *

ROVER SPENT five years in the design of this sports sedan, and the real payoff is in the creature comforts of the interior. The fully-reclining leather bucket seats can be locked in the exact position that supports the small of your back.

The Rover has a multitude of features engineered to give you the utmost in riding and driving pleasure. Automatic transmission and air conditioning are available as optional factory equipment.

Driving the winding road to Lake Isabella from Bakersfield proved to us that this sports sedan is extremely agile and responsive when put to the "curve" test. On the desert straight-away, it cruises like a heavy luxury sedan, though its curb weight is just 2867 pounds. With gasoline mileage of just over 25 m.p.g., this $4,000 Rover could be called an economy car!

For a free booklet with 10 close-to-home auto tours complete with maps designed by the American Petroleum Institute and published by this newspaper, send your name and address to IPT Travel Bureau, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

Another in a series of A.P.I. Discover America tours will be published in this newspaper Sept. 12.

FISHIN'S GOOD

It's difficult to believe that there is a wide, rushing, clear river in Southern California full of Rainbow and German Brown trout some of which weigh in excess of 20 pounds. Kern River, the fastest flowing river in the U.S., originates in the runoff of snow-clad Mount Whitney dropping from over 8,000 feet to around 1,000 feet in 85 miles.

* * * *

JUST BELOW Kernville, beautiful Lake Isabella is withing a few feet of capacity and has become the boaters' paradise as Southern California's largest fresh water lake.

This year's record flood nearly filled the lake as it wiped out the fish hatchery and Kernville bridge above. The temporary bridge now in use will be replaced along with a new fish hatchery when work begins on the projects this fall.

Meantime, the Kern River is being stocked once or twice a week with trout, bass, bluegill, catfish and crappie. Nearly everyone young and old was catching fish last weekend. Trout and Bluegill seemed to be predominant with red worms or cheese as bait.

* * * *

WINTERTIME offers the best climate for activity. A fifteen-minute drive to Shirley Meadow is a favorite 7,100-foot-high ski slope with two tows. Kern River Valley offers 28 compsites ranging from 2,000 feet elevation below Bodfish to 7,600 feet at Frog Meadow with or without trailers.

* * * *

Riding, hiking, water skiing, pack trips, a nine-hole championship golf course, lapidary and mineral formations and historic points of interest provide plenty of outdoor activities.

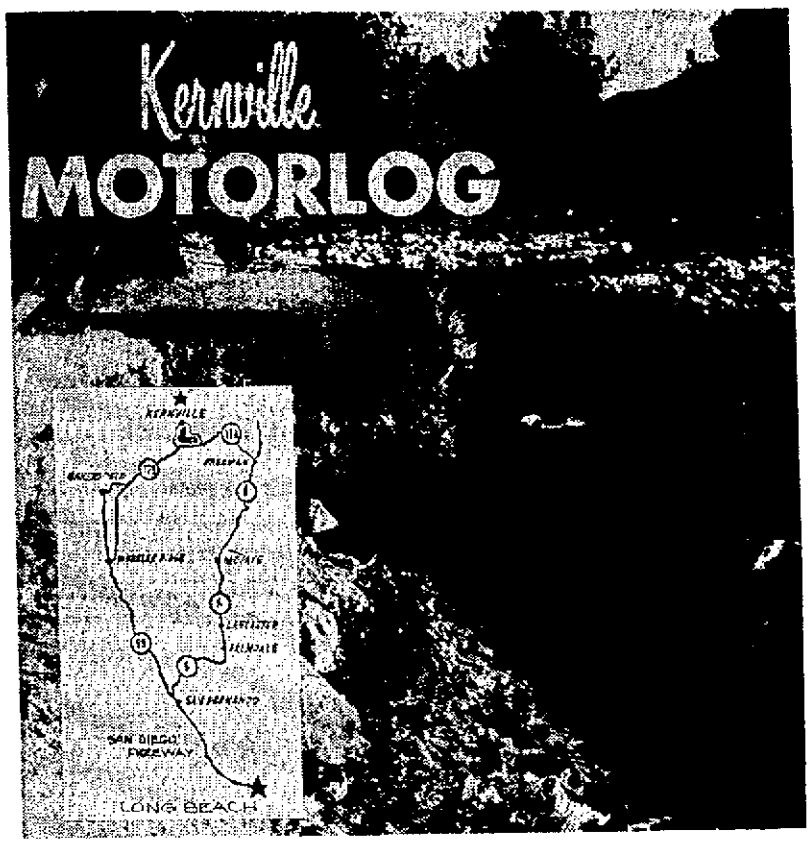

There are a number of excellent motels and good eating establishments in the area. The Valley View offers nice accommodations from $7.50 per couple. The River View Motel in the center of Kernville has nice units from $10.50 per couple and the Lazy River Lodge has duplex units with fireplace and pool from $14.00 per couple. The prices are low for a resort area.

* * * *

JACK EWING'S restaurant and lounge command the most picturesque view of the rushing Kern River. Now managed by Hank and Junior Moziek, son-in-law and daughter, Ewing's serves gourmet cusine equal to the metropolitan city's finest at small town prices.

The bar and restaraunt double as an art museum. A painting behind the bar depicts the valley in panorama while hand-carved figures of wagons, horses, mules and people fill in the foreground. A 20-mule team and a mining town are some of the other carvings.

Kern River is an intriguine place to visit . . . both for recreation and for rest. For that restful feeling on a long trip, enjoy it in a smooth as silk Rover!

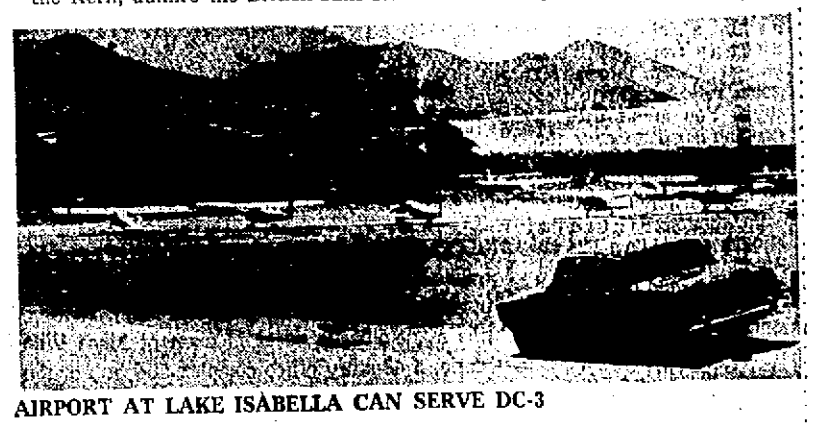

YEAR AROUND RESORT

There is something going on all year in the Kern River Valley area, but the months coming up offer the best climate for activity.

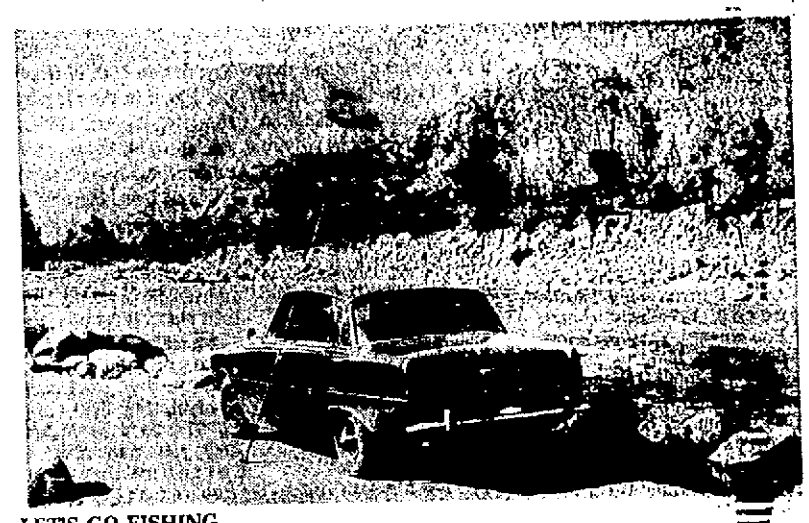

ROVER TC IS SPORTS SEDAN

Hank and Junior Moziek, managers of Ewing's restaurant and lounge on the Kern, admire the British-built Rover 2000 TC Sports Sedan.

AIRPORT AT LAKE ISABELLA CAN SERVE DC-3

LET'S GO FISHING

The beautiful Kern River gets stocked with fish 1 or 2 times each week. A record number of fish are caught here regularly.

"With a full factory warranty for 2 years or 24,000 miles, you'll enjoy this great car with a minimum of maintenance and operational costs, and, as an added bonus, Valvoline's New Car Lifetime Guaranty extends from there."

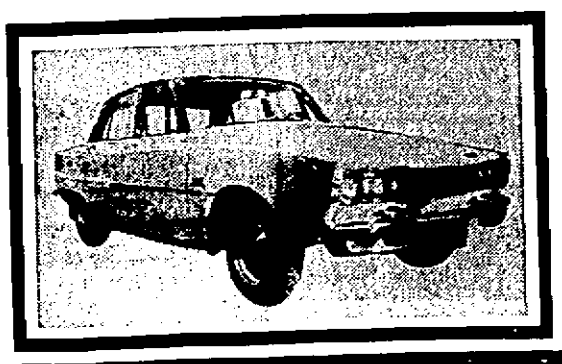

LOUIE SEEHAUS
Service Manager

THE LEATHER'S PRIME

Take a leather upholstered bucket seat in the Rover 2000 TC Sports Sedan. Look around: walnut veneer and satiny black. Adjust the wheel and the seat-back to suit you (anywhere—just like your back.) It won't lie flat—just hammock angle. (But please don't drive that way.)

The nice thing about the 2000 TC is that everything not only looks nice, everything works. The upholstery is just a sample of the thoughtful engineering and design of the Rover 2000 TC.

Does the World's finest car only cost $4,000?*

Air Conditioning or Automatic Transmission optional

"The Rover is an automobile that must be driven to appreciate the ultimate combination of luxury, comfort and handling. It excels in craftsmanship, engineering and high-speed cruising. Come in now for a demonstration ride."

The Rover 2000 Automatic goes it alone smooth as silk, or . . . You shift into Lock-up and take over with sports car enthusiasm. Automatic is nice, but at times you might want to select gears or hold in one gear. Why not test drive it both ways?

OPEN SUNDAY

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Driving from London

"We will be driving north from London, picking up a car at the airport (ordered in advance). Will we have difficulty getting through town—left-hand drive etc. What about tipping? What about a driving license?"

PRETTY GIRLS AND TALL BUILDINGS are a familiar sight in Montreal, where EXPO 67 is now in progress. To demonstrate the city's charms, this mademoiselle poses in front of Place Ville Marie, a 43-story office complex and hub of the downtown skyscraper belt. (Canadian Government Travel Bureau photo.)

LONDON airport is north of town. You don't have to drive through it. You pick up the M-1 — the northbound freeway — alongside the airport. The rent-car people will put you on it.

The left-hand driving takes a thinking day to get used to. Keep your mind on it while driving. I wouldn't go out immediately on arrival. Sleep over night. You have a six-hour time change from New York, and it really throws off your reflexes. You need them. You aren't used to gauging car distance to the curb from a right-hand wheel. (I clipped a parked car immediately last year.)

For tipping: Figure the English shilling like an American quarter. If the tip at home would be 50 cents —two shillings. Porters a shilling a bag. Taxis and restaurants, 10 to 12 per cent of the bill.

If you sit at a pub bar, you don't tip the bartender (as we do). You ask him if he'd like a beer. More often the barman is a woman. Ask if you can buy her a beer anyway. She'll say yes.

* * * *

"We shall have to take presents to people in Ireland and England and can't think of a thing."

I TAKE long play records. Broadway shows. cards. Broadway shows. Pop singers. They pack flat, and I've had no trouble with Customs. Customs in these countries ALWAYS ask if you are bringing presents (I've never figured out what you CAN'T bring in, but I imagine it depends on how expensive it is.)

Europe gets just about everything we have here now. Just as we now can buy European things that used to be rare. Local things — (San Francisco cable car jewelry) — are unusual gifts for Europe. Color postcards from your home town?

* * * *

"You once mentioned a place (for lunch?) in Rome with a delicious dessert..."

CAPPRICCIO, across from the American Embassy. Very pleasant. Somewhat pricey. The dessert is Monte Bianca.

* * * *

"... the Mexican restaurant you mentioned in Mexico City."

I GUESS you mean Prendes on 16th of September Street in the old part of the city. Pigeon, red snapper, shrimps, steak and excellent draft beer. The waiters have been there as long as I can remember, and the service is pleasant and professional. Brightly lit and tile floor — no candlelight place. But I like it.

Another would be the rooftop of the Majestic Hotel on the great square. At night, they light the plaza. The food is Mexican. And you remember that Cortez marched into this same square when there was a temple where the cathedral stands. And the Presidential palace was the palace of Montezuma.

SOUTHLAND CALENDAR

Coming up: kid rodeo, mission fiesta, racing

Visitors and other gadders in Southern California during September will be treated to a concert by 200 pianists playing at once, a feast of 40,000 aebleskiver, and a barbecue cooked by Indians.

There will be a race between a kid cowboys rodeo, a mission fiesta and the nation's top sedan road race, according to the area's All-Year Club.

Aebleskiver are ball-shaped Danish pancakes, and they will be served in a mass breakfast along the main street of Solvang when the Danish-descended residents of this town celebrate Danish Days Sept. 16-17.

Morongo Indians will prepare a pit roasted barbecue, using only mountain-grown wood for fuel and serving a special sauce of their own, during the Morongo Valley Fiesta in the high desert next Saturday. There will be Indian dances and sales of Indian produced items.

* * * *

THE GIANT piano recital will be the annual San Diego Piano Festival scheduled outdoors in Balboa Park Sept. 17.

A fiesta Sept. 2-5 will celebrate the 196th birthday of San Gabriel Mission from which a party set out to found the pueblo that is now Los Angeles. There will be a Spanish parade, Spanish food, small pet and children's costume parade, blessing of the animals by the mission padres.

Top drivers of the nation will compete at world-famous Riverside International Raceway on Sept. 17 in the Mission Bell Trophy Sedan Race. Racing sedans will include Mustang, Cougar, Dart, Barracuda, Alfa Romeo over an overall time of four hours on a 2.6 mile road course.

* * * *

A SPECIAL "Little Britches" rodeo for kid cowboys and cowgirls will be held at Tehachapi, high up in the pass of that name, during the Fruit Festival Sept. 20-21.

The "biggest and most beautiful county fair" will be held Sept. 15 through Oct. 1. That's the Los Angeles County Fair, bigger than all but one state fair, at the beautifully landscaped grounds at Pomona in the orange belt.

Rural Olympics open Saturday at Lancaster's fair

Rural Olympics come to Lancaster next Saturday with the opening of the 24th annual Antelope Valley Fair and Alfalfa Festival.

The hilarious Olympics get everyone into the act who feels up to it.

The fair continues through Sept. 4.

WEST INDIES GUIDE READY

If you plan a West Indies cruise this year, Holland-America Line has a helpful guide designed to answer cruising questions.

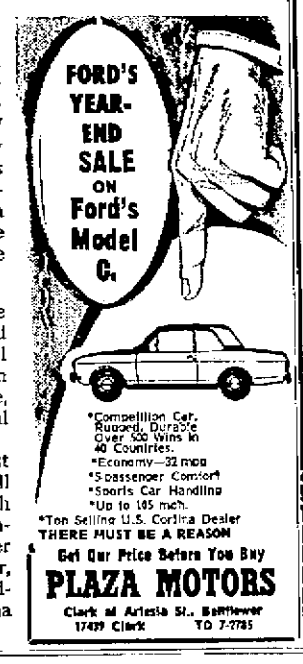

Entitled "Cues and Clues to West Indies Cruising," the colorful 17-page booklet describes the easiest way to arrange a cruise, expenses involved, what to take along and what to expect in the way of cuisine, activities and entertainment. There is also a brief description of ports-of-call in the West Indies.

The booklet is free. Ask your travel agent or any Holland-America Line office.

Autumn in beautiful British Columbia

Canada's four-season vacation land

Discover the charm and glitter of Vancouver.

Cruise sheltered coastal waters.

Cool sea breezes stir the stands of fir and cedar along the fjord-indented British Columbia coast. Apple orchards ripen in the lush valleys of the Okanagan and the Kootenays. Bursts of floral beauty enliven the gardens of Victoria, and from Vancouver Island to the Peace River country, glowing autumn colors enrich the forest greenery. It's a relaxing, refreshing time to travel the coastal waterways and modern highways of Canada's Pacific province. And the choice in active fun is unlimited. Come for the golf and the fabulous fishing . . . the mountain skyrides and coastal ferry cruises . . . the discovery of historic sites, such as Fort Steele and Fort Langley. Wherever you go, you'll find a friendly greeting. Come for an autumn holiday . . . and sample the fun you'll have all year 'round in British Columbia.

Fish for fighting Steelhead trout.

Orsova, your 630-room hotel for the trip home via Lisbon, Trinidad and Curacao.

This fall, you can sail to Mexico, Panama, the Caribbean, Europe, Portugal and back on P&O's "Spanish Main" holiday

—50 days from $1206 including sightseeing, escorts, and a tour of London and Paris!

The Iberia, P&O's 30,000-ton floating hotel, sails from Los Angeles October 7 on her escorted, all-inclusive "Spanish Main" Holiday to Europe and back. Including 13 ports of call in 9 countries.

You can be aboard her for as little as $172 a week. And see Acapulco, the Panama Canal, the bazaars of Balboa and Cristobal, Nassau, Florida and Bermuda.

From there, you'll sail on for five lazy days, crossing to England. Unless you don't care to be lazy. In that case, you can play deck tennis, cricket, or the horses. Go swimming. Or pick up a few duty-free bargains at one of the gift shops. In the evenings, there's dining, dancing, movies, and parties all over the ship.

When you reach England, you'll be relaxed and ready for four days of sightseeing in London and another four days in Paris.

Then you'll board ship again, this time P&O's 29,000-ton Orsova at Le Havre. And sail to Lisbon, Portugal for a day and an evening. Then to the historic ports of the Spanish Main—Trinidad, and Curacao—on your way home.

All told, over 50 days of high adventure on two of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas."

Price: first class starts at $1378, tourist at $1206. Sightseeing and tours included.

For complete details, mail the coupon for free illustrated brochure. Then see your travel agent.

Make this the year you run away to sea with P&O.

SHORT TRIPS OR AROUND THE WORLD

Popularity of cruising mounts

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

Short cruises to Acapulco or Hawaii, and longer sailings to South America, the Caribbean, Europe, South Pacific, Orient or around the world will rank increasingly high as travel preferences by vacationists this Fall and Winter and next Spring.

In the latter categories, departing from New York, the MS Kungsholm and MS Gripsholm, sleek cruise ships of the Swedish American Line, will be foremost in demand by seasoned gadders from Southern California who seek the maximum of accommodation, comfort and pampering at minimum cost in the Caribbean and South America, the Mediterranean and Europe, and even in the Pacific.

Both ships begin their schedules within a few weeks, the Gripsholm departing Sept. 7 on a 41-day Fall cruise to the Mediterranean, Europe and Scandinavia; and the Kungsholm, Oct. 19 for a 44-day outing touching Florida, the Panama Canal Zone, around South America and back into the Caribbean. Rates start at $1,290 for the Gripsholm cruise, $1,400 on the Kungsholm.

* * * *

LONGEST Kungsholm sailing will be its "Cruise of a Lifetime" which departs New York on Jan. 6 for 93 days in the South Seas, Far East and Pacific, and putting in at Los Angeles Harbor on March 26 en route to Guadalupe Island and Acapulco, Canal Zone, Florida and New York. The cruise is unique in that it visits such off-the-beaten-path spots as Galapagos and Marquesas Islands and Bali.

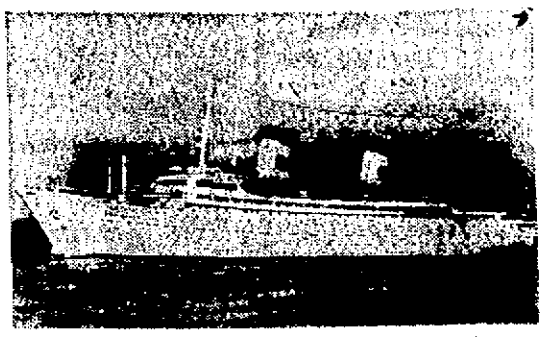

Her departure from Los Angeles marks the beginning of the Kungsholm's "Spring Adventure Cruise" — insofar as those who board her here are concerned. After New York, the big ship proceeds to the Azores, Spain, France, Holland, England, Wales, Isle of Man, Scotland and northern Ireland, returning to New York on May 17. Passengers will witness the unfolding of Spring blossoms all the way from the Azores to Ireland.

* * * *

EQUALLY interesting cruises are scheduled for the Gripsholm, including three sailings — Dec. 5-21 and Jan 5 — from New York to the Caribbean.

The first of three long journeys, however, starts Jan. 23 when she puts out of New York on a 42-day, 13,278-miler to Africa and South America. Ten ports are on the itenerary, and there will be cruises up the Amazon and Para Rivers. Rates begin at $1,475.

On March 7, she sails from New York on an even longer junket: 56 days to the Greek Islands, Mediterranean and Black Seas. Thirty-five ports are to be visited on the 14,693-mile itinerary. Minimum rates are $2,255. On May 4 she will make another Mediterranean sailing, this one for 32 days with prices starting at $925.

SWEDISH AMERICAN LINE'S motorliner Gripsholm, with practically every amenity known to sailing, is typical of luxury liners now roving the seven seas.

Both the Kungsholm and Gripsholm are scheduled for 47-day cruises of 11,969 miles to Iceland, Scandinavia and Leningrad, Russia. Twenty-five ports are to be visited. The Kungsholm departs June 28 and the Gripsholm on July 18. Rates on the Kungsholm will start at $1,650; the Gripsholm, $1,400.

* * * *

AT THE SAME time, American Export Isbrandtsen Lines of Los Angeles announced a series of Sunlane Cruises on the SS Atlantic, SS Constitution and SS Independence from New York.

Most important sailing on the Constitution's schedule will be a 67-day holiday to the Caribbean and Mediterranean, including stops in Turkey and Russia. Departure is Feb. 24 (Feb. 26 from Port Everglades, Fla.) with 46 ports on the call list. Prices begin at $1,745.

Among sailings on the Atlantic, a one-class ship, is that on Sept. 5 for 39 days and 21 ports in the Mediterranean and Adriatic with prices as low as $950.

A series of short "Beachcomber" cruises to Port Everglades and-or Caribbean destinations starts Dec. 8.

The Independence and Constitution maintain regular service between New York and Spain, France and Italy while, during the year, the Atlantic calls regularly at Mediterranean ports. In addition, a Sunlane freighter sails frequently on a 'round-the-world cruise of 120 days.

California realtors confer on Lurline Hawaii cruise

California realtors will sharpen their skills at a series of shipboard conferences on the SS Lurline during a cruise home from Honolulu in October.

The fourth annual shipboard conference, sponsored by the California Real Estate Association, will be held on the big Matson liner on the sailing from Honolulu on Oct. 20, following the 12th Annual Real Estate Educational Conference.

A 15 per cent fare reduction will be offered realtors and guests participating in the seagoing conference en route to San Francisco. Passengers may make the overnight trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles on the Lurline for no additional charge.

The education program aboard the Lurline during the 4½-day cruise will include lectures and workshops on selling commercial properties, trends in real estate office administration, financing investment properties, and communications and management development.

The air-sea tour will start October 14 with jet flight to Honolulu.

Bahamas popular

The number of tourists visiting the Bahamas annually has risen from a mere 32,018 in 1949 to 822,317 in 1966. This year, the sunny archipelago confidently expects a record 900,000 tourists.

Around the world in 100 days — or longer — is the suggestion for winter vacation travel by P&O Lines.

There's the "Seven Seas" round-world "Adventure Voyage," a westbound travel opportunity, starting at Port of Los Angeles on Oct. 31. It's a one-ship tour aboard P&O's steamship Orsova, with a lot of ocean to cross in the Southern Hemisphere, where it will be spring and summer that time of the year.

Included in the meandering itinerary is a four-day overland visit to Japan's top attractions — Yokohama, Tokyo, Nikko National Park, Kyoto and Kobe — A total of seven days in Australian ports and a selection of European tours during the 25 days there.

Depending on conditions in the Middle East Orsova will either sail through the Suez Canal and Mediterranean or take the longer route around the tip of South Africa.

Return from England will be via Madeira, Bermuda, Pt. Everglades, Nassau, the Panama Canal and Acapulco. Orsova will arrive back at Port of Los Angeles in mid-February. All-inclusive fares start at $2,544 tourist class and $3,025 first class.

P&O HAS also scheduled 22 voyages through the Caribbean — nine westbound from London and 13 eastbound from Los Angeles, in 1967-68. Sailings will be frequent and regular in all seasons.

There's a choice of sailing on the 45,000-ton Canberra through the Panama Canal with only inches to spare, or of sailing on her smallest of eight ships, the 24,000-ton, 1000-berth Chusan. There's a wide range of fares, starting at $311 for four-berth cabins to Bermuda or $1,450 for accommodations in the verandah suite. Information on all sailings may be obtained from travel agents or the P&O Los Angeles office, 611 W. 7th St.

Southland 'most important' market, says Air Canada

MONTREAL — Southern California is the most important new market to be served by Air Canada in recent years.

So stated H. W. Seagrim, executive vice president of the airline who explained that studies have proven "Southern California holds out greater potential than any other single market area where we have entered in the past two decades."

The significance of that statement is measured best when it is realized that Air Canada's system covers 64,000 miles, extending coast to coast in Canada and the United States, and to the Caribbean and Europe, Air Canada's record of continuous transatlantic service is the longest in the airline industry.

Air Canada plans to inaugurate service between Los Angeles and Toronto-Montreal on Sept. 29, utilizing 139-passenger DC-8 jets. Flights will fly nonstop to Toronto and continue on to Montreal.

Montreal will thus become a convenient new gateway to Europe for Californians. Air Canada flies directly from Montreal to London, Paris, Frankfurt, Vienna, Zurich, Copenhagen, Moscow, Prestwick and Shannon.

MRS. W.S. JOHNSON

L.B. teacher recites vows in Iowa rite

Church of the Assumption, Norwalk, Iowa, was setting for a Saturday exchange of vows between Joann Johnson and William S. Johnson Jr.

The bride, who has taught for four years at Franklin Junior High School, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Johnson of Norwalk, Iowa. Her husband is son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Johnson Sr., Baltimore, Md. A silk organza sheath gown styled along empire lines was worn by the bride. Re-embroidered Alencon lace appliques accented the silk organza chapel train.

Kathy Horras was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Madonna Johnson and Margaret Flannigan.

William Flannigan was best man. Ushering the 150 guests were Bob Johnson and Dennis Johnson.

Upon returning Sept. 7 from a wedding trip to Estes Park, Colo., and Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds will live in Los Alamitos. Mrs. Johnson is an alumna of Marycrest College, Davenport, Iowa. Her husband holds a degree from Duke University, Durham, N.C., and recently completed a four-year tour of duty as an officer aboard the USS Bon Homme Richard.

Miss Slames now is Mrs. Hays

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday in St. Justin Martyr Catholic Church by Annette Rae Slames and Charles Benny Hays, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Hays, Westminster.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Slames, Anaheim, wore a gown of organza over tulle and taffeta fashioned with a cone-shape skirt and Watteau train trimmed with Alecon lace and seed pearl appliques.

Arlene Carol Slames was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Patricia Ann Slames, Peggy Slames, Romaine Czeczok, Patricia Olson and Claudia Coil. Flower girl was Carol Lorraine Schnitzer.

William Benning was best man for his cousin. Ushers were William Comport, Kenneth Alibee, Arthur Orth, Steven and Frank Slames. Martin Jensen was ring bearer.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds will be at home in Anaheim.

A huge buck, its antlers towering above the brush, hesitates before bolting from the hunter.

In that second, the buck's nostrils flare wider and — instead of fleeing — he advances toward the hunter.

Why?

The answer is in a couple drops of doe-scented liquid the hunter applied to his boots back in camp.

The drops come from a small white polythylene bottle, part of a recent 110-gallon batch manufactured by the National Scent Company, 10660 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove.

* * * *

WHAT NSC does in its unobtrusive plant on the city's first industrial row is nothing short of miraculous.

Name any scent found in the hunting, trapping and fishing world and NSC's personable owner, Paul Howard Jr., can quickly hand you a vial of synthetic odor to match.

If he doesn't have it, he'll make it.

It all began in 1928. A government trapper developed a scent he found successful in trapping fox and he went to Paul Howard Sr., a Chilhuwee, Mo., banker, for backing.

The banker went partners on the venture, later bought out the trapper.

* * * *

AFTER World War II, Paul Howard Jr., took over the business and opened his Orange County plant.

Bird dogs across the country are trained with the use of NSC's bottled scents, making the use of drags and dummies old hat.

By 1957, Howard's "skunk works" (as his friends jokingly refer to the plant) was grossing $300,000 and that figure has climbed steadily since then.

"The worst smell I make?" Howard repeats the question. "Rabbit — by far!"

LOYAL employes Fred Pfister, Hal Potts, Bob Howard and Com Parker agree — after running the gamut from skunk to weasel.

The wildlife scents are "big sellers," Howard laughs, but the house-dog scents are his big money-makers.

NSC manufactures scents that take dogs' minds off sex, off furniture, off rose bushes and garbage cans. One will even make Pooch's favorite fire hydrant off limits, despite long years of use.

* * * *

OTHER manufacturers continually quiz Howard on the chances he will expand into other than wildlife and house pet scents.

"Well — not as yet," he answers.

While Howard has enjoyed a brisk business in the sporting world, fellow scent-makers have specialized in other fields.

A score of companies in the U.S., according to Marathon World, are doing $25 million worth of business each year in such "environmental aromas."

* * * *

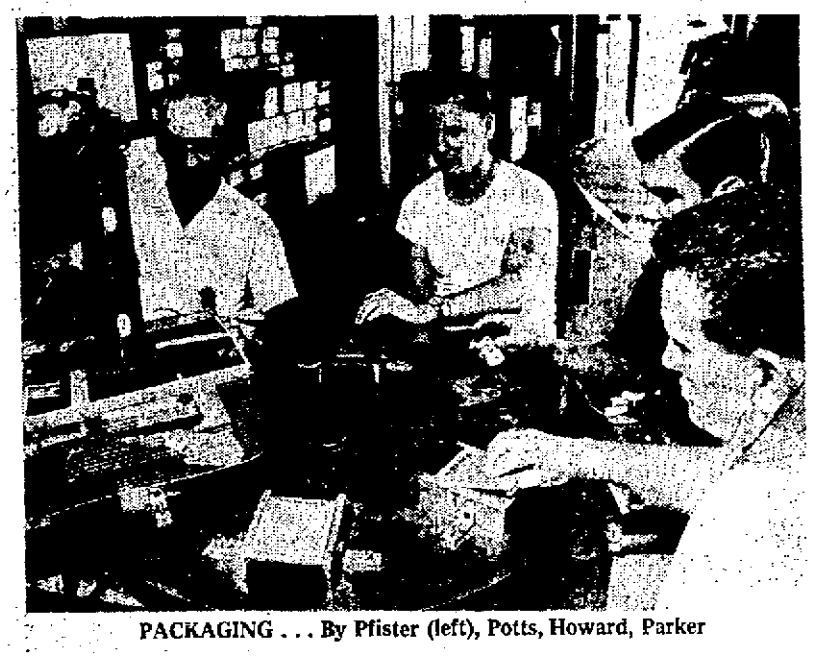

BY NOW, every detergent made in America carries a scent to make the family laundry smell of fresh air.

Modern packaging is so good aromas are trapped inside, leaving little for the consumer to sniff before purchasing.

The scent merchants listened to the complaint. Now, for instance, a loaf of cinnamon bread smells that way. The reason: artificial smells are incorporated in the polyethlene wrappings.

For this same reason, a housewife can boast her plastic handbag smells like leather, a boating enthusiast feels better because

First Land Quotation Service Is Initiated by Encino Research Firm

A Los Angeles land investment company has developed what it claims is the first land quotation service in the history of the real estate business.

Borrowing from traditional stock quotation services, Land Investment Research Co., of Encino, says it will provide "judgments of value" on any 10-acre-or larger parcel of land in Southern California, within eight working hours of the request for a quote.

"The 'ticker symbol' for us is the legal description of the property as noted on the deed," Richard P. Carlsberg, president of Land Investment Research, said. Requests for quotes — which are provided at no charge — can be telephoned or written to the company, he added.

* * * *

QUOTING LAND values has been "risky" in the past, Carlsberg said, "because of a lack of proper standards by which to evaluate land and a lack of research into the various factors that influence the cost of land."

He claims Land Investment Research has "now made sufficient progress to substantiate the land-value quotations we provide."

"The quotations will be based on our master land-research files rather than on-site inspection," Carlsberg said. "Therefore, our quotation will not necessarily be precise to the penny. We will, however, provide a reasonable range of value at the current time, predicted on all known factors in the area."

Approximately one-third of Land Investment Research's 60 employes are assigned to land research and analysis, according to Carlsberg, and the firm often is employed as an appraiser.

* * * *

"WE REALLY think we know more about the land in Southern California than most of the people who own that land," Carlsberg claimed.

The company's primary business is land-investment counseling and brokerage for individual and corporate clients, Carlsberg said. It also manages the land it has acquired for investors.

Carlsberg predicts the new land-quotation service "could conceivably need some de-bugging, but it's a logical extension of our research-and-analysis operations so it should be quite accurate even at the outset."

Requests for quotes can be made by phoning the L.I.R. Quotation Service or by writing the company at 17071 Ventura Blvd., Encino 91317, he said.

Looking Beyond 1968: Railroads' Future Brightening

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

A sick industry for many years, U.S. railroads may be heading into prospects exceedingly bright. The change has been developing in recent years and the big improvement may be seen when viewed beyond 1968.

It is true that railroading may appear to be a lost cause if you visit your ole hometown and note how the familiar depot is closed and on branch lines only twice a week service is offered.

But watching traffic on the main lines crossing the nation is a different story. More and larger trains are noted continually and they are steadily increasing.

THIS YEAR HAS BEEN BAD for railroads due to the general softness in the economy and a sharply reduced grain movement which made railroad revenues decline. And there were sharply increased labor rates.

The recent $300 million annual freight rate increase now will help compensate. Yet a threatened strike against the auto industry would have an adverse effect on railroad revenues.

While the outlook for the immediate future may seem drab, there can be a sunny attitude in the distant future—and not too distant.

There are indications that the national economy is beginning to reverse the downtrends and a good fourth quarter is expected. This will assure a high level of revenues for the rails. Several more rail mergrs are shaping up and these will produce important cost savings and offer more efficient service, thereby improving their competitive position.

LOOKING WELL INTO 1968, the railroads should share fully in the growth of the economy. In recent years the industry has stemmed the steady decline of its share of freight traffic. This has been accomplished through selective rate reductions and through the introduction of traffic building techniques such as piggyback, unit trains, and automobile rack cars.

The automobile cars has resulted in the share of railroad movement of cars increasing from 10 per cent in 1960 to 50 per cent the first half of this year. Extension of these new traffic techniques can give railroads a larger share of total intercity traffic.

Railroad leaders, in the face of uncertainties, have made large-scale capital improvements which have increased efficiency considerably. One way the substantial cost reductions can be reduced is through mergers, says Goodbody & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mergers proposed to date will save $300 million per year, adds the brokerage firm.

THE AVERAGE CALIFORNIAN paid $395 in taxes to state and local governments in 1966 while the average American paid $290. That was an increase of $34 for Californians and $25 for the average American.

Per capita state-local tax burdens, which grew heavier in every state, ranged from a low of $181 in South Carolina, to a high of $410 in New York.

State and local tax collections rose to a record high of $56.7 billion for the year, a jump of $5.5 billion, the Commerce Clearing House reported. New York led the way with $7.485 billion and close behind was California with $7.478 billion.

CALIFORNIA'S MANUFACTURING activity rose to a value of $21.76 billion in July, a 6.6 per cent gain in a year, reports the Bank of California.

Production of transportation equipment and electrical equipment components showed the greatest growth for the year . Durable goods production, accounting for two-thirds of all manufacturers, increased 8.3 per cent for the year for a total of $14.58 billion. The metal-connected industries, accounting for 73 per cent of all durable goods and 49 per cent of all manufacturers, showed an increase of 10.4 per cent for the year. Transportation equipment, primarily aircraft, led the classification with a value of $4.03 billion, a gain of 15 per cent.

SIGNIFICANT INCREASE in consumer spending along with improved housing starts and the reinstatement of the investment tax credit should help stimulate the capital goods and construction sectors of the economy through the remainder of 1967, reports Eastman Dillon, Union Securities & Co.

The investment and brokerage firm expects spending for consumer durables to reach an anuual rate of about $74 billion by year end, up almost 6 per cent from 1966.

"It is difficult to explain why consumer spending has not increased sooner," the company added. Disposable income reached a record $540.2 billion annual rate at the end of the second quarter, and, even after adjusting for "real" purchasing power, per capita disposable income has advanced to record levels."

But coupled with this increase, Eastman Dillon said, savings rose to an unusally high rate, also. In the first half of 1967, 7.1 cents of every dollar of disposable income went into personal savings, a pace that is extraordinary and not likely to last much longer, the firm continued.

Since 1960 personal savings have averaged only 5.4 per cent of disposable income.

Combination of uncertainties prevalent over the past six months apparently has cowed the consumer into saving so much of his income, the report continued. Among these uncertainties are Vietnam, threat of strikes in many industries and the talk of tax increases.

All of this served to hold back consumer spending on durable goods, which, in spite of record levels of disposable income, actually declined to $69.2 billion in the first quarter of 1967 from $69.6 billion the fourth quarter of 1966.

Eastman Dillon sees a turning around at this time and points to a Commerce Department estimate that durable goods spending will reach $72.1 billion in the second half of the year. Continued growth in income and a possible decline in the savings rate in the near future should have a beneficial impact on the durable goods industries, the firm commented.

THREE OF EVERY FOUR homeowners plan to make home improvements this year for a total national investment of $23 billion, according to the Bureau of Building Marketing Research, Chicago.

This forecast is projected from an in-depth national study of the home improvement market. It extends over a period of more than six years with a series of homeowner interviews and a national questionnaire mailing.

The BBMR study shows that the most frequent home improvements range from lighting fixtures to garages. This year, new lighting fixtures will be installed in 3,338,000 single family homes new floor tile in 3,032,000 homes. There will be 2,923,000 installations of wall paneling and 2,755,000 new electrical circuit jobs. Storm windows and doors will be put up on 2,501,000 homes.

Room additions, however, will involve the biggest expenditure — $2,420,290,000. Kitchen remodeling will rank a close second with $2,321,306,000 invested.

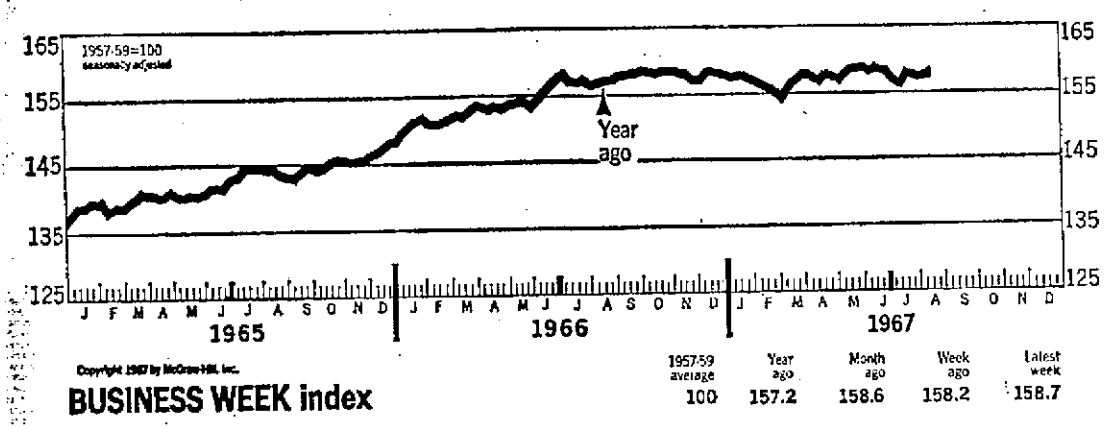

The 20 most frequent home improvements, according to the BBMR study, will be: (1) lighting fixtures, (2) floor tile, (3) wall paneling, (4) electrical circuits, (5) storm doors-windows, (6) remodeling kitchen, (7) ceiling tile, (8) fence, (9) water heater, (10) outside lighting, (11) new roof, (12) remodeling bath, (13) patio, (14) additional insulation, (15) add room in basement, (16) new heating system, (17) additional bathroom, (18) wall tile, (19) add on room, (20) garage.

"THE PROPOSED INCOME TAX surcharge is essential if the recent improvement in homebuilding is to be maintained, let alone extended," says John A. Gilliland, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

"Although saving flowing into thrift institutions have increased and monetary policy has been easy, heavy corporate demands for credit have kept long-term funds expensive and scarce. Unless fiscal policy is shifted from stimulation to restraint, borrowers are likely to find less mortgage money available and costs still higher in the months ahead.

"If the tax increase and proposed reduction in expenditures are accomplished promptly, a repeat of the 1966 performance in housing and mortgage finance may be avoided. The vital and immediate need is to convice the nation's credit markets that fiscal policy will be less stimulative, if not restrictive, and to remove the uncertainties that have plagued credit markets for too many months."

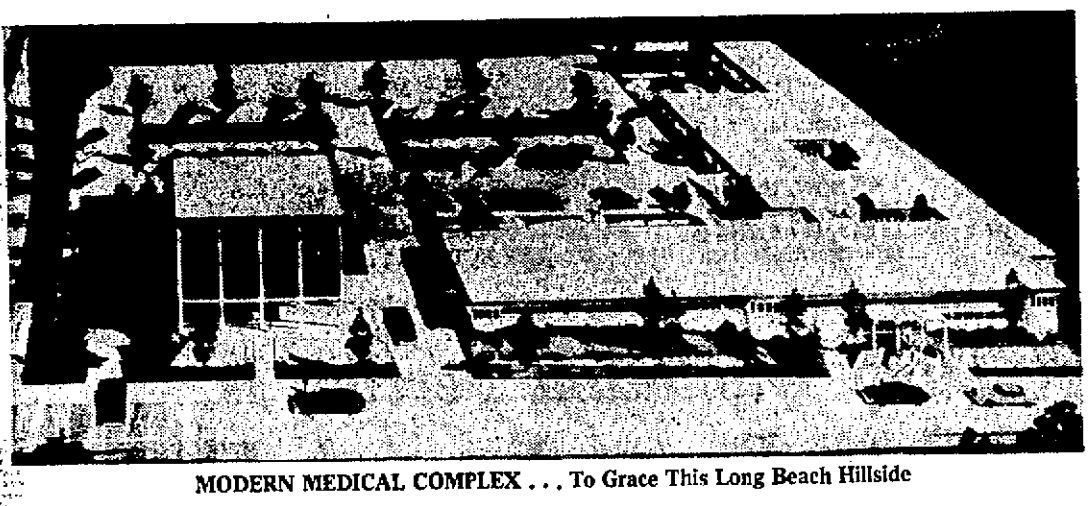

Index Components Move Ahead Briskly

The Index has shaken its sluggish pace of the last few weeks, and is on the upswing once again. Brisk activity in nearly every component pushed the chartline 0.3 per cent ahead of a week ago.

The key factor was a sharp upturn in steel. Output increased 4.2 per cent above a week ago and 7.2 per cent above a month ago — to reach the highest level since May. Steelmen see even greater thrust in the weeks ahead, as production of 1968 automobiles gets into full swing.

Auto production last week picked up slightly after its three-week decline. With all four manufacturers producing at least one 1968 model, output rose 1.2 per cent in the latest week, and 3.2 per cent above a year ago.

Electric power output also added a positive push to the chartline. Due to extremely heavy use of air conditioners, electric power set a new high for the second straight week. Output was 0.5 per cent above a week ago and 16.4 per cent above a month ago.

MODERN MEDICAL COMPLEX . . . To Grace This Long Beach Hillside

Thompson Announces Big Medical Complex

Construction is scheduled to begin within four months on a $1,734,000 medical complex at the northwest corner of E. Pacific Coast Highway and Termino Avenue, Long Beach.

Announcement of the endeavor was made last week by E. Enwood Thompson, president of Park Central Investment Corporation and Thompson Westcoast Company, general contractors and developers.

* * * *

THE MEDICAL complex, to be known as the Community Plaza Medical Complex, will include a 200-bed convalescent hospital.

Thompson said the structure will boast 48,000 square feet of floor area in the five-story hospital alone, to be located at the north end of the building site.

* * * *

THE MEDICAL building, Thompson added, will be of latest contemporary design and is planned to meet the requirements of the individual leasing doctors. The medical facility will have a pharmacy on the ground floor of the 30,000-square-foot-building.

Thompson said the announcement followed several months of planning and on the basis of a 99-year ground lease with the land owner, Security First National Bank, Trust Department.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

A wholesaler in Morocco wants to buy a variety of groceries, and firms in Sweden and Portugal seek kitchen appliances from can openers to refrigerators.

This week there are potential buyers of machinery ranging from knitting machines for Ethiopia to bulldozers for Germany. A firm in Malaysia would like equipment for manufacturing zippers and a company in Honduras wants either new or used equipment for making veterinary pharmaceuticals.

Because export sales mean added profits for Long Beach-Orange County businessmen, the Department of Commerce each week furnishes the Progress Section a series of tips. Here is a selection from this week's list, with names and addresses of prospective buyers:

THE REBEL . . . New for '68

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

American Motors' top-selling intermediate line of passenger cars, Rebel, offers one of the widest model choices ever for 1968, including a new convertible and a new two-door hardtop.

Three distinct series are featured in the line — 550, 770, and the top-line SST. New for 1968 is a 550 convertible, expected to be the lowest priced convertible of its size on the market.

As does its more luxuriously trimmed companion, the Rebel SST convertible, the 550 seats six passengers and features a power-operated top and glass rear window as standard equipment.

* * * *

ALSO NEW THIS year is a 550 two-door hardtop model introduced to meet the growing popularity in this particular body style. This intermediate will be priced with most compacts.

A total of nine Rebel models are now available, including sedans and station wagons in the 550 and 770 series.

Rebel's striking Venturi grille has been restyled for 1968 and, together with the housings for the horizontally mounted dual headlamps, is constructed of high-strength injection molded ABS plastic.

* * * *

A NEW HOOD treatment also is featured, consisting of twin recessed sections flowing back into a new slanted louver fresh air intake.

Taillights, redesigned for all models except station wagons, are triple-lensed and stacked horizontally. New trim has been added to wagon taillights, which retain their canted, vertical design.

Individual adjustable reclining seats and smartly fashioned custom fabric upholstery are included on all SST models. New non-glare finishes appear on potentially-reflective interior surfaces.

All Rebel wagons feature roof-top travel racks as standard equipment.

Rebel SST models have American Motors' 290 Typhoon V-8 engine as standard equipment with other V-8s ranging up to 280 horsepower available. The high-performance Torque Command 232 is the basic six-cylinder powerplant on all other Rebel models, with all other AM engines available.

Major Diversification for Bell Electronic

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Bell Electric Corp. plans to acquire Globe Electrical Manufacturing Co., a 22-year-old Gardena manufacturer of electronic and electrical sub-assemblies and components.

The proposed acquisition, for an undisclosed amount of cash and stock, has been agreed to by Bell's board of directors and the management of Globe, a privately held company.

The purchase of Globe "represents a major diversification for Bell into a new area of electronic reproduction for a broad range of industrial and government markets in the United States and Europe," Bell President Irving Davis said.

Addition of Globe would add about $1.5 million to Bell's annual sales, estimated at $9 million for the fiscal year ended June 30.

Preview New Models for Barkley Square

New model homes at the Barkley Square residential community in Cypress may be previewed today by homebuyers, Stanley W. Sampson, president of Barkley Development Co., announced.

The new homes continue to feature the noted Barkley Square concept of "patio-kitchen" but with variations on that theme, according to Sampson.

One new kitchen has a counter outside its sliding window and adjoining patio. This permits the passing of food and refreshments to family or guests from the kitchen. The feature is finding wide acceptance by both families with children and homeowners who like to entertain.

THE KITCHEN also features all built-ins, lifetime-laminated plastic counters and furniture finished cabinetry.

One and two-story homes provide a choice of 11 exteriors and four different floor plans. Up to 2400 square feet of living space, under roof, is offered in three to four-bedroom styles with two to three baths.

Homes are priced from $28,950 and are available on FHA, VA and conventional terms.

Village-Styled Shopping Center to Open Soon

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held last week for Huntington Harbour's new village-styled shopping center, The Boardwalk.

A $2½ million project, The Boardwalk is nautical in design, is keeping with the character of Huntington Harbour.

The new shopping center is scheduled for completion after the first of the year.

The center will contain 100,000 square feet of commerical space. A feature of the intimate character of The Boardwalk will be a spacious pedestrian mall.

* * * *

THE INTERIOR of the shopping center will be open to the sky, while an ancient schooner's masthead will further complement the nautical motif.

Principal tenant will be El Rancho Markets, Inc., a Southland specialty food chain, which will build an ultra-customized food market.

Security First National Bank, now occupying a temporary branch in Huntington Harbour, will move into a permanent location in The Boardwalk.

A number of other tenants have already been signed. Gene Fisher, executive vice president of the Harbour Corp., said that additional applications for leases from qualified tenants are still being accepted.

PICKED
Robert Clarke, veteran Southland building contractor, has been appointed construction manager for Del Bunch Corporation, moving to new and enlarged corporate headquarters at 9303 E. Alondra Blvd., Bellflower.

TOP JOB
Charles R. Dooley, owner of Dooley's Hardware Mart, Long Beach, has been elected president of Long Beach Boulevard Merchants Association. Also named were H. Tom Sievers, vice president; Howland Eley, secretary, and Leon Eulberg, treasurer.

Mine Engineers Convention Set

The Society of Mining Engineers, a branch of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers, will hold its annual convention in Las Vegas, Sept. 6, 7, 8 and 9 at the Flamingo Hotel and Caesar's Palace. A minimum of 1500 members and guests are expected to attend. The keynote of the convention will be "Minerals — Treasure Trove of the West."

Technical sessions will be conducted in the following areas: Port and Ship Materials Handling Systems; Coal Safety, Preparation and Utilization; Public Land Law Review; Geophysics; Non-Frasch Sulfur Rock Mechanics; Western Minerals and Economics; Minerals and Economics; Chemical Processing; Geochemistry; Underground Mining; Industrial Minerals and Geology.

In addition to the technical sessions, there will be 79 companies exhibiting mining and related processing equipment.

Autonetics Announces Start of New Minuteman Building

Construction of a two-story, 270,000 square-foot building for Minuteman division headquarters at the Anaheim facility of North American Aviation's Autonetics Division is expected to begin next week.

The building, located on 15 acres at 1180 N. Miller St., will provide engineering and laboratory areas for up to 1,900 employees in Minuteman and Strike Avionic Systems divisions, and will give Minuteman division about 25 percent more working space.

Completion of the structure is scheduled for June, 1968.

THE BUILDING incorporates the latest developments in ceiling construction to facilitate moving of partitions and walls without major relocation of lights and air conditoning outlets. Other special features:

A new type of concrete construction material will provide greater flexibility in distribution of power and wiring.

A distance of 2 feet between the first and second floors will allow easy adaptation of te facilities for rooms with a ceiling height up to 16 feet.

Approximately 200 separate air conditioning zones will give more control of temperature in individual areas.

A special ground system using 125-foot rods will be provided to meet laboratory requirements.

WORLD OF WINGS

Fran Fox, boss of L.A. International, thinks it's high time somebody did something about separation of light planes from commercial transports around big airports.

The time will and should come, he believes, when general aviation traffic will be forbidden to use such larger fields as Los Angeles and, instead, be confined to airports designated for them.

We're not sure how big a problem this now is or is likely to become. Most of us in 172s, Cherkees and whatever pale at the thought of calling L.A. tower for landing clearance. With the pros, who are usually in 310s, Aztecs or twin Beeches, it is different, because it's their jobs.

* * * *

BUT HOW MANY of these types are there? Enough to constitute a major problem, or a serious safety threat? As of now, we doubt it. If these slower craft are sequenced into the pattern in such a way as t interfere with jet traffic, that's the controller's fault. We know it's supposed to be first come, first served, but we also know it doesn't always work out that way. If there's a way a controller can get, say, a United DC8 in ahead of a win Comanche, he'll usually do it. And, perhaps, that's the way it should be.

We think that the whole issue related to the bigger problem of jet airports flooded with transport traffic they can't handle by itself, let alone with a small mix of light aircraft tossed in.

When the airports catch up to where they should be, in relation to the jet passenger traffic demand, it may turn out that there is really no problem at all with working in the little guys.

This Area Best Place to Live Ex-Midwest Family Discovers

"People who live here (in California) have the best life and they just don't know it," said Mrs. Lynn Van Camp, an enthusiastic new homeowner at Macco Leadership Homes-Del Amo. "Everyone knows you can't beat Southern California weather," she added, "and it is much more reasonable to live here than in the Midwest."

Alma and Lynn Van Camp, their four children and dog moved here from Tulsa, Okla. and purchased their two-story, four-bedroom Del Amo home after three months of house hunting. If the Van Camps had their way, all of their friends from the Midwest would join them on the other 2,300 residents at 796-acre Del Amo site.

Van Camp is an engineer and employed at the Douglas Space Division, Culver City, as a scientist specialist. A practical man, he liked Del Amo because "... the down payment was convenient and it is located within 20 miles of more than a dozen aerospace divisions."

LOCATION IS a prime asset at Del Amo. Just 20 minutes of industrial and Los Angeles, the master-planned community is near three freeways and within minutes of industrial and commercial centers and recreational areas. This accessibility appealed to Van Camp, who engages in a wealth of activities.

The floor plan of the Van Camp home is perfectly suited to their large family. Plan 56 offers a master suite on the first floor, with three bedrooms upstairs. The Van Camps have furnished an upstairs bedroom as a rumpus room for the children. This rumpus room adjoins the children's bedrooms and offers complete privacy for entertaining downstairs.

The homes are located on South Avalon Boulevard at San Diego Freeway.

Douglas Experts Plan Big Space Laboratory

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

A large space laboratory whirling in orbit trailing its own atomic energy plant at the end of a 125-foot boom is the conception of two Douglas Space Systems Center scientists.

Such a laboratory, with a crew of nine to 12 men, might remain in operation up to five years, according to Robert L. Gervais and Vern D. Kirkland of the Huntington Beach center.

* * * *

NUCLEAR power systems now being developed could provide 30 kilowatts or more of electric power for space stations in the post-1975 era, the pair believe.

Their conclusions are based on a 14-month study performed for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, with their findings reported in a technical paper presented last week at an Energy Conversion Engineering Conference in Miami Beach, Fla.

Crewmen in the space station, Gervais said, would be protected from excessive radiation by putting the atomic plant at the end of a 125-foot "tail."

AT THAT distance, a six-foot shield would throw a very low radiation "shadow cone" 80 feet in diameter around the laboratory, allowing supply ships from earth to approach and dock safely.

Nuclear-electric power, the scientists said, could readily satisfy all needs of a laboratory for such space-based services as weather forecasting, communications, gathering data on agricultural and fishing resources, aid of sea and air navigation and scientific observation of both the earth and space.

New Rail Flat Car Designed to Refrigerate Piggyback Loads

SAN FRANCISCO — Pacific Fruit Express is now completing an 89-foot railroad piggyback flatcar equipped with a diesel-electric generating unit to power refrigerated containers.

The car is expected to be operational by Aug. 15, L. D. Schley, vice president and general manager, announced.

When completed, the car — equipped with special mounts to hold three 24-foot containers or four 20-foot containers — will provide sufficient power to refrigerate loads at any predetermined temperature between zero and plus 70 degrees F. The containers — equipped with electrical refrigeration units for steamship handling — will be plugged directly into outlets on the car.

Schley stated that this type of car will be used to handle fresh commodities from posts throughout the Pacific to inland destination. PFE also contemplates westbound movements of perishables from the United States to Pacific destinations.

"We plan to add these units to other piggyback flatcars as traffic warrants," Schley said.

"WE BELIEVE this equipment will benefit both the general public and the shipping lines by speeding handling time so that commodities will arrive on market shelves faster and in better condition than is now possible."

Presently, he explained, such perishable commodities are moving in refrigerated containers to the port by ship, transferred to a refrigerated warehouse or transloaded into refrigerated railroad or piggyback trailers for movement to market.

Under this set-up, containers will move directly from the ship to the rail car for through movement to destination.

PFE and its parent companies — Southern Pacific and Union Pacific — have long been working with Pacific-based steamship lines to handle land transportation of numerous containerized commodities bound from — or destined to — Pacific ports.

"This," Schley said, "is simply another step toward our goal of integrated intermodal transport."

Shadow Downs Homes Offer Close-In Country Living

Close-in country living in Los Angeles County is still a reality, explains builder William Lyon. "Our new Shadow Downs homes in Cerritos are located in a charming country meadow setting, yet they are just one mile from the 605 Freeway which quickly links homeowners to either the San Diego, Garden Grove, or Santa Ana Freeways in a matter of minutes."

Homes at Shadow Downs are priced from $26,990 with no down payment to veterans, or a choice of low FHA terms. The furnished models are located on Norwalk Boulevard betwen Del Amo and 195th Street in Cerritos.

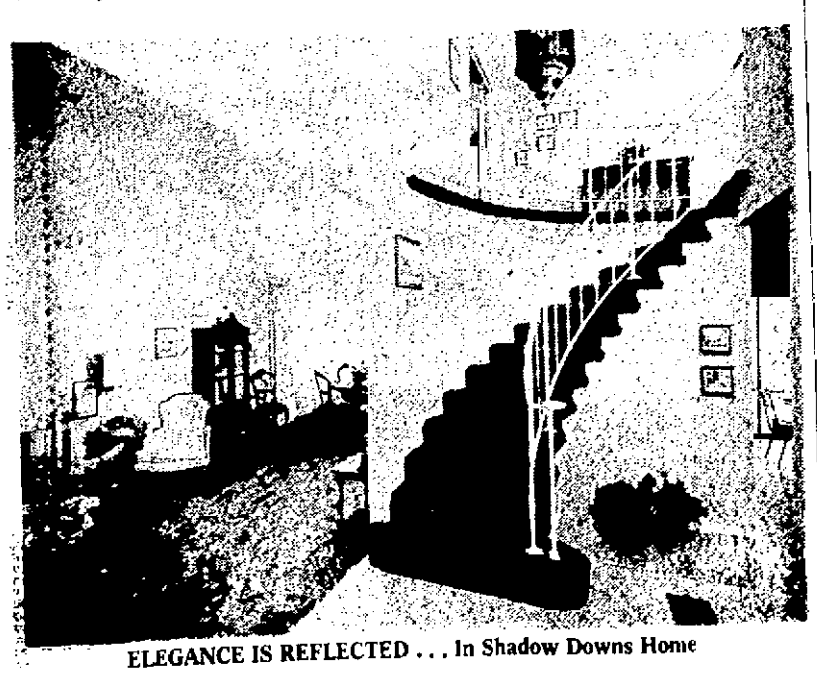

Builder Lyon, twice president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties is introducing many new architectural features in these homes.

THE FEATURE receiving the most nationwide attention from build-in trade publications is his "Parent-Saver Retreat" home. This unique floor plan has a separate adult apartment contained within the owners' suite. Additionally, this suite contains a dressing room, bath, huge closet and its own private "Garden-in-the Sky" deck. Sliding glass doors lead from this area outside to private second story sun deck.

As in all William Lyon built homes, there are the exclusive "Terrace Kitchens." The walls of conventionality have been removed over the sink and counter areas and are replaced with walls of sliding glass in the gold anodized setting. Outside there is a patio service counter, ideal for "hot dog-stand" type dinners for the kiddies, or informal patio parties.

"We have borrowed one of the most elegant of all America's architectural styles for Shadow Downs," says builder Lyon with pride. "we are reintroducing the gracious curved staircase, a permanent fixture in the finest Southern mansions at the turn of the century."

Only Three Units Left to Be Sold

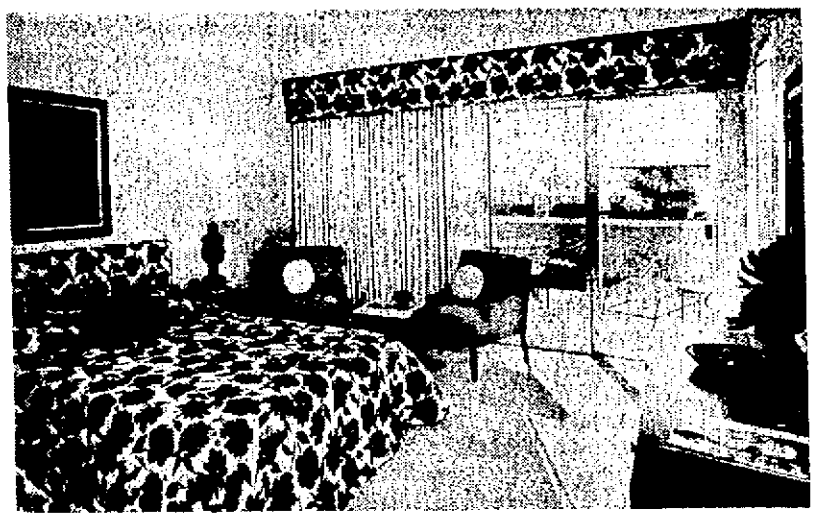

With sales of nearly $3½ million in 15 weeks, Brookhurst Gardens, a community of four-unit investment properties is one of the biggest success stories in this year's otherwise unexciting real estate industry, says Gordon Bragg, sales manager of the project for Pageant Realty. Bragg pointed out that only three units remain of an origiant 60 and that these were expected to be sold no later than Sunday evening.

Cited as reason for this success by Bragg were the low down payments, beginning at $2,500, and the many financial and tax advantages which a purchaser is entitled to. The noted tax advantages included deductions for expenses such as maintenance, utilities, taxes and interest, a deduction for depreciation on the major portion of the property coast which will offset any continuing income plus the equity build-up a buyer enjoys through mortgage payoff from rentals.

* * * *

BROOKHURST GARDENS is over 99 per cent occupied, Bragg pointed out, which is an obvious advantage to the purchaser. Priced from $57,950, the buildings include wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, completely built-in kitchens and all apartments have private entrances.

To reach Brookhurst Gardens take the Santa Ana Freeway to the Brookhurst Street offramp and go south one block or take Lincoln Agenue to Brookhurst Street and go north one-half block.

College Park Now Is Offering All-New Show Of Model Homes

The grand opening of seven new model homes at College Park in Seal Beach gives homeseekers the opportunity to evaluate home designs that are years ahead in beauty and efficiency, according to Jerry Henderson, marketing director for S&S Construction Co.

"These models are proof of the effectiveness of our research," Henderson said. "Shoppers will find that S & S has included every desirable and practical innovation that they have been reading about, plus many others that haven't had the time to get publicized since being introduced. Even those who may have visited College Park before are urged to return now. It's an entirely new show and a most exciting one."

THE EXCEPTIONAL floor plans offer from three to six bedrooms, with two or three baths. Some master bedroom suites are "extended" to the outdoors with connecting private sun decks. Others offer an alcove, spacious "parents' retreat" which could also make an extra bedroom or study.

An open-space bonus room in one plan can be finished immediately as a game room, or left unfinished, to be converted later into one or two more bedrooms when needed.

All floor plans offer a choice of distinctive and dramatic fireplaces, luminous ceilings in flower-fresh kitchens, master-crafted cabinetry, modern all-electric double ovens and ranges, and luxurious carpeting.

Prices are from $25,950. VA, FHA and conventional terms are available. To inspect the new models, take San Diego-Garden Grove Freeways to Valley View Street turnoff. Go north on Valley View to Cerulean, then west to the homes display.

Mountain Ranch Sites Now Offered for 'Second Home'

Most people, given the choice for the most perfect home location, would narrow it down to a site overlooking the ocean, or one high in the mountains. Residents of Long Beach consider that they have one of these — and they are indeed more fortunate than most homeowners — for their particular location not only overlooks the ocean, but it is blessed with a year 'round temperate climate.

Living as they do, in one of the most desirable locations in the country, the ultimate in home enjoyment would be to also own a home in the mountains, and thus have the best of everything — and that is exactly what a growing number of Long Beach residents are now doing.

Several Long Beach families have discovered the ideal spot for the "second home," a forest and mountain meadowland at the 4,000 foot mark on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada, and just four hours from Long Beach, over paved all-weather roads.

* * * *

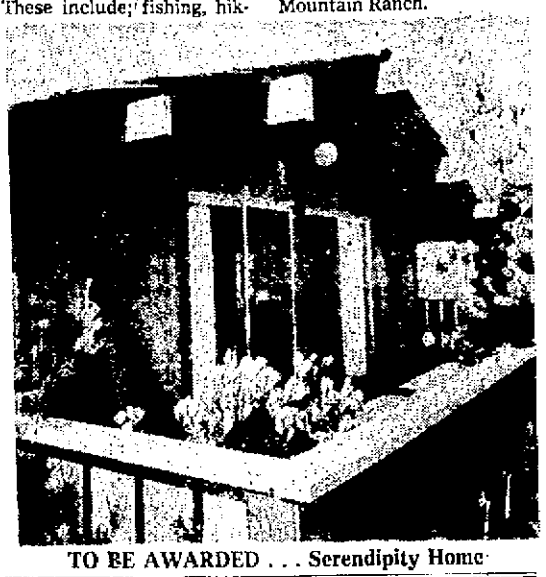

THIS NEW COMMUNITY of view homesites is Pine Mountain Ranch, near California Hot Springs, and surrounded by the majestic Sequoia National Forest. Described as the "Wonderland of Year 'Round Family Fun," it is a development comprising some 500 acres of forest, mountain and meadow land, with improved homesites encompassing one-half acre or more.

Long Beach residents who call Pine Mountain Ranch their second home include Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maas, who have already completed a home there; Rev. and Mrs. B. J. Usher, Mr. and Mrs. William Davey, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Hubbs.

One of the big attractions of Pine Mountain Ranch is the almost limitless opportunities to enjoy all the outdoor sports — all year! These include; fishing, hiking, riding, swimming and boating, together with all the winter sports, in the Mineral King region.

HOMESITES AT Pine Mountain Ranch are priced from $2,500, and there are no bonds or assessments involved, according to Dick Kurth, of Maisel-Kurth Associates, sales agents.

Pine Mountain Ranch may be reached from Long Beach by driving north on Highway 99 past Bakersfield to the intersection of Route 65. Right on Route 65 (the marked route to Sequoia National Forest) to Ducor, and right (east) into the mountains to Pine Mountain Ranch.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Larry Davidson, manager of Pierpoint Landing in the Port of Long Beach, reports that a number of people have showed up demanding to know where the Queen Mary is.

"We've read in the papers that Long Beach bought her and we want to see her," is the frequent comment, reports Davidson.

If the Queen Mary were here — which she won't be until Dec. 9 — visitors to the port would have little trouble spotting her.

She is taller than the six-story Harbor department building and ten times as long.

On a clear day (rare) she should be visible from Mt. Wilson.

During a tour of the Port of Long Beach last week, one of the 10 members of the Foreign Consular corps aboard the Shearwater was G.M.C. van Lauschot from tulip country in the Netherlands.

He noted that a Dutch horticulturist had developed a uniquely-tinted reddish-pink rose using infrared light which he called "The Queen Mary."

Since the ship's transAtlantic crossings started in 1937 the grower has supplied the dining tables of the world's second largest liner with 12,000 Queen Mary roses every 17 days.

Von Lauschot, concerned with exploiting trade between the U.S. and the Netherlands, hopes Long Beach will continue the rose table decoration ritual.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Iron & Steel Institute says steel production in the week ended Aug. 12 totaled 2,338,000 net tons, an increase of 4½ per cent over the previous week.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Microdot Inc. says it has signed a definitive agreement with Kaynar Manufacturing Co. Inc. of Fullerton, Calif., on a previously announced plan to merge the companies. Kaynar makes aerospace and industrial fasteners. Microdot is an electronics firm. Microdot stock is involved in the transaction.

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (UPI) — The Administrative Management Society says the average weekly salary for 13 of the most representative clerical jobs in the United States is $91, a $4 increase over last year's average. In data processing, the organization says, a top programmer gets $166 a week.

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. says its cleaner air system, designed to control engine exhaust emissions, has been certified by the Federal government for use in the company's 1968 models. Federal standards limit exhaust emissions in all 1968 vehicles sold in the U.S. to 275 parts per million of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide to 1.5 per cent.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martin Marietta Corp. says it will sell a new snow-white highway paving material with greater skid resistance and improved visibility. The material, called Synopal, will be imported from Denmark under license. It is more expensive than conventional paving materials.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Allied Products Corp. says it plans to acquire Loadcraft Inc. of Denton, Tex., for stock. Loadcraft, with plants in Texas and Kansas makes specialty vehicles used by the military and others.

Goodbody & Co. says current market conditions suggest a switch in leadership from the high flying volatile issues to the more conservative blue chips. The company feels this trend could continue for some time to come.

Wright Investors' Service says there is no precedent for a major stock market advance coming with a major tax increase and the company does not expect one next year. It looks for a "see-saw" market in 1968 with averages neither exceeding old highs nor penetrating old lows. It feels the key to success will continue to be selectivity.

Standard & Poor's feels the market could go higher but "its progress will be increasingly marked by cross currents." The company feels many of the glamor stocks will be risky investments but that it is still possible to find sound values with "promising appreciation potentials."

Bache & Co. says the market's failure to respond to a number of contructive economic developments recently indicates that some further consolidation may be on tap.

While the market is likely to continue on its indecisive course for the rest of the week, the analyst feel that favorable seasonal conditions will take effect shortly.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hanes Hosiery, Inc., will take part in a traveling fashion show in the Communist countries of East Europe this summer, sponsored by the Department of Commerce. The show will be seen in Warsaw, Prague and Moscow.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Symington Wayne Corp. of Salisbury, Md., and Universal American Corp. of New York have agreed in principle to merge. Shareholders of Symington Wayne will get two-thirds of a share of convertible preferred plus one-third of a share of common in the combined company. Each common share of Universal American will be exchanged for 0.15 share of the convertible preferred and 0.3783 share of common in the new company.

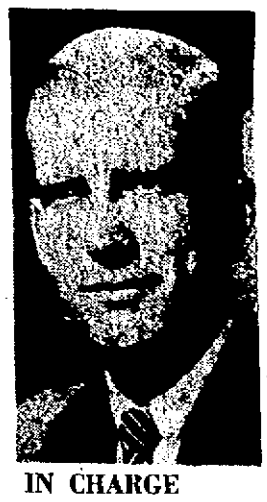

CHICAGO (UPI)—Inland Steel Co. says it will build a new rolling mill complex at its Indiana Harbor works capable of turning out one million tons of cold rolled sheet steel annually, a two-third increase over present capacity.The complex will include an 80-inch cold reduction mill able to produce coils in dimensions up to 76 inches as needed in the future, a pickling line, annealing furnaces and other supporting facilities. The new facility is expected to be in operation by the end of 1970.

Landmark La Palma Has All-New Models

According to Bob James, Landmark Homes marketing director, the all-new model homes at La Palma are open for viewing. Choice sites and homes are available immediately with prices starting at $29,000.

The complete Landmark family-ready package offered includes: carpeting, landscaping, custom fencing, sprinklers, patio kitchens, and concrete driveways.

According to James a number of factors are responsible for the current fast sales pace at the site. He points out that many of the buyers are attracted by the low 5 per cent down payment plan in effect. Of course, the new 30-year loan financing is another key factor.

ONE OF THE additional features appreciated is the three-car garage.

Other features include: underground utilities, magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces, custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices begin at $29,000. Excellent loans are offered. All terms are completely flexible.

Landmark model homes are located on La Palma Boulevard, just west of Moody Street in La Palma.

L.B. Realtors to Hear Sen. Kennick

Senator Joseph M. Kennick will speak to members of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors at their 7:15 a.m. breakfast meeting Tuesday at the Crown Cafeteria.

Larry Miller, program chairman, said the discussion will center around California's 1967 legislative session.

Paramount Home Sales Are Strong

Increasing sales activity reported at Madison Square West in recent weeks, is attributed to a variety of reasons, such as convenient location, variety of design and spaciousness, and a realistic pricing program with excellent financing, according to Lloyd Ikerd, head of Ikerd Realy, sales agents.

The large homes in this new community in Paramount, Ikerd said, are priced from $28,250, and may be purchased on terms from 10 pr cent down, financing programs with 6½ per cent interest rates, available.

The development of Gold Medallion homes is located in an established residential area, close to schools, shops, churches and other community services and facilities.

Floor plans provide four or five-bedrooms and two baths and the homes contain numerous luxury features such as wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, decorator fireplaces, intercom systems, front lawn sprinklers, rear yard fencing and many more.

Model homes may be reached by driving on Downey Ave. to Madison Street.

ELEVATED

Glen W. Bell Jr., long president of Taco Bell, Inc., California - based franchise chain of Mexican restaurants he founded, has been elevated to chairman of the board. Robert L. McKay, former executive vice president and general manager, was named president. Bell lives in Rolling Hills; McKay, in Palos Verdes Estates.

Del Bunch Announces Appointees

The newly formed Del Bunch Corporation has announced appointment of Jack D. Hedge, Bellflower, as general manager in charge of sales of the new merchandising complex nearing completion at 9303 E. Alondra Blvd., Bellflower.

The new organization, specializing in volume construction of custom-quality residential housing units throughout the Southern California area, anticipates a first year volume of over $10 million. First month sales totaled 44 residential units.

THE CORPORATION primarily merchandises its custom homes and apartments to property owners desiring further development of valuable back, side or front yard areas around existing homes.

Del Bunch Jr., president, also announced the appointment of Thomas H. Marshall, Santa Ana, as training director of the sales force. Marshall has previously acted in sales management capacities with other volume contracting firms.

Grand opening for the new management and merchandising facilities are scheduled for the latter part of August.

New Industries

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — South Carolina has had outstanding success in its qquest for new industry. New industrial expansion in 1965 was valued at $600 million and provided an estimated 26,440 new jobs.

Torrance Plastics Terminal

The West Coast's first terminal designed exclusively for containerized handling of plastics in bulk is now under construction at Union Carbide Corp.'s chemicals and plastics plant in Torrance.

The terminal, to be operational in October, will serve the plastics industry throughout the West by making available in bulk plastics manufactured at Union Carbide's eastern plants. The new 100,000-square-foot Torrance terminal will link the West with Union Carbide's bulk plastics distribution system, which includes similar centers at Perth Amboy, N.Y., and Seadrift and Texas City, Tex.

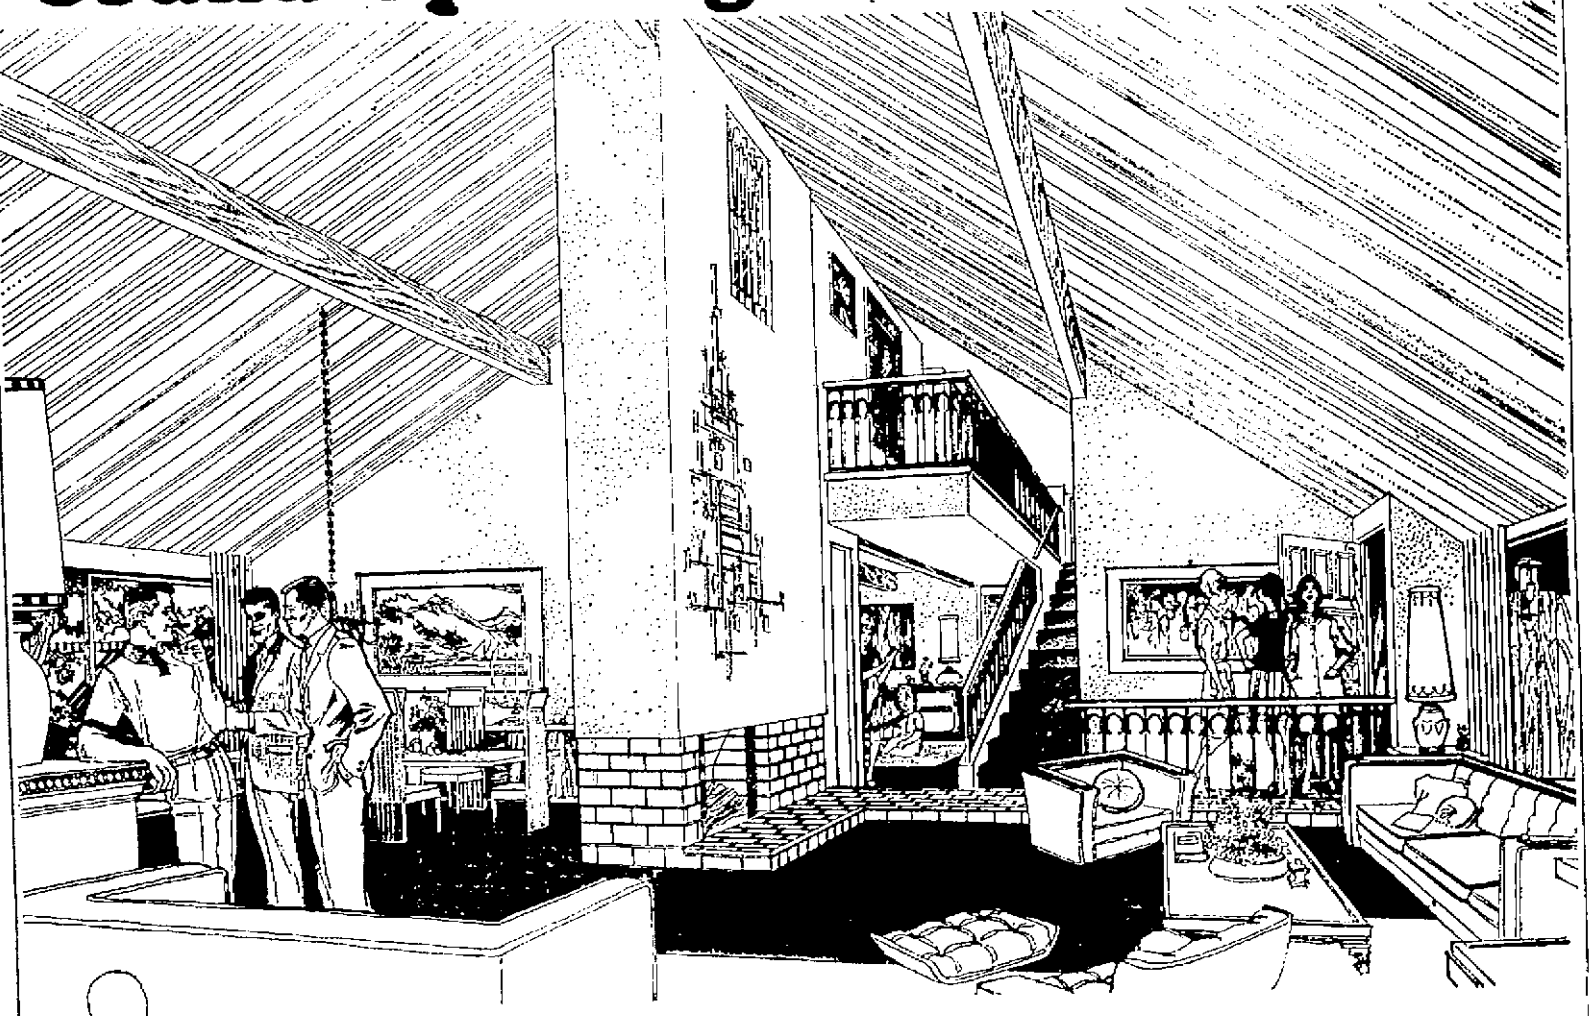

Key to the system is the use of 50,000-lb. capacity van containers for storage. Plastics will be received at the terminal in these containers or in hoper cars. Plastics from the terminal will be shipped to customers in hopper cars and trucks.

Material handling equipment in the terminal will include an airveyor system for transferring incoming plastics from hopper cars to containers, a straddle carrier for moving the containers and a tilting frame for loading hopper cars and trucks from the containers.

DRAMATIC NEW PLANS . . . In Cerritos Woods Homes

Grand Opening Is Continued for Cerritos Woods Project

Grand opening festivities at Cerritos Woods is continuing, according to builder-developer Warren Bauer of Sterling Development, Inc.

"New home shoppers seem delighted with our dramatic new plans," Bauer commented. "Time and again they comment on the soaring cathedral ceilings and massive exposed beam detailing."

Designs ranging from three to five bedrooms in four distinct floor plans, arrangements with as much as 2300 square feet of living area.

Prices range from $26,950 to $33,850 with FHA and VA-no-down financing.

In plan 100 the vaulted ceiling and gleaming ceramic tile in the entry give ample evidence of the elegance to come in this new three bedroom, two bath ranch plan. The most dramatic architectural aspect of the impressive formal living room is its unique vaulted ceiling and massive open hearth, backgrounded with warm natural wood paneling.

* * * *

THE GENEROUS family room is fully garden oriented with double wide sliding glass walls overlooking the patio and future pool site.

In plan 200 the impressive double door entry to this four bedroom home opens to a soaring floating staircase framed in the view of a glass-enclosed central planter.

Additional models available at Cerritos Woods include a four bedroom three bath two-story and a five bedroom, three bath with two master suites.

Furnished models are located on 195th Street, between Pioneer Boulevard and Los Alamitos Boulevard in the city of Cerritos.

24 Republic Homes Sold Opening Days

Overwhelming public endorsement of Republic Homes' 1968 models was voiced via 24 sales during the just-completed grand opening of the newest unit at Mesa Verde in Costa Mesa.

"Our newest models really lived up to their 1968 designation, quickly catching the public eye with their fresh exterior stylings and advanced plans, including a unique five-bedroom, three-bath split-level.

"Once inside the homes,the people found an exciting array of architectural features. To cite just two examples, picture a large kitchen with island chopping block and really roomy nook, flanked by a formal dining room with luminous ceilings, "his" and "hers" pullmans, and up to 22 feet of closet space."

* * * *

MESA VERDE is a maturing master-planned community, not a new project. Eight years old, it is 80 per cent completed and has over 9,900 residents.

The new Republic Homes at Mesa Verde feature four and five bedrooms in one-story, two-story and split-level designs ranging from 2,034 square feet to 2,681 square feet.

Priced at $35,000 to $40,700, the homes are available under conventional terms with 5 per cent down.

Republic Homes newest models are just south of Adams, between two of the country's major north-south arteries, Harbor Boulevard and Brookurst Street.

Homes in Mission Viejo in Demand

With July sales of Eldorado and La Paz Homes totaling more than $2 million, Mission Viejo Co. enjoyed the best month in its history, reports General Sales Manager George Jupin.

"Last month," said Jupin, "56 families purchased $1.4 million worth of La Paz Homes and 47 families bought $940,000 worth of Eldorado Homes. As a comparison, our best previous month was in May, 1966, when 70 homes were sold.

"There are two big reasons for the record month," Jupin continued. "First, many families wait until the summer vacation period to buy a home, then are anxious to move in before school starts again.

"SECOND, the beautiful community of Mission Viejo reached a new stage of maturity in July with the opening of the second round of shops in La Paz Plaza. People appreciate the fact that such amenities as a complete shopping center, a 2000-student capacity high school, a church, and a beautiful inn and championship-quality 18-hold golf course are completed and in operation, not merely in the planning stage."

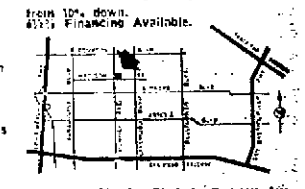

The model homes for both developments are on Chrisanta Drive in Mission Viejo, a community which has grown to a population of 3,000 in just 18 months. Twelve miles southeast of Santa Ana on the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway, Mission Viejo's main entry is just east of the freeway at La Paz Road.

Orange County's Product-Service Directory to Be Mailed Soon

Orange County Industrial Suppliers Association soon will mail its first comprehensive product and service directory to over 2,000 purchasing agents throughout Orange County, according to George Sandoval, president of the new organization.

Delivering the first such directory will be Association Vice President Sidney Entin; Emmet Bradley, general manager of Atlantic Research Corporation; Honorary Chairman Congressman Richard T. Hanna, and Sandoval.

* * * *

THE ASSOCIATION includes among its objectives the hundred million dollars now spent by all-sized industry for supplies.

Purpose of the directory is to bring the many Orange County firms to the attention of industrial buyers to keep as much of that sum within the area as possible.

Congressman Hanna pointed out the benefits to the economy of increased payroll, greater tax revenue, and greater personal service as a result of inter-county purchasing.

The goals of the Association have been endorsed by the Orange County Supervisors and industry leaders throughout the area.

CHAMBER HEAD
Larry Bowman, attorney and member of the Torrance Civil Service Commission, has been elected president of the Torrance Chamber of Commerce for the 1967-68 year. He will replace Don H. Hyde in the post.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

TO LEAD IN HOME SALES IN ORANGE COUNTY

The Sunday Progress Section of The Independent Press-Telegram & News is a leader in number of Orange County real estate advertisers and in advertising space for Orange County homes.

It didn't just happen that way. The advertisers made it happen. And again and again and again . . . week-after-week. This is because The Independent Press-Telegram & News brings out the buyers, the people who mean business and have the money to back up their wishes. These people get more information on Orange County homes from these newspapers than from any other source. It makes happy buyers and happy sellers. If you are not already an advertiser, try an ad and see.

Lafayette Hotel Services to Continue

The Lafayette Hotel, currently shifting mostly to a residential operation, will continue all food services involving catering, service clubs, banquests, parties and public dining facilities.

Managing owner Robert Campbell said arrangements have been completed to ensure the continuation of these services and said the hotel has outlined a program of improvements.

* * * *

"THE KEYNOTE is continuity, cleanup, buildup and renovation," Campbell said. Ownership of the hotel is till in the process of being transferred from the Hilton interests to the Campbell family.

Campbell emphasized that in spite of the residential operation, the hotel's 51 lanai rooms on Atlantic Avenue will continue to be available for the usual commercial operations.

* * *

BERNARD GORDON, owner and operator of the Revere House, a restaurant and bar in Tustin, will serve as director of catering. Bert Blender, currently catering manager, will continue in that capacity to ensure continuity of operation, Campbell said.

Centrifugal 1st to Institute Top Performance Program

Centrifugal Products, Inc., is the first foundry on the West Coast to employ a zero defect program with the initiation of SPIN in its long Beach plant.

SPIN—Superior Performance is Necessary—is aimed at developing a conscious effort on the part of employees to complete their respective jobs right—the first time.

CENTRIFUGAL instituted SPIN "in response to requests from many defense contractors who are themselves heeding a request from the President of the United States for increased reliability and reduced costs in our space and military ventures," according to Burt Falk, vice president of Centrifugal Products.

"Since the program was put into action June 5 there has been 100 per cent employe participation and cooperation," said Falk.

SCENT

(whether he knows it) his nylon rope has been made to smell like tarred hemp.

Some men's sport shirts are impregnated with a long-lasting "outdoorsy" aroma while some electric blankets smell of lavender for years.

The field of osmics (science of smells) goes even further.

For products that do not catch the public's fancy, researchers, recommend an alluring fragrance. For example, a brand of furniture polish did not move well until an aroma was added.

The aroma? One that suggested an old English manor house with heavy wood paneling. The housewife not only found her furniture looked clean, but smelled clean.

A Southern doctor found that patients in his hospital relaxed better when he ordered a variety of fragrances wafted through the ventillating system.

Moreover, he found an odor of savory cooking introduced into the patients' rooms just before tray time made them eat "with gusto."

A major league ball club owner recently inquired about spreading the alluring smell of fresh popcorn to stimulate sales. The results weren't announced, but it's a good guess the public went for it.

In New Jersey, a department store offered identical piles of hosiery — except one pile was lightly perfumed. The shoppers depleted the perfumed pile at once, with not one woman asking about or commenting on odor.

"Smellies," movies complete with odors, was tried. The trouble; the smell of cordite as firecrackers went off still hung in the theater when a young couple later waded through new-mown hay.

One scent merchant is working on something rather important. He's developing odors to help guests more thoroughly enjoy a cocktail hour, the dinner and even a more spirited smart-talk session.

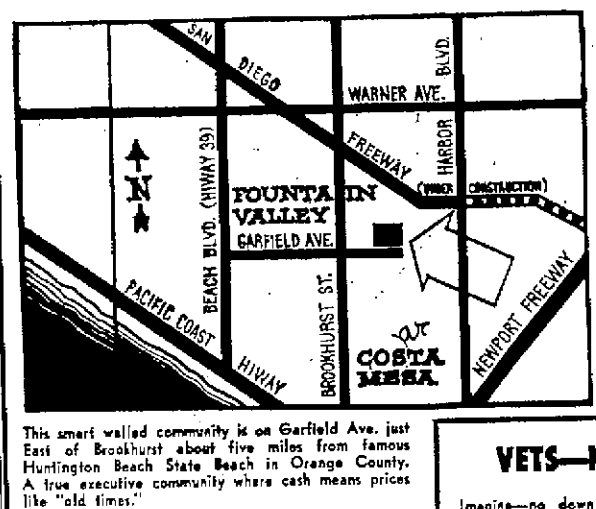

But his biggest contribution, he believes, will be a musky odor which will simply "send the guests home."

We care for our kids

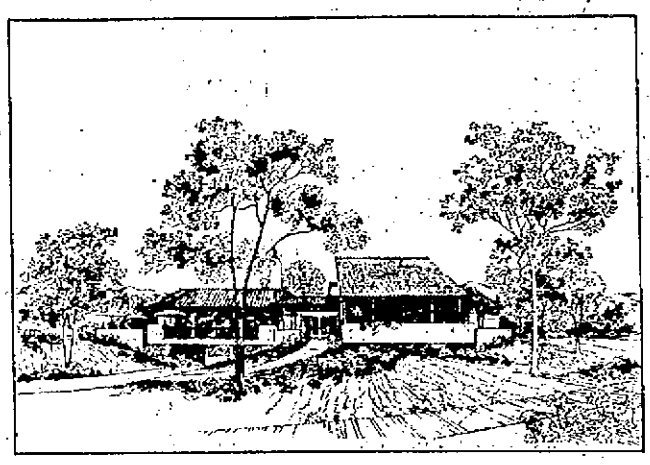

Perhaps the children of Mission Viejo are not always calm, but they're collected ... at a modern pre-school day nursery. It's one of the new and thoughtful conveniences that make living at Mission Viejo so pleasant. This non-sectarian day nursery is sponsored by the Lutheran Church now serving its congregation in a truly magnificent structure. There will soon be other churches to serve the community.

Thriving is the word for this unusually beautiful community.

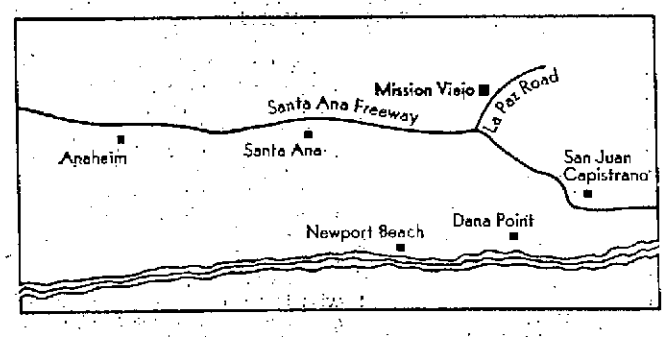

La Paz Shopping Plaza is taking care of the needs of residents. Mission Viejo High School is in full swing. Golfers are discovering the challenge of the 18-hole championship course designed by Robert Trent Jones.

The public buildings, the lamp posts reflect an intriguing blend of accents, old and new. Obviously, people like this subtle combination of old California and today's contemporary architecture.

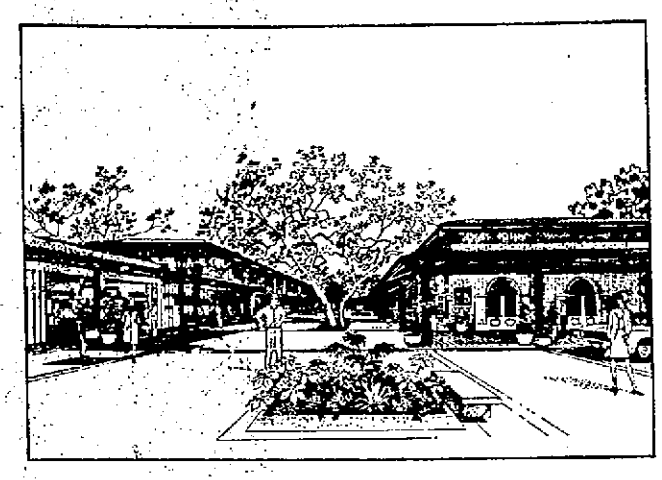

Complementing all of this is the care we've taken to preserve the natural beauty of the land.

To date, more than 700 families have moved into Mission Viejo. The master planning called for all of this but it has happened far ahead of schedule.

The choice of a wide variety of charming homes, built by three of the country's most reputable and respected builders, has attracted many families.

Soon, there will be additional parks and both elementary and junior high schools. Life at Mission Viejo is being enjoyed by everyone ... come on out and see for yourself.

Take the Santa Ana Freeway to La Paz turnoff, enter Mission Viejo and discover the true meaning of master-planning.

Man's age-old dream of setting foot on the moon will soon be realized, scientists agree. Everyone old enough to read knows this, but, even so, it is difficult to make oneself comprehend how close we are to having a colony, or colonies, on the moon. Space scientists have been studying the moon environment in detail as numerous moon probes have sent back data and photos. Scientists at the General Electric Missile and Space Division have mapped out details of the probable methods which will be used in settling the moon. Beginning with the first crude settlement for only a few men in the early 1970s, the plan projects up past the turn of the century when scientists envision a modern Lunar City built under the moon surface by 2001. For numerous drawings by GE artists and a story by Mark Clutter on steps in colonizing the moon, turn to pages 5-7.

Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Find out about FLEXON Fiberglas Textured Coating that is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. FLEXON may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

What Your Name Means

By LA REINA RULE

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801 for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: As a subscriber I would like data on BARRENTINE.
—R.B., Picayune, Miss.

BARRENTINE was a locational term in 13th century England. The root-phrase was "Baron-Dene," representing "Baron's or nobleman's valley estate." The similar surname Hazeltine meant "Hazelnut tree valley estate." One of the remote Barrentine ancestors was Lord Mayor of London in 1398 and 1408. The armorial shield for Barentine and Barrentine is black, emblazoned with a gold ring placed between three silver eagles.

MISS RULE: What is the origin of CLUTTER?
—M.C., Long Beach

CLUTTER of Germany is an American re-spelling of the surname Klutter. In its inception, "Klutter" was a development of the Old High German warrior-hero name Chlod-Heri, deciphered as "serene warrior." No armorial shield seems to be recorded for this family.

MISS RULE: Please give brief genealogy on HOLLAND.
—R.H., Westminster
R.T., Long Beach

HOLLAND of England is a lineage descended from two separate ancestors whose names were spelled alike by medieval descendants. One progenitor was named for a locality in Britain called "Hol-Land" meaning "property with a hollow in it." English towns in Lincolnshire and Lancashire have this name. In Cheshire there are villages called Downholland and Upholland. The other Holland forefather was a migrant from Holland or the Netherlands, to England. The nation of Holland was anciently called "Holt-Land" translated as "forest land." The English Holland family shield is blue, decorated with a silver rampant lion overlying a pattern of silver fleurs-de-lis (lilies). Angell Holland, aged 21, sailed for Massachusetts from Weymouth, England in 1625.

MISS RULE: Please explain the surname MING.
—J.M., Bellflower

MING has several different national backgrounds. In archaic French the word "Minga" which later became the French surname Ming, meant "lessening," inferring a very small child. In old German Ming is traced to "Meingoz," a hero name describing "young, powerful one." In China "Ming" means "luminous," and is famed from the ruling Ming Dynasty of that country, from A.D. 1368 to 1644.

MISS RULE: Please give data on CAUDILL.
—W.C., Long Beach

CAUDILL is a provincial medieval English variation of the familiar surname Caldwell. The source, "Ceald-welle," portrayed "at the cool spring," the family home site. Forefathers include William Caudel or Caudill of Cambridge in the late 1200's.

MISS RULE: Would you give the origin of Bell?
—C.C., Lakewood

BELL was taken by an English forefather nine centuries ago from his shop trademark sign, for a place where bells were manufactured, repaired and replaced. London records of 1300 list John Atte (at the sign of the) Bell. Another source of Bell was the English baptismal name Bel meaning "handsome one." Bell descendants migrated to Scotland and Ireland in the late 1100's. The Bell armorial shield from Scotland is blue, decorated with three symbolic golden bells. Alexander Graham Bell, American inventor of the telephone, had Scottish-English ancestry.

General Electric Missile and Space Division artists bring to life scientists' visualization of the lunar city of the next century. As the drawing indicates, the lunar city would be a combined complex of surface and underground activity with modern moon men living mainly below the surface, protected from the extreme temperatures and dangerous cosmic rays.

At the extreme top left is the nuclear power station. To its right are ore and rock mines which will tap the anticipated mineral wealth of the moon. At top center is a large industrial complex which processes the ore into liquid hydrogen, oxygen and other substances necessary for maintenance of the lunar city.

Hovering overhead in the lunar sky is the moon orbiting station which serves as a transfer point for passengers shuttling between earth and moon. At the right upper center is a large lunar spaceport. The smooth landing surface is made of pulverized moon rocks and man-made binder.

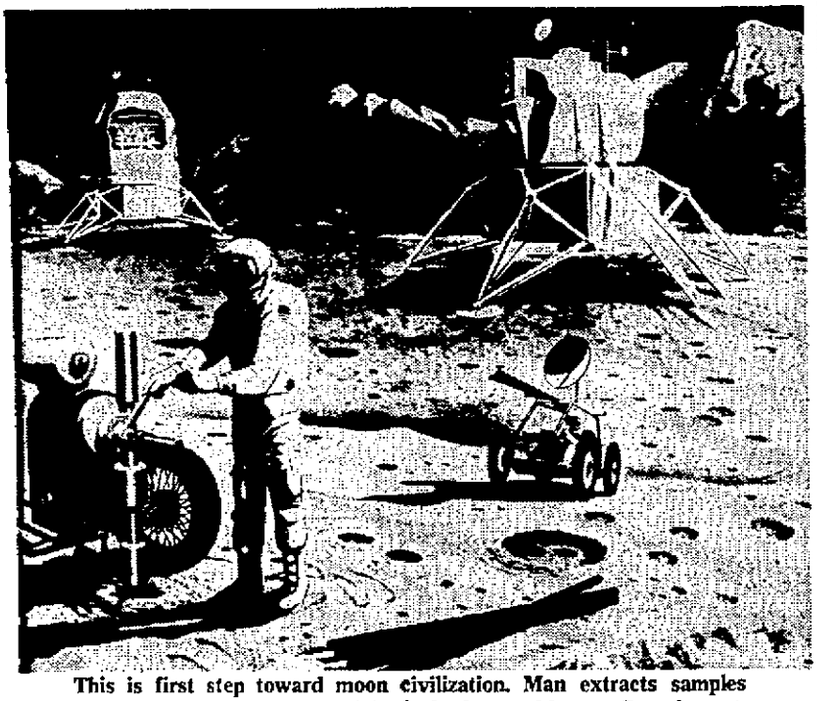

Inside the hollowed-out lunar city at lower left is a moving sidewalk which carries pedestrians at speeds up to 15 miles an hour. It is shown radiating out in three spokes from the balloon-like hub. The all slab-like structures in the upper part of the city are housing units. The rectangular dome-topped structure directly to the right is the moon university. Beneath the large dome at the left center of the city is a scientific research center. The dome at right houses moon farms for the growing of fruit and vegetables in a carefully simulatd "earth" environment.

A park with an art gallery surrounding the central fountain is at the lower portion of the city center. To its left a moon citizen is shown hovering in a one-man winged "transport" made possible because of the moon's low gravitational pull. Sets of high-intensity floodlights which re-create earth daylight in the cave lunar city are shown at various points of the cut-out drawing.

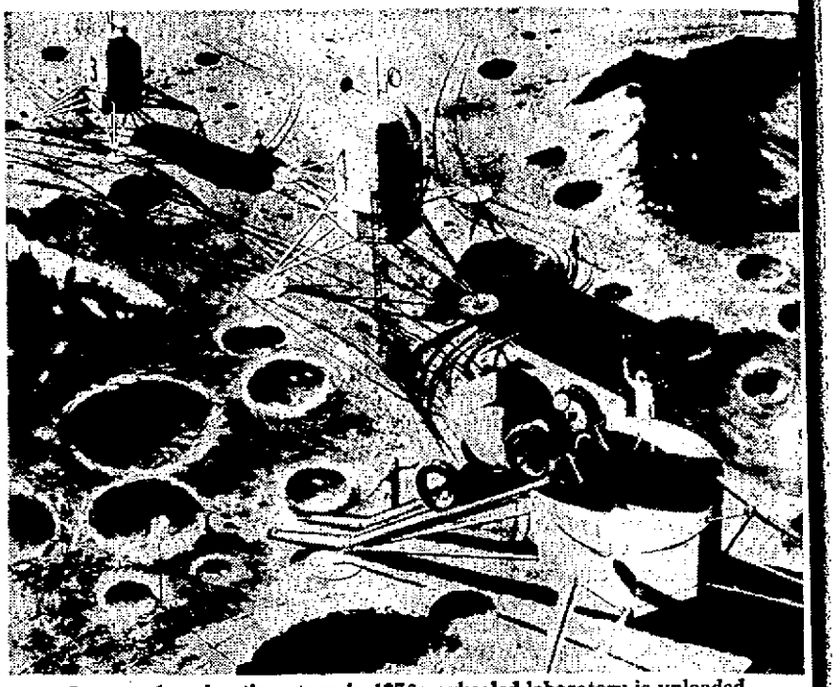

On the moon surface, at extreme lower right, is an astronomical observatory which will be able to view the heavens without the obstructed atmosphere of earth. At right center is a complex radio antenna for the radio astronomical observation of the universe. To its left is the covered moving pedestrian sidewalk that brings the earth traveler from the spaceport to the subterranean lunar city.

Colonizing the Moon

(Turn to Next Page for Story, More Drawings)

This is first step toward moon civilization. Man extracts samples of moon minerals. Lunar modules in background house all equipment.

In second exploration stage in 1970s, wheeled laboratory is unloaded from module. Vehicle will cover 250 miles without being refueled.

—Drawings by General Electric Missile and Space Division Artists

By Mark Clutter

IMAGINE, if you can, an America populated by the best men of Europe.

Think what the New World would be like if the kings of Europe had had the wisdom and the science to send only an elite across the seas.

They would have carefully screened the emigrants, picking only the healthy, educated, highly intelligent, socially adaptable persons. There would have been no pirate ships, slave ships or barks laden with religious fanatics. The jailbirds, the diseased, the ne'er-do-wells, the bandit-hearted, the rebels and the ignoramuses would have been kept at home.

Use of human and natural resources would have been scientifically planned. There would be no poverty, no disease, no oppression and no war. Great universities would have been built before the sod was broken.

The kings of the past did not think that way, but the scientists of today in all seriousness are planning such a New World. The General Electric Missile and Space Division, for one, is working out details for colonizing the moon.

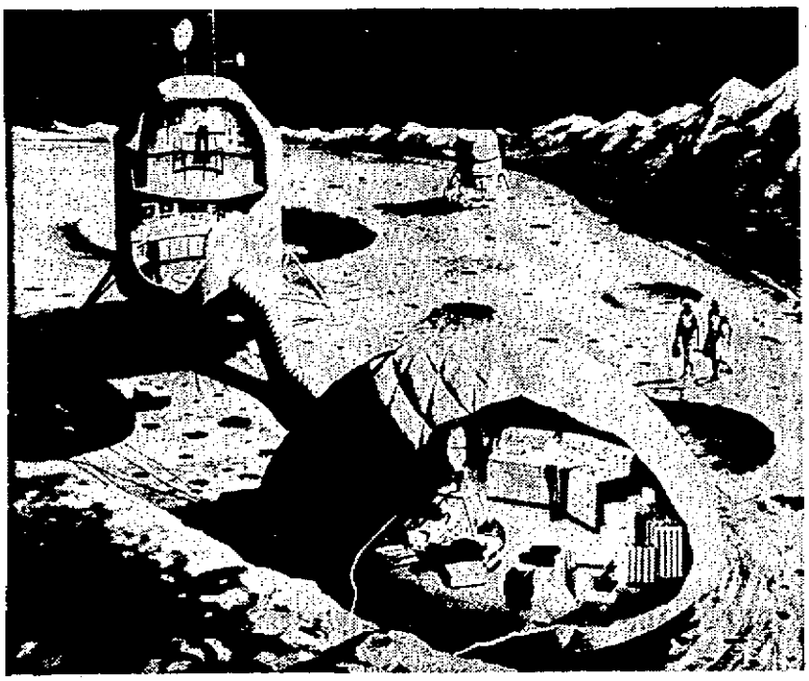

This, to the scientists, is no idle fantasy. They believe that there will be a city — or cities — on the moon before the children of today have grown old.

The moon seems an inhospitable homeland for the sons of earth — but what did America seem to the homesick Pilgrims as they knelt on the strand between ocean and wilderness?

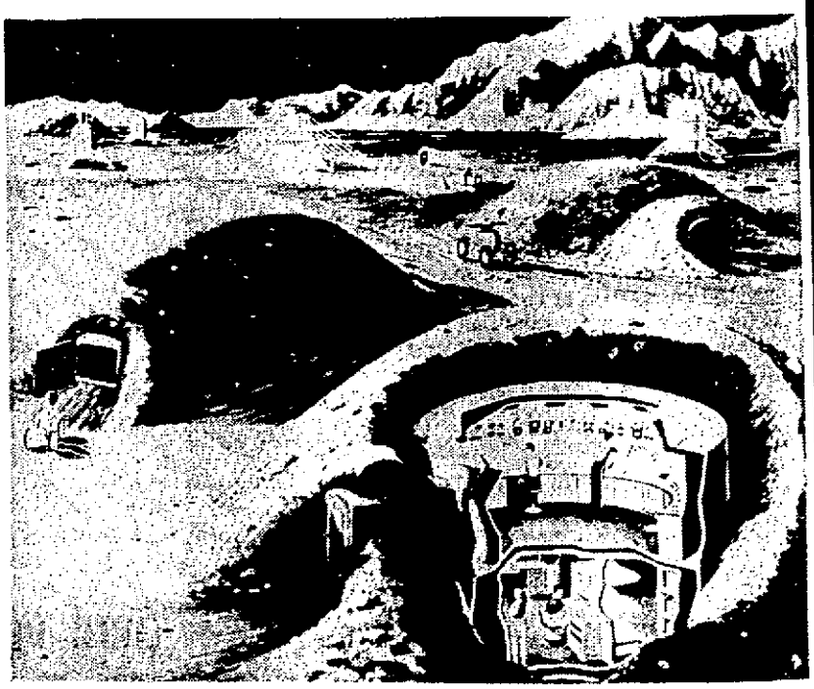

The first crude settlement on the moon is foreseen for the early 1970s — five or six years from now. There will be only a few men, and everything they have, including air, will come from Mother Earth. They will have one simple shelter and a one-man "moon car." Later there will be MOLAB — a mobile laboratory capable of transporting explorers over 250 miles of moon surface.

By the late 1970s there will be permanent or semi-permanent moon bases, many of them under the surface to protect the men from the intense heat and cosmic radiation.

From such humble beginnings will develop the moon civilization. By the end of the century Luna City will be reality. It is envisioned that there will be an Early moon base contains two living structures. Rigid one is landed directly from earth. Dome house (foreground) is constructed on moon.

Toward end of 1970s lunar houses will be protected by moon material. This colony will be engaged in optical and radio astronomy.

Southland Magazine

By year 2000 moon colony should have its own industrial plants, one of which is shown here. It would produce hydrogen by nuclear power.

Electromagnetic launcher will accelerate spacecraft to earth in late 1990s and decelerate incoming craft. Top speed, 5,472 miles an hour.

electromagnetic launcher to facilitate spaceship travel to and from the moon. True aerospaceships will carry 100 passengers.

Once on the surface the new colonizers — and tourists —will go to the city on a moving, enclosed sidewalk giving a view of the moonscape.

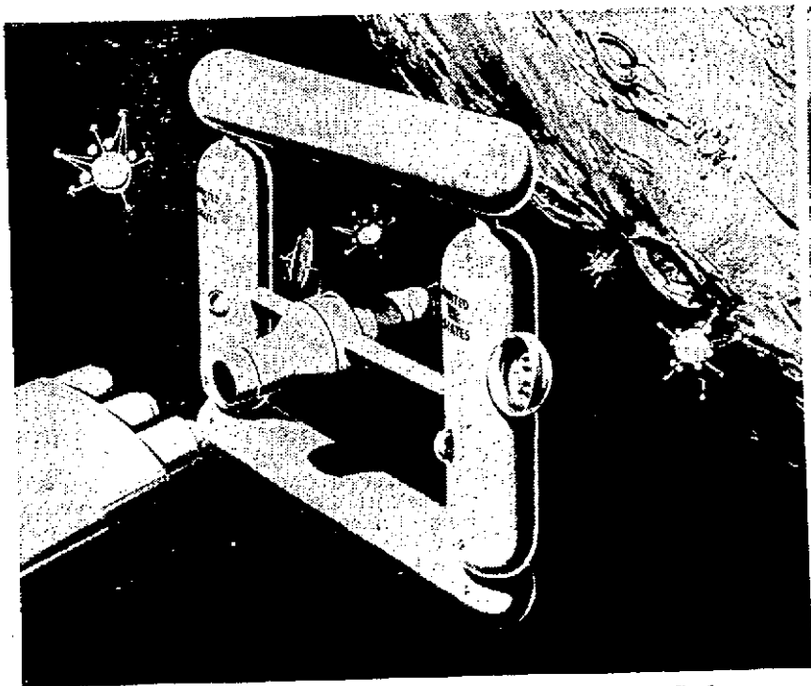

The city itself, although in a huge man made cave, will be much like a 21st century earth city without poverty pockets, social lag and obsolescence. Giant floodlights will imitate daylight. A nuclear power station will provide ample electricity. Transit will be by moving sidewalks and one-man flying machines. Farms will be domed areas providing optimal controlled weather. There will be parks, art galleries, theaters, fountains, sports arenas and all the other amenities of the best earth cities.

Scientists, artists and social planners will have the freedom to make their dreams come true since they will not be hampered by existing institutions and reactionary social pressures. The university should be without peer since it will be the creation of the most advanced society ever achieved by man. The wisdom and technology of Luna City will brighten every city of earth.

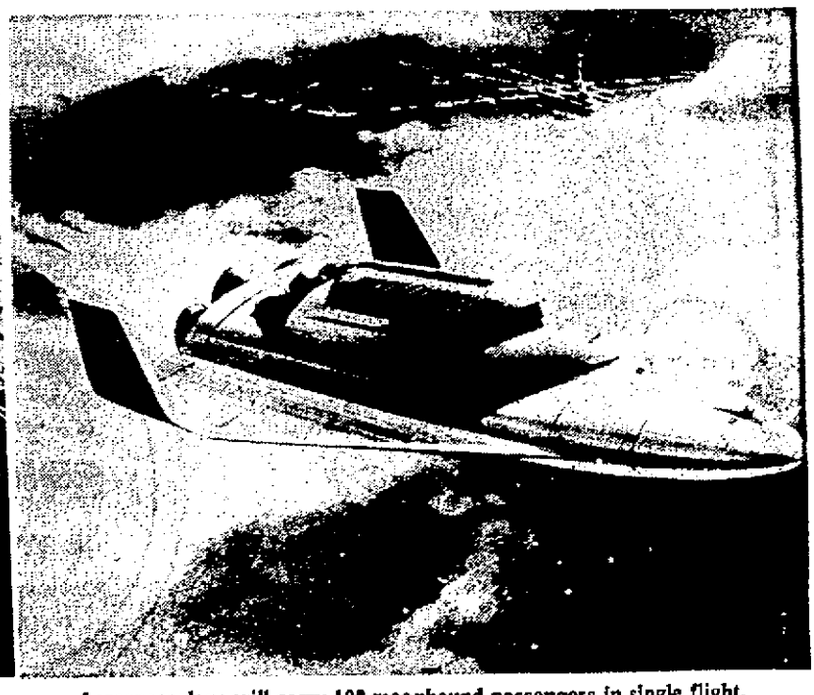

Some basic facts about the moon raise many questions. What, for example, will be the effect on the human body of weighing only a sixth of earth weight? Will it make for greater stamina and energy? It should alter sports; football players will be able to block and tackle in mid air.

Future history may prevent or delay the establishment of a moon civilization. A disastrous world war could shatter earth's civilization, postponing the dream for centuries while men again fight their way up from barbarism. Scientific planning must be based on the belief that current trends will continue.

But the scientists of General Electric and other firms are not smoking opium. Their projections are based on known scientific facts. The moon can become the new New World, the America in the sky, if men want it enough.

Logistics will require staging complex for passengers, cargo. Such a complex will be in fixed geometrical position between earth and moon.

Aerospaceplane will carry 100 moonbound passengers in single flight. Such vehicles will be needed by year 2001 as moon colony expands.

Lessons From Watts

By Tom Goodhue

Editor's Note: The author of this article is an 18-year-old Garden Grove youth who plans to enter Stanford as a freshman this fall.

I WAS TRYING to help 11-year-old Paul with his spelling, but he was helping me far more. I was trying to teach him the grammar he had missed in school, but (even though neither of us realized it at the time) he was teaching me much more. I had been learning all day, for Watts has much to teach and its unlikely teachers are everywhere.

A group of teen-agers from our church in Garden Grove has been going into the Watts area once a week. Recently I made my first trip; my education began immediately.

We arrived at the Willowbrook Job Corp. on Alameda Street (a pretentious title for the efforts of Jimmy Brown and his wife to help people in the area) wanting very badly to help, to start working instead of just standing back and looking. The problem was that none of us knew what to do; we wanted to do something worthwhile but had no idea where to begin. We became uneasy, nervous, bewildered.

Lesson: realize how the unemployed man in Watts must feel, the man who wants a job but is unskilled, the man who wants to work but does not know where to begin. Learn this lesson well; it is the first step to understanding the life of the jobless.

Learning comes in strange ways. Jimmy Brown taught me my second lesson. He found that he had hundreds of discarded schoolbooks he could no longer use at Willowbrook. Jimmy could have easily put the books out with the morning trash, but he saw to it that they were taken to a Goodwill box some distance away. Lesson No. 2 concerns remembering others in need even when you have great needs yourself.

The young children who came to Willowbrook for crafts classes trusted our group of white strangers from Garden Grove from the first, even though they didn't know us or where we were from. The older boys were more suspicious.

Their doubts about our motives were obvious as we loaded the schoolbooks into a car. They wondered who we were — "You work for the Goodwill?" — and what we wanted — "You want these books for a project of yours or something?" It was much more difficult to gain their acceptance.

The unhappy lesson of this is that for these kids fear and suspicion increase with age. This is a tragic part of the growing process.

I WAS wondering if we could ever bridge the space that separates us when Jimmy's teen-age son asked me — an outsider and a total stranger — if I could drive the car to the Goodwill box.

Recipe of the Week

CORN RELISH is an old-fashioned recipe pleasing to the modern taste. Mrs. Paul Koehler, 3304 E. Centralia St., Long Beach, tells how she does it in the $5 prize recipe of the week.

CORN RELISH

12 ears corn
5 lg. red peppers
5 lg. green peppers
2 stalks celery
2 med. onions
2 tblsp. salt
1 pt. water
1 pt. vinegar
1 cup sugar
1 tblsp. mustard seed
1 tblsp. ground mustard

Remove seeds from peppers and chop them fine. Chop celery and onions to combine with seasoning, vinegar and water and cook 15 minutes. Cut corn from the cob and add to mixture. Cook 10 minutes more. Pour into jars and seal at once. Makes 8 pints.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipe along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Once You Catch the Fever You Never Get Rid of It

The Rock Hound

By Pearl G. Martufi

Paul Whitney cuts a piece of agate on the rock saw at the Boys' Club in Buena Park. He donates his time in teaching boys about lapidary.

THE OLD Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe jarred to a scheduled rest stop at Adamana, Ariz., one day, half a century ago. Because a wide-eyed boy was a passenger on that trip, his women-folk are wearing hand-fashioned jewelry. And, Buena Park Boys Club has a lapidary instructor.

Six-year-old Paul Whitney watched a big man get up from his seat near the front of the coach, jam a wide-brimmed hat on his head, and clamber down the train steps. The boy pressed his face against the train window to watch the man rush into a field and stoop to pick up something from the ground.

The train was about to move forward again when the man swung aboard, puffing for breath and carrying several small stones in his hand.

Young Paul sidled up in curiosity and slid into the seat beside him. "Know what these are, laddie?" The big man pressed two fragments of stone into Paul's hands.

"Rock, I think." To the child's six-year-old reasoning they were rocks. Nothing more.

"THAT WAS the Petrified Forest back there, my boy, and these stones used to be wood — pieces of great pine trees." The man touched the pieces of stone gently.

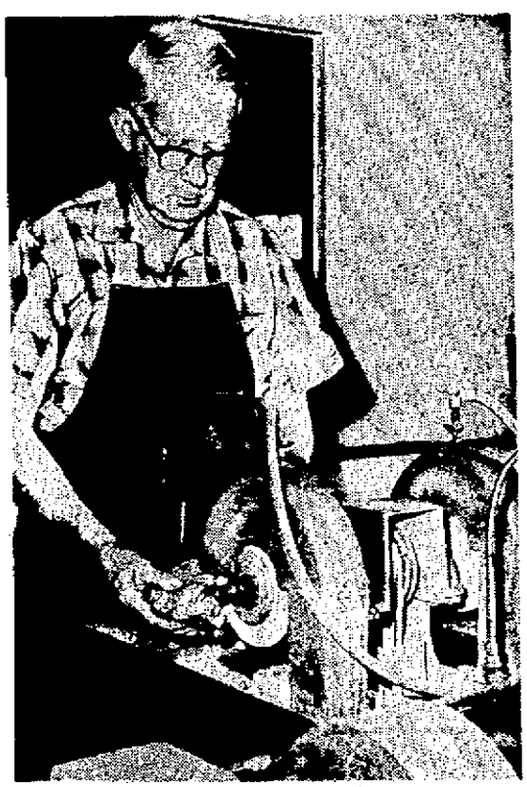

"But a long time ago," he went on, "maybe 150 million years ago, volcanoes erupted and flash floods toppled the big trees and washed them into the lowlands. Ashes and sand and mud covered the fallen trees for thousands and thousands of years. And slowly, slowly the wood turned to stone."

Paul turned the fragments over and over, studying them. The man continued, "Some day you must have your daddy take you to see the big trees. They're not standing up, mind you, now. They're just logs turned to stone, lying flat on the ground. Some are up to 125 feet long and six feet thick."

Paul tried to visualize the enormous dimensions. But all he could say was "Gee-ee-ee!" On wee-lad ears the man's words left a lasting impression.

IT WAS MANY years before Paul Whitney visited the forest-turned-to-stone. And then, when he did, he said "Gee-ee-ee!" again, standing awe-stricken among the giant logs of agatized wood, the greatest concentration of petrified wood in the world.

Nothing that ever happened to Paul stood out in his memory as did the incident of the big man who left the train to snatch fragments of stone from nearby Petrified Forest. That day, Paul Whitney says, determined his future hobby. His enthusiasm never waned.

Whitney grinds gem stone at grinding machine.

As he grew into manhood he collected all the gem rocks and petrified fossils he could find. He read every book on the subject he could lay hands on. It was in his blood. "If you don't want to become an incurable rock hound, don't ever become exposed," he warns you. "It's like an addiction. Ask any rock hound."

After 33 years of industrial employment, Paul Whitney retired. Now he was free to devote full time to his rock-hounding hobby. No more having to wait for off-days or permitted vacations.

When neighbors saw him hitching up the old trailer they knew a camping trip was about to begin. With wife, Margie, he would make trips up the California coast, particularly the beach at Monterey — sometimes on into Arizona — to pick up jade, quartz, moonstones, garnets, obsidian and various species of agate with its bands of "pure beauty."

MOST EXCITING were the trips along the shore when they raced the ocean for finds. There's only half an hour between ebbtide and neaptide. Often they snatched jade from the beach and scrambled for the cliffs with the water lapping at their heels.

Rock-hounding has no class distinction or age line. The pauper and the millionaire, the young and the old share a common interest. Paul Whitney cites James Lewis Kraft, founder of the Kraft Food line, as an avid example of a well-to-do rock hound.

James Lewis Kraft even wrote a book titled "Adventure in Jade," in which he describes his fabulous purchase, a mountain of jade. "This mountain of jade — and other jewel stones — stands some 4,000 feet above the north fork of Indian Creek. Jagged peaks of californite and jagged peaks of jade . . . are richly and bountifully present."

Paul Whitney has been a frequent visitor to the site — along with other rock hounds — for Mr. Kraft, before his death, deeded the area to the Rock-Hound Fraternity.

Contrary to general opinion, men have no monopoly on rock-hounding. It is not unusual to see a woman picking and selecting until her sack is as heavy as she can manage. She's perhaps more cautious than a man as she moves about excavations, lest she jar a stone loose and have it roll on her foot. And she's usually partial to blue — especially real agate blue.

The money he has invested in a shop building, a slab saw, a cutting machine, a grinder, a tumbler, a polisher and buffer and all the various equipment for his hobby, Paul Whitney considers a most worthwhile expenditure. To quote him:

"I get a feeling of indescribable satisfaction when I look at the finished product. I take the little polished gems of stone from the tumbler where they have been rolling against one another 24 hours a day for six weeks. Then I spread them out . . . look." Paul demonstrates with a half dozen samples on his palm. "See how they glitter and glisten in the light? And they feel as smooth as pearls."

This vivacious rock hound has made pieces of jewelry — brooches, bracelets, necklaces, key rings, pendants to hang from chains — all for gifts to relatives and friends. The Western shops are full of such jewelry for sale, but Paul Whitney has no burning ambition to find a market for the work he turns out. "It's a little like fishing," he says with a broad grin. "A fisherman doesn't feel he has to sell his catch."

WHEN A 10-year-old grandson came to visit, he followed Paul Whitney around the back lot where more than four tons of stones were stacked in little heaps, ready for processing. The busy, rhythmic whir of the workshop tumbling machine fascinated the boy, as did every phase of the stone-to-gem operation. And, being a typical grandfather, Paul Whitney swelled with pride and joy to see a grandson inherit his interest in rock-hounding.

Tommy suddenly clutched his grandfather's sleeve and said: "Grandpa, will you help us at our Boys Club? We have a fine shop with all kinds of machines. But we can't use it. You see . . . well, we don't have any instructor. Will you

IF GASOLINE and alcohol do not mix, neither do women and car mechanics.

I was reminded of this the other evening when my niece Pat, a sports car addict, dropped by the apartment.

"Fix me a drink, Unk," she said, collapsing into a chair, "before I burn out a bearing."

I poured her a stiffy, along with a thimbleful for the marster. "The Miseratti again?" I guessed.

"AND the Miseratti mechanic." She took a hefty swig. "Of all the slack-jawed rannies—"

"Not good old Vittorio?"

"His stand-in. Vittorio's on vacation."

"REVISITING la patria off your repair bills of the past six months, I'll wager."

"On a round-the-world tour, more likely." She downed another slug. "Anyway, no sooner do I drive in the shop than this goon with the gorilla hairline say, 'Lady, you need a front end alignment.' "

"Spoken," I said, "like a true mechanic."

"I let it pass. 'Would you please check the motor?' I said. 'It dies in traffic—no pickup.' "

"'No pickup?' He gives me a greasy grin. 'It could be your points, lady. Or your carburetor. Or maybe your plugs are dirty.'

"I STILL let it pass. 'Also, around fifty there's a humming noise,' I said.

" 'You're not dripping oil?' he says.

" 'No,' I said, 'and neither is the car.'

"It didn't register. 'Sounds like your transmission,' he says, pulling an oil soaked rag from his pocket and wiping his hands on it. 'Let's take a look under your hood.'

"'Leave me out of it, please,' I said, breaking finally. It's the car we're talking about.'

" 'Sure,' he says, 'the car.'

"HE LIFTS the hood and tinkers with the motor for a while, at the same time messing up the fender with his oily paws. Then he gets in and fiddles with the controls. This gives him a chance to soil the upholstery with his greasy coveralls. Finally he gets out.

" 'Lady,' he says, carefully wiping his oily rag over the only clean spot left on either fender, 'you need a major tuneup!'

" 'The car needs a major tuneup,' I said.

" 'Yeah,' he says, 'the car.'

" 'How long will that take?'

" 'A week to 10 days.'

" 'LOOK, MISTER,' I said, 'this car has been in the shop a total of six months out of the 12 I've owned it. When am I supposed to drive it?'

"He shrugs. 'The wops made the car, lady. I just work on it.'

"I felt myself coming to a boil, but I smiled graciously. 'All right, I'll see,' I said, and got in the car to leave. As I eased into gear, Ape Man stood there with his head cocked, listening.

" 'When you bring it in, lady,' he says, 'remind me to take a look at your rear end.'

"THAT DID IT. I grabbed

Our neighbors know we paid only $1995 for our new Anthony pool...

(but what we didn't tell them is we paid only $25 down)

"I've already gotten a great tan relaxing by our own Anthony pool—just like in the movies! Less than a month ago I never dreamed we could have our own pool.

But my husband says our pool payments are only about $25 a month.

Now he calls me his "movie star."

And I call him pretty smart!

I don't see why every family who really wants the fun and glamour of a pool doesn't get one. But not everyone is as smart as my husband."

MARK ANTHONY POOL—$1995

Only $25.98 per month, 10 year terms.

Pool is 10' x 28'—260 sq. ft. rectangle, 3' to 7' deep. Price includes 2' wide precast deck, permits, non-corrosive plumbing, steel-reinforced gunite concrete construction with lifetime structural guarantee. Three steps in shallow end, white plaster, 6" waterline tile, raised diving platform, stainless steel spin filter, bronze pump, and motor. Electrical hookup not included. Priced on normal access and soil. Slightly higher in areas of higher construction cost.

A Very Special Way to Fix Fish Fillets

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IS YOUR husband's boss coming to dinner? Are you looking for a hearty new recipe to tempt the appetite of your home-on-furlough son? Or is it just plain time to serve something new, nutritious and appealing for the family's Sunday dinner? . . .

Whatever the situation at your house, we suggest that you start your meal preparations by going fishing so you can serve these zesty new Cheese-Crusted Fillet Foldups. Flaky and tender, filled with a tartar sauce-onion mixture, egg-dipped and coated with a crisp cheese-flavored crust before frying, these fillets are real applause-winners among the "people who like to eat" set.

Of course, when we advised you to go fishing, we meant fishing in the supermarket freezer case, or in your own personal freezer if you've been foresighted enough to lay in a supply of frozen fish fillets which are so convenient to have on hand to serve for very special, as well as everyday, occasions.

For this recipe, any frozen fillet found in your retail frozen food section will be suitable. Ask the man of the house to name his favorite fish or tell you which kind his boss talks about most. Whatever kind you choose to serve for what is bound to be the dinner of the week at your house, you can be certain that you are going to be bringing something very special to the table. The frozen fillets are prepared of fine quality fish, processed for freezing under such exacting conditions that they will have as great a taste as though a fisherman himself had just brought his catch to your kitchen.

Only this way they're much easier to prepare—no scaling or cleaning! What is more—they're easy on the budget. And fish are great for waistline-watchers, too, which includes most men, as well as the ladies, these days. So try these Fillet Foldups soon, and plan to add them to your most-requested recipe list. They're that good!

CHEESE-CRUSTED FILLET FOLDUPS

1 package (1-pound or 4 fillets) frozen fillets, defrosted
1 cup tartar sauce *
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ cup flour
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup finely crushed cheese-flavored corn curls

Lay fillets out flat; spread half of each with tartar sauce mixed with onion. Fold over fillets and fasten edges with toothpicks. Carefully dip each piece in flour, then into egg and then into cheese crumbs. Pat crumbs onto fish. Place on wire rack and allow to dry for about ½ hour, turning once. Additional crumbs may be patted onto any wet spots when fillets are turned or before frying. Fry in ¾-inch hot fat until brown and fish flakes easily; about 8 minutes. Turn and fry other side. Serve at once with additional tartar sauce, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

—½ cup salad dressing mixed with ¼ cup drained pickle relish may be used in place of prepared tartar sauce.

COIN ROUNDUP

From Mailbag

By Maurice M. Gould

The mailbag becomes heavier and heavier, so see if this column answers some of your questions.

Q. What is meant by the "devil in the hair" banknote?

A. This is the term given to the 1954 Canadian $1 Queen Elizabeth II note and also some of the larger denomination notes. When this note first appeared, some collectors noticed a devil's face in the queen's hair, behind the right ear. Changes were then made by the engravers, and the objectionable feature was not printed from then on.

Q. Why are coins used for jewelry?

A. In some parts of the Far East and North Africa, as well as other areas of the world, gold and silver coins are made into jewelry. In many cases this is the family fortune, so it serves a two-fold purpose: use as ornaments and a form of savings.

Q. What does TAMS mean?

A. These are the initials for the Token and Medal Society, one of the world's most highly respected specialized organizations. This group meets once a year at the National American Numismatic Association convention, has an excellent bulletin, and its members do a great deal of research in the token and medal field. There are a few local groups in various areas of the country under the wing of the parent organization.

Russian Cosmonaut Medal

Q. What is happening to the medal market in numismatics?

A. For a couple of years the medal market was dormant, but interest has revived in recent months. New medals are being brought out by all the companies striking them, with every conceivable subject — distinguished personalities, anniversaries and commemorative issues predominate. There seems to be a trend toward medallic collecting all over the world, and even Yugoslavia recently struck a medal honoring our late President John F. Kennedy.

Q. Can you estimate the value of a freak or mint error coin?

A. This is one of the most difficult questions in coin collecting. There is no set value, as is the case with most collectible U.S. coins. Hundreds of varieties of minor errors are discovered in circulation daily. A club or collector will evaluate the coin and make further recommendations.

Q. I have a bill issued by a private bank in 1837. It is stamped "Counterfeit." Does this bill have to be turned in to the U.S. Secret Service?

A. As these old notes were not legal U.S. tender, they may be kept in paper money collections. I have never heard of an item of this type being seized by the government.

Q. What is your feeling about the speculative market in coins?

A. My personal feeling is that it will be quite a while before the speculative market is as active as it was in recent years. Coin collecting will be very active, but the accent will be on "collector material," especially before 1900. This material has proved to be the most stable and firm investment over a long period.

Q. What is the most common commemorative U.S. half-dollar?

A. The Columbian Exposition half-dollar of 1892 and 1893. These coins were carefully preserved by visitors to the Chicago World's Fair and are readily available.

Please send stamped, self-addressed envelope with any further questions.

Dennis and the Menace

"THE CHINESE LOOKING GLASS" (Dennis Bloodworth, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $6.95) is by another of those Englishmen who seem hipped on Mao and Red China; so much so, that he is as critical of Moscow as he is of the West. Of Mao, he writes: " . . . they (the Chinese people) have reason to applaud him. Mao Tse-tung and his philosophy . . . united China under strong centralized government, poured new vigor into her arteries, gave her the face lift she so pitifully needed, and purged her of many ugly impurities." A considerable number of Chinese Communists seem to be giving Mao something other than applause at the moment.

Bloodworth finds the Chinese people disregarding arguments against socialism: "They have heard all the arguments before. In 81 B.C. the pro-capitalist faction was already complaining that iron implements made in state foundries were dearer and of poorer quality than those turned out by private enterprise."

Here is an anachronism to end all anachronisms and well-calculated to make Marx perform like a whirling dervish in his grave at London's Highgate Cemetery! A good 19 centuries were to go by before capitalism was born! Author Bloodworth, incidentally, might try looking through the files of Pravda, Izvestia, and their Chinese counterparts for similar complaints about the quality of products made in state factories.

He has China "gradually absorbing and modifying the foreign doctrine of Marxism-Leninism." Mao's "Cultural Revolution" and its Red Guards would seem bent on just the opposite: to preserve the pristine "purity" of Marxism-Leninism. The Soviet Russian Communists, Peking has proclaimed, have been the corrupters of "pure" Marxism-Leninism.

Bloodworth derides the idea of self-determination for Formosa and Tibet. They are, he says, "part of Chinadom, and to talk of giving them self-determination is like advocating a referendum to decide whether the Isle of Wight should remain part of Britain."

Come, come, Mr. Bloodworth, surely you know better! The Isle of Wight is English to the core, in culture, language, religion. Tibet is no more Chinese in those respects than is Burma.

And Try Not to Miss...

CZECH AND SLOVAK SHORT STORIES. Translated and selected by Jeanne Nemcova. Oxford University Press (The World's Classics), $3.50.

Do you remember Karel Capek's play "R.U.R.," the great Theater Guild success in the late 20s? Capek was a short story writer of considerable standing, and is represented in this collection. So is Jaroslav Hasek, whose novel "The Good Soldier Schweik" is a classic. And so are many other good writers, like Ivan Olbracht and Jan Neruda.

LYRICAL AND CRITICAL. By Albert Camus. Hamish Hamilton, London, 30 shillings.

Camus excelled in the essay as he did in the novel. Here, brought together for the first time in English translation, are his essays expressing his attitude toward Algeria's towns and its countryside (Camus was born and grew up in Algeria). It is a self-portrait of Camus himself.

THE ORIENT EXPRESS. By Michael Barsley. Stein and Day. $6.95.

The Orient Express has been the real hero of many a thriller of international intrigue. Graham Greene wrote a classic spy novel, using the name of the famous Paris-Istanbul train (and its 1,800-mile journey) as its title. John Dos Passos used the name as the title of a travel book. This book tells its glamorous history.

VANISHING CORNWALL. By Daphne du Maurier. Doubleday, $7.95.

King Arthur's court was at Camelot in Cornwall; Tristan and Iseult dwelt in this land. Daphne du Maurier has lived in Cornwall for 40 years and she knows and loves its wild, mysterious beauty. Her novels, "Rebecca," "Jamaica Inn," and "The King's General" were set there.

Rebels on Canadian Border

THE WAR IN THE NORTH. An Informal History of the American Revolution in and Near Canada. By Donald Barr Chidsey. Crown. $3.95.

Donald Chidsey, who has to his credit a series of on-the-scene histories, creates in "War in the North" unforgettable portraits of the heroes and their leaders, the battles, marches and confrontations that are the very heart of this nation's history.

The reader is alongside Benedict Arnold and Ethan Allen, leader of the Green Mountain Boys, as they capture Fort Ticonderoga without a shot; follows Arnold on his sojourn through the Maine wilderness to lay siege to Quebec, and see the death of Gen. Montgomery at that walled city.

Then the war moves to New York state and Vermont and there occurs the first great naval battle America fought, on Lake Champlain, Indian raids, massacres, the battles of Bennington and Oriskany and finally there is the momentous surrender of Gen. John Burgoyne and Gen. Gates at Saratoga.

"The War in the North," vivid and memorable, recaptures one of the most crucial campaigns in the American Revolution.—Bill Shelton.

Three Books Give Views of World

THE WORLD'S GREAT RELIGIONS, by the Editorial Staff of Life Magazine. Golden Press. $2.45.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN, By Lincoln Barnett and the Editors of Life Magazine. Golden Press. $2.45.

GEOLOGY: Our Changing Earth Through the Ages. By Jerome Wyckoff. Golden Press. $2.95.

These three paperback volumes are quality reproductions of popular-education books which were widely read in hard cover. All are for adults as well as students and all are beautifully illustrated in full color photographs and reproductions of famous paintings.

"The World's Great Religions" is a condensation of Life's series, originally published by Time, Inc., as a large volume in 1957 and distributed again in 1963 in three hardcover "special family editions." The basic beliefs, rites and rituals of Hinduism, Buddhism, the Chinese philosophies, Islam, Judaism and Christianity are explained and their similarities and differences defined.

The hard cover of "The World We Live In," published 10 years ago, sold more than a million copies. It tells of the development through the ages of all that makes up the natural environment of man: the creatures and plants of land and sea; the earth, its winds and rains, woods and deserts, mountains, plains and rivers; and the planets and galaxies of outer space.

"Geology," an introduction to the earth sciences, deals with earthquakes, volcanoes, rocks, minerals, glaciers, caverns, rivers, oceans and the movement of entire continents. The author was co-editor of the Harper Encyclopedia of Science.—Morry Rabin

Book of Plays

BEST PLAYS OF THE EARLY AMERICAN THEATER. Edited, and with an introduction by John Gassner. Crown, $6.50.

There were no Eugene O'Neills on the American theatrical scene in the earlier days of our stage, but there was some good drama. Of the 16 plays in this anthology William Dean Howells' "The Mouse-Trap" is undoubtedly the best. Many of these plays were long on sentimentality and short on literary skill, but they captured the popular fancy, and if nothing else, these works present a good picture of the customs and tastes of their day. Incidentally one of them is George L. Aiken's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which froze the audiences in their seats.

The late John Gassner, who was professor of playwrighting and dramatic literature at Yale and one of the best play anthologists, discusses the techniques of stage production and the best-known performers of these plays.

Susan Sontag, highly acclaimed young American novelist, whose new book, "Death Kit," has been published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux.

Portrait of Woman of 1920s

SAVE ME THE WALTZ. By Zelda Fitzgerald. Southern Illinois University Press, $6.95.

The tragic wife of F. Scott Fitzgerald wrote only one novel, "Save Me the Waltz." It is somewhat of a curiosity, this life of an aspiring ballerina, but, though hardly to be mentioned in the same breath with the best of Fitzgerald's work, there are many glints of talent.

When it first appeared in 1932, there were critical hoots, yet in England the revlewers, when it was published there in 1953, called it "powerful." It IS a true picture of a woman in a particular age. Fitzgerald read his wife's novel as he worked on his masterpiece "Tender Is the Night," and there are parallels.—H.

Jerusalem Thorn Is Happy-Go-Lucky

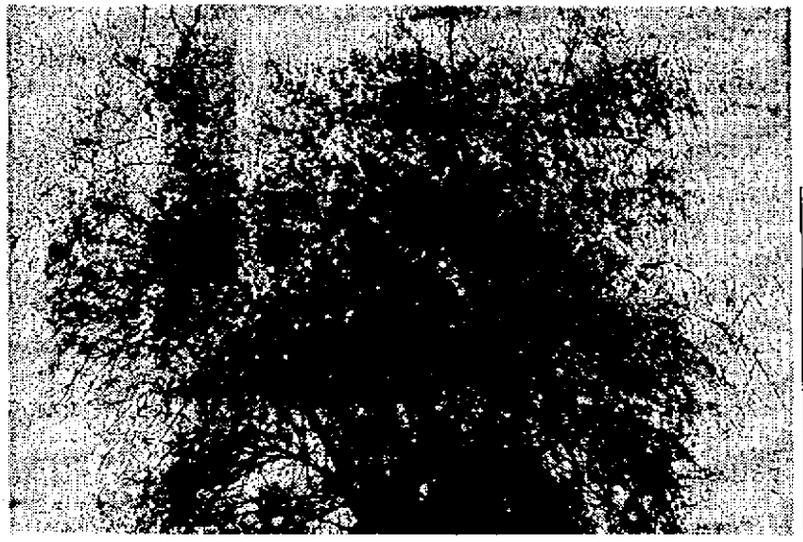

By Joe Littlefield

JERUSALEM THORN is a happy-go-lucky kind of a tree that is equally as happy in the desert, inland foothill area yet grows just as well along the coast. It isn't affected by alkali soil condition; pests don't seem to bother it; children and cats don't try to climb the tree because the sharp, nearly inch long thorns don't need to remind them, "stay off me;" it is happy whether it gets regular periodic waterings, or has to stand long spells of dryness, and grows well in a lawn or soil area.

Let it grow like Topsy, and the zig-zagging branches and possibly crooked trunk may cause it to look shaggy and unkept. Trim this tree annually and it burgeons forth from an "ugly duckling" into a beautiful, shapely tree, depending upon size desired from around 15 to 25 foot height and same spread. It provides a light filtered shade in the summer.

The airy gracefulness of this tree is due to spiny zig-zagging pendulous branches, covered with the light green leaves that are twice pinnately compound and laternate, 6 to 12 inches long, and composed of 40 to 80 entire leaflets about ⅛ inches long. Many drop off when weather turns cold, therefore, are leafless during the winter.

The bright yellow blossoms around half-inch diameter size and flecked with red usually burgeon forth in early summer, and possibly some fewer will be found off and on throughout the summer into fall season. The flowers remind a person of one of the miniature species orchids.

Jerusalem thorn tree is hardy, grows equally well in coastal areas or in the desert. It is also called parkinsonia.

Hot weather means more watering of lawns, flowers, ground covers, shrubs, vines and trees. Wise gardeners know that a fine premoisted top dressing mulch material whether over a lawn or over soil of plants saves on frequency of waterings because it doesn't wash away, accepts water more readily; increases water penetration: stays moist longer, leavens the soil and keeps it from crusting.

HOT WEATHER doesn't slow down certain kinds of bugs activities, meaning they avidly attack certain kinds of plants during the summer season.

As an example, those brown edges on petals of roses, carnations, underside leafage of saxifrage (bergenia), viburnum suspensum and others means thrips. These pests are very slender and barely visible. They pierce and suck the sap of flowers or foliage, and destroy the epidermal cells. The flower petals brown, foliage turns a whitish color, both finally wither and die.

Red spider mites are but one of numerous kinds of agricultural and horticultural destructive mites. They operate somewhat similarly like the thrips, sucking the sap from foliage, also of blossoms.

Leafhoppers and white flies, too, are active during summer season.

Gardener usually insecticide sprays the plants to control those pests. There are the usual two kinds of insecticide spray. One kind controls sap-sucking insects. The other is for leaf or petal - chewing bugs. A third kind of insecticide spray is an oil emulsion spray. It is an effective control of scale which are sap-sucking insects but are much harder to control with the usual sap-sucking insecticide spray.

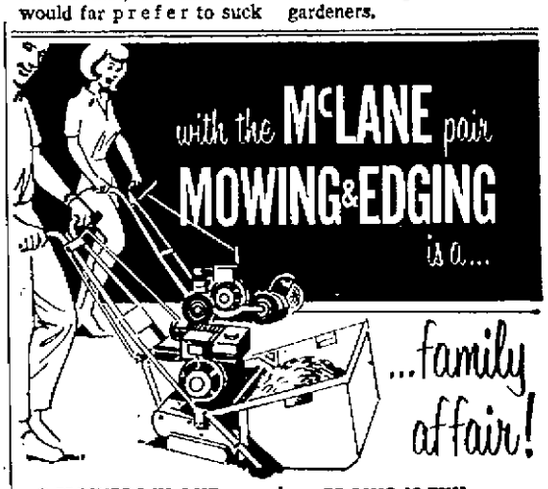

THE MODERN introduction insecticide spray is "systemic." Systemic means the insecticide is absorbed internally into the plant sap stream. As the bugs suck the plant sap, it controls the pests for about six weeks.

Plant Right Flowers for Hummingbirds

THOSE OF you who would attract hummingbirds to your garden need only to plant some of the flowers they feed on. Commercial feeders are all right for supplementing their diet, but the birds would far prefer to suck nectar from a natural source.

Preference seems to be for flowers that hang face down and for starters there is the fuchsia.

Trumpet Vine is also an attractive addition—both for hummingbirds and for gardeners.

Lessons From Watts: A Teen-Ager's View

Lesson, and a good one: trust and courage can break through fear.

As we became involved working with the kids I noticed many important things. Todella, the Browns' baby girl, cried until a girl from our group picked her up and gave her some attention. Later she cried until fed. Later still she cried for what she had really wanted all along, her mother. In all ways she behaved just as my sister did at that age.

The young girls happily played with dolls and stuffed animals (they had none at home) as girls always have done. The young boys eagerly awaited the bicycles the older boys were repairing (they were donated by a group in Beverly Hills); I remembered the thrill of having my first bike. Just like us, the teenage boys enjoyed playing pool and listening to rock 'n' roll. Lesson No. 5 is obvious.

MY NEXT teacher was a 3-year-old girl named Linda. While the others were playing, she was crying; I asked her if she wanted to color and she nodded her head. Finding a page torn out of a coloring book and a few broken crayons, I set her to work.

She started coloring a car, showing it to me every few minutes — it was important that someone see what she was doing. Soon she came to the people riding in the car; unable to find the right crayon, she colored them green. Color made little difference to her — why should it make so much difference to us?

We left Willowbrook knowing that we had not yet become deeply involved in the lives of the people there, but we had started and we were going back — that was what mattered. We forgot to bring lunches with us; we learned in a very small way what some people face every day.

BEFORE coming home we paid a visit to one last teacher. Towering above us were Simon Rodia's Watts Towers. Rodia built these amazing pillars of hope in his backyard on 107th Street (near Graham and Santa Ana) out of trash and rubble he collected from the area — broken bottles, dishes, coffee cups, sea shells and bits of tile.

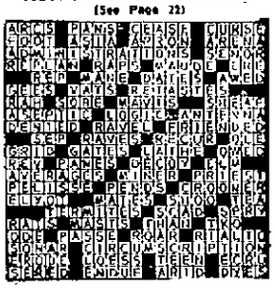

As I stood below these tributes to human creativity I could not help but wonder how great a society would be if it could somehow put to use all the broken, discarded and unused lives that lie waiting to be formed into majestic towers.

Garden Tips

Red bottle brush would make a good hedge, because it provides flowers, too.

HOPELESS weed infested grass lawn should be completely killed off, with one of two kinds of chemical materials. One is a liquid, the other granular. Both temporarily sterilize the soil for about three to four weeks, then ground is ready for grass seeding. Do not dig over the lawn sod, because you may have jillions more weed seeds sprout in your new lawn, due to many of them having been buried too deep and turned on top.

Storage Unit With Eye Appeal

This unit with pergola is handsome and is adaptable to many uses.

By Steve Ellingson

WHO says that a storage shed has to look utilitarian just because it is? The unique styling of the pergola shown here is a complement to any kind of house or any lot situation you might have.

It has a hundred different uses. Since the roof is paneled, it makes a shady and dry place for barbecue table and benches along with a cheerful eating area. The storage compartment has doors on both sides, a wonderful place to keep garden and carpentry tools, bicycles, barbecue equipment and dozens of other items.

And—if you gardeners need a potting shed, this one can't be beat. It puts all your gardening equipment and supplies, including soil, sand and leaf mold within easy reach, all beautifully organized.

If you have a swimming pool, just leave out the shelves and you have a cabana for dressing and keeping your pool equipment. It's good looking and adds to the appearance of any yard. The roof may be extended for a carport, in case you need one.

Building this attractive, practical storage pergola in your yard is an easier job than you'd guess. It was designed expressly for amateur weekend carpenters. It's a permanent home improvement, well worth the labor and material cost.

Because it's paneled and roofed with completely waterproof exterior type plywood, it will last as long as your house.

Ask the women folk in your family (or—you girls ask the men) if they think it would be convenient for storing gardening tools and other supplies. Everybody wants to eliminate clutter. This pergola does it. Not expensive either, when you do it yourself.

To obtain the easy-to-follow storage pergola plan No. 382, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

The Case of the Shy Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

Few dogs are as shy as this one, posed by Tom McNally for a dog contest, but some canines can pose a problem because of unsociable qualities.

BECAUSE dogs, like people, vary in disposition just as they do in size, coloring and other features, the subject of a dog's temperament is difficult to discuss.

Most people prefer the friendly, bold puppy that comes eagerly forward to be petted and cuddled, and those who attend dog shows admire the showy canines that are not afraid of crowds, confusion, the ring, and examining judges.

In spite of puppy testing laboratories, the complete answer as to whether a puppy's unsoundness lies mostly with its owner or its inheritance is not known, although it has been proven that a puppy should have socialization starting with its third week of life. If it isn't around people by the sixth or seventh week, there isn't much hope for it being friendly. And if not around people by the 12th week, there is no hope. It should not come away from the litter, however, before the sixth or seventh week unless it will be with other canines, otherwise it probably won't like other dogs.

WHEN YOU adopt a puppy, you should continue giving it numerous opportunities to belong to society. Let it live close to the family, come at least part of the time into the home, watch TV (but not more than an hour at a time), look into mirrors, be taken into stores that permit dogs, into traffic, be permitted to ride in the car, visit strange homes and meet strange people.

Be kind to your dog, get to know him, play with him, feed him by hand occasionally, groom and pat him often, talk to him, overlook some of his imperfections. But don't make too big a fuss, or you will have a spoiled dog. Every dog should learn to get along by himself hours at a time, and without ripping up the house or digging in the yard.

If the pet seems afraid of any family member or continues to run for cover when he hears noises or when strangers approach, and you are constantly "in a pickle" wondering what to do, make an effort to place him in another home. It is only fair that you explain, however, and extremely unfair to unload your burden upon another unsuspecting person. In some instances, after being safely settled in another home, the shy dog has changed miraculously. And especially if there are children to play with.

THIS DOES not necessarily reflect badly on the original owner. The first usually is the one who housebreaks the pet, corrects it and gives it restrictions. A new owner might not need to do more than love and care for the dog. There is no tension between this master and the dog, so it becomes a contented, happy part of the household, even to the point of eventually accepting noises and strangers.

If the dog does not adjust in any home, if obedience lessons in a class do not work, the dog should be considered irrevocably weak or permanently unsocial, and it would be better off if quietly and humanely put to sleep. A badly unbalanced dog is unreliable, miserable, and certainly no fun to own.

As for a biting dog, if I couldn't get that under control immediately, I'd take no chances but have him dispatched humanely.

On Sept. 3, Southeast Obedience Club will hold a licensed trial at Lynwood City Park.

Wild's Blue Williamsburg

By Ellen Krec

THE DARING decorating caper was underwritten by Dr. and Mrs. William O. Wild with appreciation and credit to Dick Goode, interior coordinator, and a subtle clue from a James Bond mystery.

The place: a two-story Williamsburg model home in Rossmoor.

The time: now.

A quiet Bristol blue stucco and flagstone facade is surrounded by informal plantings of geranium and low juniper with a rambling rose garden bordering the driveway.

A dramatic entrance discloses shades of gray living room and dining room, each underscored with crimson.

Furniture was chosen as carefully for its purpose in the Wild scheme of entertaining as the colors were for their visual impact.

The living room is the focus of the way of life enjoyed by the Wilds. Mrs. Wild says: "Our friends enjoy conversation, so we decided our living room should form a large, low grouping of comfortable chairs."

Several structural changes were made in the living room. Mrs. Wild did not enjoy the total kitchen exposure from the foyer, so the door was sealed and the wall was covered with gray velvet — an ideal background for the 14th century brass rubbing Mrs. Wild accomplished during a stay in London.

Basically, the home is a foil for Mrs. Wild's art representations, with a Moorish wall unit arranged to display several pieces of sculpture to best advantage.

Only three colors were used in the living and dining rooms, but the gray changes color with the light. Pale gray paint covers the balance of the walls and the previous fireplace was covered completely with charcoal ceramic tile a sweeping frame for the silvered chandelier hanging above the oversized, glass-topped coffee table.

A scroll design in the custom wrought-iron stair rail and the coffee table base was used also in the tile floor and fireplace as well as the back of the chairs facing the entry. The custom-made chairs have padded scrolls on the back to add interest when approached and to eliminate severity of design.

Gray crushed velvet covers all exposed lamp wires, and the same crushed velvet in crimson completely hides the chain and tapers of the chandelier.

The third color used in the living is a bright Bristol blue carpet.

The interior coordinator suggested Mrs. Wild send out her grand piano to be cleaned and burned . . . or even suspended from the ceiling! He insists any room with a piano is trouble. However, the piano stayed, and under the stair well, A red velvet bench and wall hung lamp complete the velvet-backed corner.

Although the living room is supremely formal in design with a minimum of detail, it fulfills all the requirements of the family, maximum and comfortable seating, mobile furniture easily moved to allow the dining table to extend into the living room.

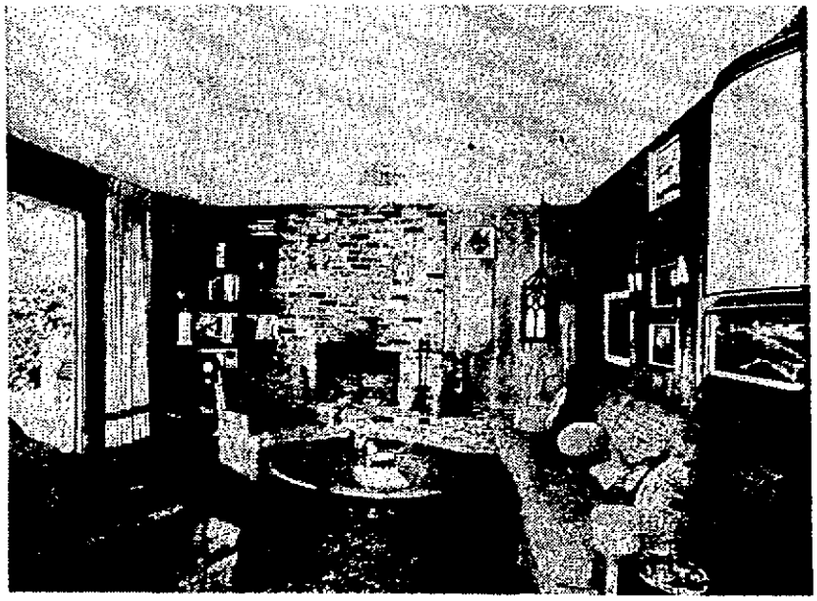

A full wrought iron screen was added to the staircase after the previous railing was removed. This changed the line of the room from down to across and allowed the narrow foyer to appear part of the stairs.

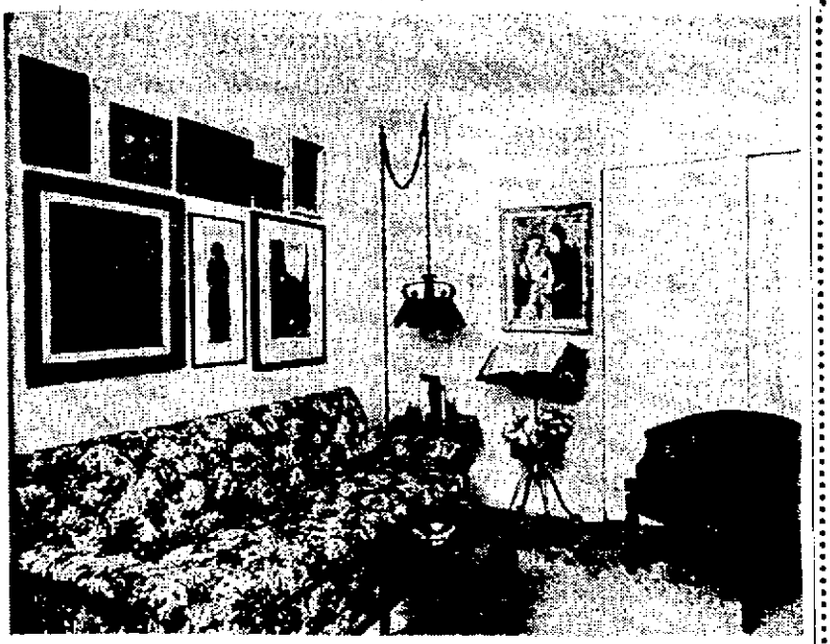

Dupioni silk Austrian shades, crisp and opaque, cover the bay windows as well as the narrow shafts of glass at the doors.

A complete change was necessary to fill the seating demands of the dining room. The arch was widened and the wall with a small window, directly facing the living room, was completely covered with an Austrian shade to complete the flow-through feeling.

A heavily carved, glass-topped extension table, surrounded by crimson-upholstered chairs, are the only furniture necessary in the small formal dining room. One wall is covered with antique silver mirror. Lighting problems arose but the "impossible" was accomplished by Dr. Wild when silver wall sconces were wired from the beams and attached to the mirrored wall.

Mrs. Wild enjoys experimenting with colors and when one cupboard door came off, she stained it dark walnut, rubbed it and finally antiqued it. When the desired shade was achieved, she refinished all the cupboards and one wall, then added black hinges and pulls to give a Mediterranean appearance.

A whimsical guest room opens to the right of the entry and a less formal change of pace in decor seemed in order.

Green with blue quilted print covers a small sofa with the print used in the scalloped shades. This room was the "budget room," so Mrs. Wild antiqued all of the unfinished built-ins blue. The same blue covers the shuttered door.

The decorator did the space layout and built the arches covering the windows above the desk. Finding and finishing were Mrs. Wild's responsibilities.

A complete collection of personal art including wood carvings, copper etchings and brass rubbings fills one wall space. Mrs. Wild admits she is not a "purist," because she keeps an old favorite Rembrandt reproduction.

Above the hall closets a border of clay plaques highlights the usually lost space.

A blue and silver bath is covered with sculptured foil wallpaper and a narrow frame was added to the mirror above the pullman.

The original kitchen was complete with pink appliances, so it had to blend. Colorful glass beads and turned spindles were strung to create a cover for the window over the pool-patio. Birch cabinets surround the room and form a foundation for the island stove.

A family and breakfast room are balanced in design with the same blue foil wallpaper and walnut contact-paper-covered beams. The closet doors were all touch-hinged and wallpapered to give a smooth uninterrupted surface.

A brass rubbing, 16th century Sir Thomas Bolyn, by Mrs. Wild, again is a focal point in a small corner with a black and white princess chair.

Linen draperies bordered with black velvet and gold gimp cover the windows and sliding doors in both rooms.

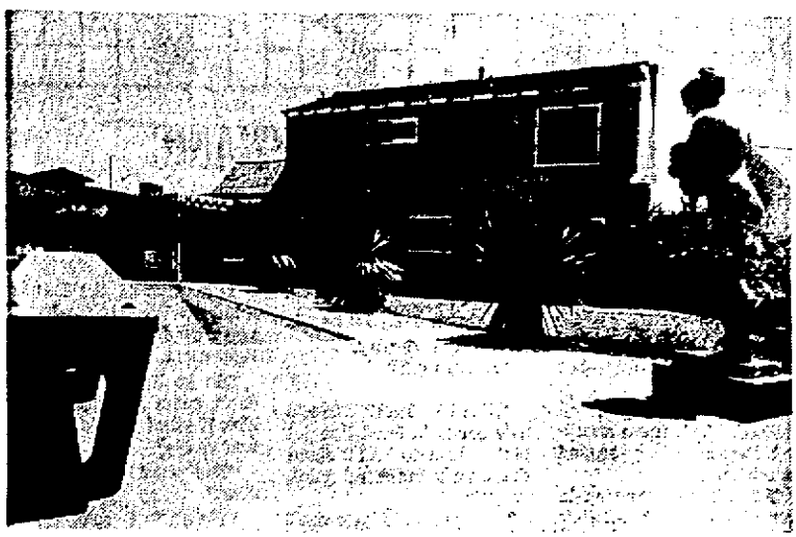

A used-brick fireplace and hearth were shelved on each side to hold television, books and collections including a 12th century milk pitcher. One mahogany paneled wall backing a blue and gold tweed sofa was painted white and rubbed until the gold tone was perfect.

The gold and blue area rug provides the base for a large circular coffee table with gold lounge chairs adding another informal conversational area.

Sculptured toys are movable and decorative. An inlaid wood mouse with leather tail was one of Mrs. Wild's projects.

The rectangular swimming pool reflects the fibreglass mother and child with a corner garden shadowing a sculpture representing the universal peasant woman.

Textured slab pots were made by Mrs. Wild to surround the pool.

The mixed grapestake and pink concrete fence is well covered with blooming vines including bougainvillea, honeysuckle and passion flower.

The stark rear wall, painted blue with white trim, has tall espalliered fuchsias extending almost to the second story. A line of yucca plants divides the pool from the house.

Blue-carpeted enclosed stairs lead to the second story with its predominantly Mediterranean influence.

The accessories are still to be acquired for the off-white bedroom. Mrs. Wild made the window drape with a mixture of bamboo, yarn, beads, seed pods and drawn work for the master bath. All natural elements were used, with the exception of the glass beads. The drape could be used as a wall hanging effectively.

An all-purpose storage room separates the master bedroom from Dr. Wild's book-lined study. Mrs. Wild says: "My husband's room isn't decorated — he just adds to it!"

come and teach us, Grandpa?"

AND THAT'S HOW Buena Park obtained the services of a devoted teacher and supervisor. Paul Whitney volunteered his services.

The shop had been closed for a long time, its expensive machinery silent, several tons of stones in the bins untouched. But the place is buzzing now. While some of the boys are using the big slab saw or cutting drum or drill, others are at the grinding machines that do 1,700 revolutions a minute; and still others are at the buffer or the lap wheel. All learning by doing.

They do not use a tumbling machine at the Boys Club. This, Paul tells you, would rob the boys of the most interesting phase of their training: the visible polishing of the stones.

The boys and their instructor make occasional field trips to collect materials. It is deeply gratifying to parents to see their sons interested and devoting non-school hours in a clean and wholesome endeavor.

Paul Whitney sums up the whole in this statement:

"I wouldn't trade places with the President of the United States. And I'll always be grateful to a traveling stranger who one day gathered specimens from the great Petrified Forest and took time to talk about them to a small inquisitive boy."

up my purse and let him have it right across the kisser." My niece tossed off another belt. "Maybe they'll send me up for assault with intent to commit murder or something—but it was worth it."

"Now, now, pet," I soothed. "Isn't there another Miseratti agency around somewhere?"

"Sure. There's one up in Santa Barbara. And another down in San Diego."

I sipped my drink and considered. "I'll take it down myself in the morning. Maybe I can get through to Tarzan."

"Thanks, dear, I'll handle this in my own way."

"How's that?"

"WAIT TILL Vittorio gets back. At least I've got him trained to talk about the car's universal joint, not mine."

"But you said you can't drive it like this."

"It is nerve-wracking. I'll just consider it my penance for being unfaithful to Detroit."

The ways of the female mind are devious but I learned long ago not to fight them.

"So be it," I said. "Just don't come running to old Unk if all of a sudden your rear end—"

"The car's rear end, dear."

"Yeah," I said. "The car's."

Southland Dining at its Finest in the Long Beach and Orange County Area

ROSE BASS
A Glorious Event
– Caricature by Pete Wilhelm

ONE OF the most enjoyable aspects of dining out is the art of discovering something so delightful that you can recommend it wholeheartedly to your friends.

But you must be cautious. You have to choose something you know your friends will relish as enthusiastically as you do, because you wouldn't want to suffer the embarrassment of having them be disappointed.

That's why I never hesitate to recommend the roast prime rib au jus at the beautiful, colorful Victor Hugo restaurant, 730 W. Broadway, in downtown Long Beach. It's a dish fit for anyone — king, queen, Republican or Democrat. Owners and hosts Jack Bass and his wife Rose receive endless compliments on its quality. They buy the finest, most carefully aged beef in the land. They roast it with love, kindness and thoughtfulness.

The arrival of a plate of that beef at the table is a glorious event. Guests have been known to stare at it with undisguised awe. The slice is elegantly thick and large. It has been roasted to exactly the diner's specifications — medium rare (a handsome pinkish-brown hue; rare (healthy red) or well-done (rich brown). The piping-hot beef is exquisitely tender and savory. It is accompanied by an au jus prepared from one of Jack's most precious recipes. It's a fluid so scrumptious that even an Emily Post would be willing to use a bit of bread to mop up the last few drops from her plate.

The price of that entree is really beside the point. Such pleasure cannot be judged by mere money. For the curious let me add that it's $4.95, including gourmet tossed salad, oversized baked Idaho potato and beverage. Open every day, the Victor Hugo offers magnificent complete dinners from $3.25, including sea foods, fowl and European delicacies.

MORE TEMPTING TREATS — Another of Long Beach's distinguished dining places is Moreno's Restaurante, 3490 Long Beach Blvd. In both decor and cuisine, it is an artistic blending of modern Mexico and Southern California. The restaurant (closed Sundays) offers Latin sea foods and unusual seared Mexican steaks which win accolades from connoisseurs. It is open for luncheon too, featuring the Gringo, a delectable chopped steak.

GEORGE ERES, Editor

PAN AND FAN MAIL

WOULD IT be possible for you to advise me . . . what has become of Amanda Holmes who was being tried for murder on "As the World Turns?" During June, I was away on vacation and since my return, no mention has been made of her.

I would also like to know what happened to her employer, Neal, who owned the bookshop where she was employed. Can't remember his last name — oh, yes, it is Wade.

Mrs. Rose Calderwood
Long Beach

(We occasionally get requests for information about "As the World Turns" and what happens to various characters. Unfortunately, the local office of the network says it does not have story-lines of the program and suggests questions be directed to CBS, 51 W. 52nd St., N.Y., N.Y. Or prhaps some local viewer can help Mrs. Calderwood.

. . . I ESPECIALLY like the English television shows, especially "Secret Agent" and "The Avengers." I think the actors are very good. As long as we have them, part time at least, why don't you tell me more about them. I read where Patrick McGoohan is making a picture here. Could you tell me how many episodes were made of "Secret Agent," and when it was first shown. Also you mentioned "The Adventurers." Is that a new series of his, and will we be allowed to see it?

What of Diana Rigg and Patrick MacNee? Will we ever have "The Avengers" return again? Any news at any time will be so welcome.

Mrs. C. N. Bridges
Long Beach

(Ch. 9 which is rerunning the "Secret Agent" series, says there are 60 episodes of the show, originally aired on CBS some years back. We can get no information about McGoohan making a film in Hollywood. He was supposed to have a new TV series in the works in color, but if it has been sold for American viewing to this point, it has escaped us and the network representatives know nothing of it. Mention of "The Adventurers" in a recent TV column was a mental lapse, it should have read "The Avengers." As we have noted previously, there are some unshown episodes of "The Avengers" still in the ABC vault, and nobody throws TV shows away. They'll turn up on the air eventually.

WHAT IS the girl's name who played Tony Franciosa's wife in the movie "Period of Adjustment" which aired Aug. 6, on television?

Did she ever have a major or minor role on the series "Long Hot Summer" of a year ago?

Donna Knox
Long Beach

(Ch. 7 says the actress is Lois Nettleton. ABC-TV's fact sheet on "Long Hot Summer" did not list her as a continuing member of the cast).

COULD YOU give me some information on "Laredo" star William Smith? I would also like to know if he will be appearing in any movies or television shows in the future. Where can I get an autographed picture?

K.A. Long Beach

(Smith, born in Columbia, Mo., entered the Air Force and in 1956 continued study graduating from UCLA. He married actress Michelle Marly and started an acting career of his own. He's played in numerous TV series besides "Laredo", including "Stoney Burke" "Mr. Lucky," "Peter Gunn" "The Islanders" and films, "The Mating Game," "Mail Order Bride," "Atlantis, The Lost Continent." He has just finished a segment of "Daniel Boone" for next season. You might write to him c-o William Morris Agency, 151 El Camino Dr., Beverly Hills.)

Model of the Year

JOAN FONTAINE will be on-stage hostess for the "Model of the Year Pageant," in color at 10 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 2. Professional fashion models (from left) who will appear on the show: Karen Bowser, Gretchen Regan and Winkie Donovan.

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

The scout was on the down escalator of the department store when he spotted a beautiful girl going up the other side.

"Wait for me!" he shouted. "I want to talk to you!"

Remarks like that to strange women in southern department stores can get a man beaten to death by handbags. But that's one of the hazards of being a professional beauty hunter.

IN THIS case the scout proved his identity, the suspicious store detectives and customers stepped aside and permitted him to snap a photograph of the girl on the spot.

And her picture joined the 15,000 others taken during any ordinary year in the ceaseless search for top photographic models by a half dozen or so experts looking for young girls between five feet seven and five feet nine inches tall with the right cheekbones, eyes, hair and figure.

Recently CBS-TV decided that the 14 girls chosen from this small army for top model grooming must be superlatively photogenic indeed and with the ratings success of other beauty programs in mind declared that there must be a "model of the year pageant."

THE MATTER was turned over to the skilled hands and eyes of Paul Levitan, director of special events for the network, who has been at various times responsible for Miss America, Miss Teenage America and Miss Universe programs. A man who loves his work, Levitan skimmed through photos of lovely girls the other day and predicted the "Model of The Year Pageant" would be "the sleeper of the year" in the ratings when it is broadcast Wednesday at 10 p.m.

For these thoughtful reasons:

"These girls aren't amateurs, they're professionals," Levitan said, "and the first show of this kind to use professionals. Not only that but they are approaching the very top of a profession which demands great beauty, and the ability to project that beauty for the cameras. We will be using new lenses and new ideas in color and lighting so that these qualities will reach the screen as never before.

"Incidentally these are girl girls. The flat-chested look doesn't apply here as will be quite evident when they model resort playwear. Girls in swimsuits can be pretty dull when you see a dozen in a row but our models will all be wearing different wardrobes designed especially for them by 14 leading designers."

LEVITAN SAID none of the girls chosen for the show has been seen nationally on television more than once — this was a condition for eligibility. The winner will be guaranteed $25,000 in modelling fees for the next year with $15,000 in fees to the runner-up and $10,000 to the third girl.

"It's every model's dream to make the cover of a famous magazine," Levitan said, "and thus be seen by all its readers. Each of our 14 girls will be presented in an electronic magazine cover in full color with an audience of, say, 25 or 30 million watching them, equal to the readership of the ten most popular magazines.

"If the show becomes an annual event we will invite leading models from other countries."

Joan Fontaine will be host of the program. Magazine editors will act as judges. And Noel Harrison is coaching three of the girls to sing "The Fashion Models Lament" — a heart-rending farewell to whipped cream and chocolates.

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

If you could honestly judge a television series from its best-foot-forward pilot, then you could flatly state that the 1967-68 season will be good news.

But it must be remembered that, judging from pilots, last season's picks for viewing highlights were "The Man Who Never Was" and "The Hero," both of which died in mid-season.

When a producer makes a pilot, he is out to sell it. So time and care are taken, money is spent and the script, while somewhat confined by the necessity of introducing regular characters, is as good as it can be.

When it is sold, time and money are budgeted and what follows is often below the pilot's standard.

Twenty-five new shows will preview beginning Sept. 5, the week when ABC and CBS launch their new season. NBC's fall schedule begins Sept. 10. ABC has 11 new shows, NBC seven and CBS seven. Of these six are westerns, six are situation comedies, four are family adventure series, three are detective, two are comedy-variety, two are drama, one is a war series and one is an interview show.

THE BEST NEWS IS that of the 25 shows, only two fit into the "gimmick" category. One is "The Flying Nun"—she really flies, you see. It's something to do with the fact that she weighs only 90 pounds and the wind, plus lift, plus thrust, plus her wing-shaped coronet, carry her into the wild blue yonder a lot. But the ABC-TV series benefits greatly from a delightful performance from cute-but-not-sticky Sally Field and hard-to-criticize hoakum from Peter Pan and The Sound of Music.

The other gimmick show is ABC-TV's "The Second Hundred Years."

In this Arthur O'Connell is a 67-year old who learns his father, frozen in a glacier 67 years earlier at the age of 33, has been found and defrosted, just like a TV dinner. Physically and mentally dad is 33, the exact age of his grandson.

One of the most promising series is "Cimarron Strip," starring Stuart Whitman, an Academy Award nominee.

The CBS-TV series will be 90 minutes long and it and a first-run movie comprise the network's entire Thursday schedule. The setting of "Cimarron Strip" is a period of western history that hasn't been overly used, and it lends itself to a variety of stories. Whitman is a marshal in the lawless, rowdy territory called the Cherokee Outlet during the period before the government opened it to settlers.

ANOTHER GOOD PILOT is "High Chaparral," which will kick off on NBC-TV with a two-hour episode, preempting "Bonanza" for the night and thereafter follow it on Sunday nights. "Bonanza" elements are there, but the setting is Arizona near the Mexican border. Acting from Leif Erikson, Cameron Mitchell, Mark Slade and an exciting newcomer named Henry Darrow, is all competent.

"Judd, for the Defense," on ABC-TV could be a powerful drama in the mold of "The Defenders." Carl Betz, far from the wishy-washy husband he was on "The Donna Reed Show," is excellent as the country's highest-paid defense attorney.

ABC-TV's "Hondo," starring Ralph Taeger in the role John Wayne played in the movie, is a realistic look at life in the West, spiced with fights and action.

"The Danny Thomas Hour" on NBC-TV is an anthology which will include several musical-comedy variety shows. But the bulk of it will be dramas with big-name guest stars (Olivia de Havilland, Richard Todd, Sid Caesar, Geraldine Chaplin in her television debut) and good scripts.

"He and She" on CBS-TV could be the successor to The Dick Van Dyke Show. Richard Benjamin and Paula Prentiss are a pair of attractive, deft comics. But the show is very nearly stolen by Jack Cassidy as an egocentric, hambone actor who plays Jetman in a television series based on the comic strip Benjamin draws.

ABC-TV's "Garrison's Gorillas" could be subtitled The Dirty One-Third Dozen. Ron Harper is the leader of a gang of four cons, recruited from prison for special undercover missions.

"IRONSIDE" ON NBC-TV has the benefit of Raymond Burr and is almost presold due to a pilot that was popular when it ran as a feature film on World Premiere. "Dundee and the Culhane" on CBS-TV stars the noted British actor John Mills. He plays a literate lawyer traveling the Old West to try cases.

"Custer" on ABC-TV is an OK western that doesn't whitewash the controversial general (he's a lieutenant colonel here) too much, and introduces a compelling personality in the title role, Wayne Maunder.

"Mannix" on CBS-TV returns Mike Connors to television, costarring him with Joe Campanella in a detective series about a man trying to fight the computerized organization for which he works, while also solving cases.

"Good Morning, World" on CBS-TV is another maybe-Dick Van Dyke Show. Sheldon Leonard and Carl Reiner are the executive producers. Reiner directed the first six episodes, and Bill Persky and Sam Denoff (who wrote many of the Van Dyke shows) are the creators. Once you get over missing Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore, you can learn to like and laugh with stars Joby Baker and Ronnie Schell as disc jockeys and Billy De Wolfe and Julie Parrish.

SHELDON LEONARD is also the producer of "Accidental Family," on TV NOTEBOOK

The Xerox Corporation will present a film version of William Shirer's book, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," to a nationwide television audience during the winter. The history will probably be shown in one-hour sections on three successive nights.

Xerox is negotiating with the networks for dates for the showing. If the negotiations are not successful, Xerox plans to present the film over a group of 110 television stations used by the company in the past for special shows.

Wolper Productions, Inc., made the film in association with Metro Goldwyn Mayer. M.G.M. originally bought rights to the best-selling book but gave up plans for a movie in 1962. The television film was completed in the last month after two years' work by Mel Stuart, executive producer, and Jack Kaufman, producer-director.

A Xerox representative said that the film had cost $650,000 to produce and that the total cost when television arrangements were included would be between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

Shirer's 1,245-page book, published in 1960, has sold 350,000 copies in the original Simon & Schuster edition, 1,100,000 in a book-of-the-month club edition and 1,725,000 in a Fawcett paperback.

A NEW PLAY by Archibald MacLeish, called "An Evening's Journey to Conway, Mass.," will open the new season of N.E.T. Playhouse on the National Educational Network Nov. 3.

The network announced that MacLeish had contributed his play to N.E.T. and that he was writing additional material for the TV adaptation.

The play will be produced by the network and its Boston affiliate, WGBH. It lasts about 75 minutes. Filmed inserts of Conway will be used.

The play is the story of a boy who hates the small agricultural town and wants to leave it.

THE COLUMBIA Broadcasting System will present a documentary on "The New Left" Sept. 12. The program will examine in detail the origins of the New Left. There will be interviews with — among other — Julian Bond, who was refused an elected seat in the Georgia legislature because of his opposition to the Vietnam war; Bob Scheer, managing editor of Ramparts Magazine; Stokely Carmichael, former president of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and H. Rap Brown, his successor.

SPECIAL

WOODY WOODBURY — Premiere. Burn those old party records — the night club comic's been scrubbed up by Ralph Edwards to host a daily 90-min. variety series at 5 p.m., in color, ch. 11. With a format of guests, games, stunt and surprises, series is produced by Kip Walton and directed by Jim Jordan, and features Ronnie Brown and his combo. Bob Crane, Janis Paige and Stan Kenton are initial guests.

DO BLONDES Have More Fun? — The answer is an obvious one, with a sponsor like Clairol. But though blondes are more in demand as models and dates, the brunette's career before the cameras lasts longer and she's more likely to meet her date's parents. Cartoonist Al Capp, who created the blonde Daisy Mae, narrates the 8:30 p.m. color hour, ch. 7, with authoresses Anita Loos and Betty Friedan, social critic Marya Mannes, psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers and model agency head Nina Blanchard. (Redheads, incidentally, come out a poor third.)

A HOUSE DIVIDED — Patterned after the commercial networks' home-viewer tests, a 90-min. special offers various solutions to parents' problems in dealing with teen-age smoking, drinking, drugs and sex. Eddie Albert hosts at 9:30 p.m., ch. 28, as a panel of psychiatrists explain which solution is best.

The Relaxed and the Intense

Very Little in Common Personality, Professionally

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are taping their shows separately on the same stage at NBC for the coming television season, but that is the only thing they have in common personally and professionally.

They are a study in contrasts.

While Dino has found wide acceptance as a single performer on the tube, Jerry is still trying to find the key to a successful format.

Dean simply is himself. He goes on camera as casually as if he were teeing off for a round of golf at nearby Lakeside Country Club.

JERRY GOES on with the intensity of a jackhammer.

It sometimes makes one ponder how they ever were partners.

I watched Jerry rehearse part of his first new show. A perfectionist down to the most minute detail, he goes over music, dialogue, camera angles, wardrobe — everything.

Dean couldn't care less if the camera were out of focus.

AFTER HIS disastrous talk show-variety program on ABC three years ago, Jerry has avoided television, sticking with movies which earn him a fortune.

But Lewis is the sort of man who cannot accept failure. He's returning to a weekly video show as much to prove something to himself as he is to entertain viewers.

During rehearsal with director Bob Finkel, Jerry clowned around, ad libbing quips, kidding the pretty girls. But beneath the casual surface he missed nothing.

THIS TIME around the comedian will stick to the script when the cameras are turning. He won't be playing Jerry Lewis as he did on the ill-fated ABC show.

Like many an actor, Lewis is uncomfortable just being himself. His humor is inextricably tied to characterization.

He will, therefore, appear in a series of individual sketches playing a variety of nutty individuals which prove so successful in feature movies — The Nutty Professor, The Bellboy, The Loud Mouth and other losers of impressive proportions.

He is the little guy caught up in circumstances beyond his — or anyone else's — control.

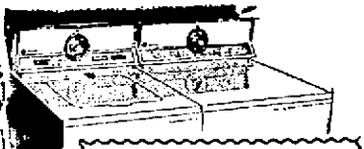

This is Lewis at his best.

SPECIAL

DAVID JANSSEN plays out the last segment of "The Fugitive" at 10 p.m. Tuesday, Ch. 7.

BILLY GRAHAM Crusade — Dr. Graham's 1967 crusade is seen in three taped color hours, opening at 7 p.m., ch. 5. "The Secret of a Happy Home" is opening topic at Earls Court, with other tapes screening Wed. and Thurs., and morning repeats next week.

THE TENEMENT — Life in the slum area of Chicago is examined during a postponed repeat colorcast at 10 p.m., ch. 2, as Hughes Rudd looks at nine Negro families, five of them fatherless, filmed over an 8-month period as they live in a rundown building due to be torn down for an urban renewal project. (Next week, Harry Reasoner on Vietnam elections, with a report on the "new left" due Sept. 12.)

THE FUGITIVE — Once again, as four years ago, Dr. Richard Kimble is riding a train, handcuffed to Lt. Philip Gerard, heading for Indiana. But this time there's no train wreck, but instead the revelation of the real killer, as at 10 p.m., ch. 7, in color, the release of Dr. Kimble frees also the hour for next week's time shift of "Hollywood Palace."

CRITICS' CORNER

Excerpted Reviews from Television Critics

PROGRAM: "The Hippie Temptation," aired Tuesday, Ch. 2.

Harry Reasoner's first effort for his "Who, What, When, Where, Why?" series was an essay by a sorely troubled adult who, having ventured into the hippie subculture, found, with consternation, that while he probably is in agreement with what the youngsters oppose, he opposes them as well. And he probably opposes them more because his anti-materialism and anti-hypocrisy, while similar to theirs, were arrived at after and during years of work, experience and observation and can be articulated with any number of convincing arguments.

To summarize Reasoner's essay, he presented a fairly accurate portrait, but not a photograph of what, aside from the Negro revolution, is the most serious domestic problem in the U.S today, possibly more serious if violence isn't used as the criterion.

Reasoner began the program by stating that use of LSD and other drugs was the one reason the hippie movement was dangerous . . . cited recent clinic that utterly failed to convince LSD users that drug was harmful to them because their own experience told them otherwise.

Without much foundation to refute LSD, except his own distaste for it, Reasoner allowed himself some petty sniping at hippies' tendencies to "take up public space" and "block traffic." He, with some truthfulness but a mistaken righteousness, often generalized the hippies as children and acting out children's unrealities.

The key word out of the puzzle may be the hippies' own vocabulary, which emphasizes the word "now." . . . These kids have been brought up on TV, where everything was solved in 30 minutes or an hour, and years take on a much more formidable aspect than formerly.

Beig, Variety

PROGRAM: "Huntley & Brinkley," aired nightly, Ch. 4.

The nightly report of Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, a television fixture since October 1956, underwent a fundamental revision of format last Monday night. The number of individual news items was cut down to allow for deeper exploration of a few events, and the cast of the half-hour news program was enlarged to include four contributing editors — John Chancellor, Sander Vanocur, Jack Perkins and Douglas Kiker.

The National Broadcasting Company's innovation, by far the most radical step since the Huntley-Brinkley report was expanded from 15 minutes to a half-hour in September, 1963, is certain to arouse major interest in electronic journalistic circles. To Judge tentatively by the initial show, the far-reaching changes appear to be an effort to strengthen a nightly newscast with more background material and a sense of perspective hardly feasible in the usual recitation of bulletins . . .

By giving regular prime time exposure to four staff members NBC is buying insurance against the possibility that Huntley might succumb to the lure of Montana politics, or Brinkley might be content to fondel his investment portfolio. Within a few months the faces of the four contributing editors should be almost as familiar to NBC audiences as those of the celebrated duo . . .

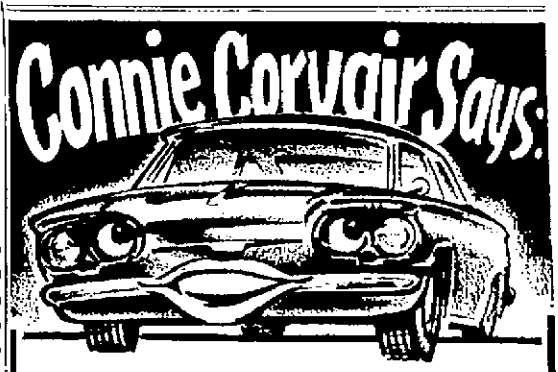

By rough calculation NBC, under its new format, covered perhaps seven fewer news items than Walter Cronkite's brisk half-hour over the Columbia Broadcasting System (the same night) . . .

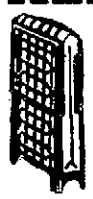

Actually, the CBS show was not all bulletin material. As it has for many months, the network offered the commentary of Eric Sevareid, who may have had something to do with inducing NBC to try a little regular analysis.

When Cronkite is off on other assignments, he has a regular stand-by in either Harry Reasoner or Roger Mudd. It now appears that NBC is out to build a reserve of anchor men in addition to shaking up the status quo in nightly journalism.

Earthquake!

Dangers Examined

The dangers of seismic activity in California will be examined in "Earthquake!" to be broadcast at 9 p.m., Wednesday, on Ch. 2.

KNXT Newsman Bill Ames serves as reporter for the hour special which presents a study of the threat posed by earthquakes to the ever growing population. Despite the constant danger of earthquakes, homes are being constructed today in areas where major tremblors have occurred in the past and will most probably happen again.

Should the shockwaves strike a population center such as Los Angeles or San Francisco the results could be tragic.

CALIFORNIA is and will always be earthquake country. To demonstrate this fact KNXT Newsman Ames traveled the State for a first-hand report on earthquake activity and earthquake faults. He examined what is being done to minimize the loss of life and structural damage in the next major temblor.

The show features aerial views of earthquake faults that crisscross the State plus a specially-designed map of California showing the relationship of faults to population centers.

Ames and a KNXT camera crew spent three days in the field with Cal Tech Geologist Dr. Clarence Allen, a leading expert on the San Andreas Fault; another three days were spent in Northern California with Geologist Lloyd Cluff, who has intimate knowledge of the Hayward Fault. Other earthquake authorities interviewed for the special include Dr. Charles Richter, Professor of Seismology at Cal Tech and creator of the famed Richter Scale, and Dr. George Housner, Cal Tech Professor of Earthquake Engineering.

At Berkeley, Newsman Ames talked with Dr. Bruce Bolt, Director of the Seismographic Stations at the University of California, and with Professor Harry Bolton Seed, a soils mechanics specialist who demonstrated the problem of sand liquefaction in earthquakes.

BILL AMES, KNXT newsman, visits the San Andreas Fault, near Los Angeles for "Earthquake!"

State policy concerning earthquake hazards and the possibility of zoning restrictions are covered in an interview with Governor Ronald Reagan. And Ames flew to Boston to get the view of Dr. Frank Press, chairman of the Department of Geophysics at the Massachusets Institute of Technology. Dr. Press, former Director of Cal Tech's Seismological Laboratory, has suggested a 150-million-dollar earth research program aimed at predicting earthquakes.

Film clips of the disastrous 1964 Niigata, Japan, quake, the 1933 Long Beach temblor, which destroyed many schools, and others will be shown.

All-Out Politics on TV

Networks Warm Up for Quadrennial Exercises

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

Along with more and longer westerns and a greater schedule of specials, the new season will feature the quadrennial exercise in all-out politics. The presidential campaign of 1968 is going to get underway very early. The networks have already started their preliminary inquiries into the possible Republican hopefuls and cautiously speculated on whether President Johnson would run again if the popularity polls hinted at the prospect of defeat for the Democratic incumbent.

With the running controversy over the Vietnamese War and disquiet on the domestic social scene, the zeal of TV journalists in getting off to an early start is altogether understandable. Increasingly, the campaign — starting with the primaries in winter — will be a focal point of evolving events. The dialogue between rival parties may well turn out to be the most crucial and probably the most bitter in many years.

THE ONE point the parties agree on is the importance of reaching the voting viewer in his home. While it may be true that most voters instantly makes up their minds once the identity of candidates is known the practical politicians are not going by such an easy assumption. Were it possible to tabulate every last penny from every conceivable source that finds its way into TV campaigning costs, the expenditure by parties between now and next November might run to $60 million—or double what was spent in 1964.

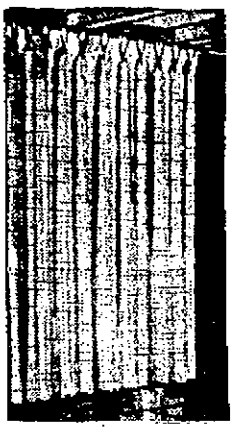

The controversy over what huge campaign expenditures may do to the integrity and independence of the nation's political system has led inevitably to a flurry of demands that the broadcasting media be required to donate free time to everyone from a presidential candidate to a potential new dogcatcher.

BUT the idealistic resolution immediately collides with the law as it now stands, specifically Section 315 of the Federal Communications Act. This provision stipulates that if a broadcaster does give free time to one candidate it must accord the same privilege to all fringe candidates for the same office regardless of their newsworthiness or political importance.

Recently, before a Senate Subcommittee, there was another round of hearings on the problems of politics to institute reforms fluttered all over the place. While regularly scheduled newscasts are exempt from the equal time provision there is no denying that far more hours would be allocated to politics if stations were not obligated to treat fringe candidates with the same regard as the two men who have a real chance to enter the White House.

For a starter, the networks should use their screens to bring out all sides of the complex issue of campaigning on video. The interminable razzle-dazzle over reporting election night returns is not nearly so important as acquainting the viewer with all the facts that may have a bearing on how he makes his mind up (emphasis) before (unemphasis) votes.

SPECIAL

TAKE A DEEP, Deadly Breath — Peter Jennings winds up ABC's "Summer Focus" series by probing the effects of air pollution on the nation's health, and examining what governments, industry and private citizens are doing to combat the growing problem. U.S. Surgeon General William H. Stewart is interviewed along with Senators Robert F. Kennedy and Edmund S. Muskie during the 10 p.m. color hour, ch. 7, as cameras follow a carbon-monoxide check around Manhattan, visit an emphysema sufferer in Phoenix and attend a Stamp Out Smog meeting (Joanne Woodward attends) in Los Angeles. F. Lee Bailey's "Good Company" debuts in the first half of this hour next week, with "The Lid's Off with Linkletter" filling the 10:30 slot starting Sept. 14.

Prime Time

NBC-TV, which stars Jerry Van Dyke as a night club comic who must win over his motherless son, played by darling little Teddy Quinn, who has been brainwashed, by the relative with whom he has been living, not to like his father.

"The Mothers-in-Law" on NBC-TV, is produced and directed by Desi Arnaz. It's filmed before a live audience (as is "Good Morning, World") and is lucky to have two of the world's best comediennes, Eve Arden and Kaye Ballard.

Animals are prevalent. "Maya" on NBC-TV has some of the most spectacular photography ever seen on television. It's filmed entirely in India. An American (Jay North) and Indian boy (Sajid Khan) and their elephant travel the country searching for the father of the American.

"Gentle Ben"also stars an animal, a bear. The CBS-TV series, with Dennis Weaver and appealing young Clint Howard, is produced by Ivan (Flipper, Daktari) Tors. "Cowboy in Africa," on ABC-TV, returns Chuck Connors as a man trying to teach Africans to conserve their game. It's also a Tors' production.

NOW WE COME TO "The Guns of Will Sonnett," and ABC-TV western with Walter Brennan and Dick Rambo as grandfather and grandson searching, searching, searching for son-father, who may or may not be a bad guy.

Some shows, like "The Jerry Lewis Show," "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Good Company" (with lawyer F. Lee Bailey in a Person to Person kind of interview program) are taping close to air date, so they remain unknown factors. "N.Y.P.D." was sold without a pilot. But it has the benefit of a talented cast (Jack Warden, Frank Converse and Robert Hooks), New York locations and access to the files of the New York Police Department.

Finally, "Off to See the Wizard" on ABC-TV is a Walt Disney-like show. Produced at MGM, it uses as "hosts" some of the characters from the Wizard of Oz in cartoon form to introduce some old movies and some new ones made for the series.

Grand Ole Opry

First Fall Appearance Saturday

Now streamlined in color and aimed at today's growing audience of country music lovers, Grand Ole Opry makes its first fall appearance at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, on Ch. 5. The show will move to 6 p.m. beginning on Sept. 23rd.

The granddaddy of 'em all, when it comes to country and western music shows, Grand Ole Opry was first broadcast in 1925 on radio.

In its on-stage form in Nashville, Tenn., the Opry runs in excess of six hours. Of that, the best selections by the big-name artists are taped. From that monumental musical parade comes a tight, fast-moving half hour of the very best in contemporary country music. It's a well known fact that many of the songs you'll see performed on Grand Ole Opry are tomorrow's popular hits as the gaps between pop, folk, rock and country music continue to narrow.

MINNIE PEARL

There are many measures of the status of Grand Ole Opry as a true piece of Americana. In addition to its 42 years on the musical scene there's the fact that the "average" Opry fan who attends drives more than 500 miles to see the show in Nashville.

Southern California Opry addicts are as close as their television sets, where they'll see this season's stars of the Opry . . . Roy Acuff, The Browns, Skeeter Davis, Flatt & Scruggs, Tex Ritter, Marty Robbins, Minnie Pearl (special guest on the first show of the season), Hank Snow, Ernest Tubb, Porter Wagoner, Dottie West and literally dozens more.

On Sept. 23, the show becomes part of an entire evening of musical offerings starting with "Hayride" at 5 p.m. and continuing with Jimmie Rodgers at 5:30, "Opry" at 6, "Melody Ranch" at 6:30, Musical Varieties at 7:30 and "Upbeat" at 8:30.

Animals in Zoo
Not as Lovable as TV's

United Press International

Mindful of the influence animal television shows have on children Ivan Tors believes parents should make clear to their offspring that the lovable lion, charming chimp or cuddly bear acting with humans on the screen is not like the same species in a zoo or in the wild.

They are the rare products of a long period of what Tors calls "affection training"—a process which apparently convinces them that humans belong to their own species but have somehow sadly missed out on such obvious advantages as claws, teeth and fur.

"What I'm afraid of," said TV's leading producer of animal shows (Daktari and Flipper, for example), "is that a child will go to the zoo and put his arm into the lion's cage because he thinks all lions are like Clarence. And as sure as we're sitting here the arm will get bitten off."

Tors was introducing his new television star—Gentle Ben, a 650 pound, seven foot (on his hind legs) North American black bear.

Fat and well-fed Ben, whose exploits as "Gentle Ben" will be seen in prime time on CBS-TV starting Sept. 10, nuzzled the footwear of his guests. But good-natured as he is, Gentle Ben can also be unintentionally dangerous.

"It's the size and strength of even the best trained animals," Tors said. "Clarence is one of the sweetest lions of them all but he weighs 450 pounds. When he jumps on you to show his love he's liable to hurt you. You've got to be careful of the stronger animals, not because they're vicious, but because under our system of training they're affectionate."

Tors said it is so unusual for wild animals to wantonly attack humans that he is planning to investigate the recent killing of two girls by grizzly bears in Glacier National Park. He does not think this incident will reflect on all bears and certainly not on Ben who only gets irritated when his human co-stars blow their lines.

Ben prefers to do his scenes in one take. The only other star who can get away with this is Frank Sinatra, however, Ben will go through the routine twice and, on infrequent occasions, three times. After that he loses interest. Fortunately he spends a lot of screen time with Dennis Weaver (who played Chester in "Gunsmoke") and who is, in "Gentle Ben," a warden for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Ben's particular chum is Weaver's screen son, eight-year-old Clint Howard. The other member of the Wedloe family is Beth Brickell, a pretty blonde graduate of the Actors Studio.

Search for TV Drama

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

Although it has been offering up to $25,000 for scripts CBS Playhouse has not exactly been deluged with good ideas or good writing but its new story editor, Barbara Schultz, believes the product is now beginning to match up to expectations.

Last season, despite the publicity and good intentions, CBS found only one commissioned play worthy of major treatment. This season it already has three or four in the works with the possibility of another couple from promising young writers whose efforts at creation CBS is financing.

MISS SCHULTZ, who made her reputation as a story editor of "The Defenders," doesn't think it odd that television has always had trouble in finding original plays (not to mention trouble in persuading viewers that an absorbing play, ably performed, is among the most satisfying experience in entertainment).

"Look at Broadway, at the vast amount of money and talent poured into its shows," she said. "Then consider how few of these turn out to be hits — and you will realize that is not easy, nor has it ever been easy, to find really fine plays. But the audience is there for drama — a big audience — and we are determined to give it the quality it deserves."

IN PURSUIT of this ideal Miss Schultz is preparing to leave for Europe to look over the British writing scene which may further disappoint those budding American playwrights already somewhat cynical about the well-known names whose plays are being performed this season.

Miss Schultz recognizes the disappointment, sympathizes with it.

"But we can't experiment on the air," she said, "some of the younger writers do not have the same frame of references as the older ones. They do not know as much about TV techniques — yet. Original plays have to be important and outstanding. And the field," she insisted, "is wide open for new talent which meets the standards. We are placing no limitations on length or subject matter and there is no censorship."

THE CBS Playhouse season will premiere Oct. 17 with "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night" by an established writer, Loring Mandel. It stars Melvyn Douglas as an old man who is placed by his children in a home for the elderly. He passed through a deep emotional crisis and decides in favor of life rather than wait for death.

MELVYN DOUGLAS
On CBS Playhouse

The sponsors (General Telephone & Electronics Corp.) have decided against commercial breaks during the play — a laudable policy.

Another well-known TV writer, Reginald Rose, has written "Dear Friends" for the Playhouse — the story of an upper middle class marriage that goes wrong. And Tad Mosel, who has more TV credits than most, is the author of a play about privacy, "The Fact Of The Matter Is . . ."

The new drama season on all three networks has yet to prove itself. You can't blame some viewers for being skeptical. For years they've been in the position of moviegoers wondering why the feature film never matched up to the exciting trailer in the "coming attractions" the week before.

Tina Joins '3 Sons' as Wife

Tina Cole, who becomes the television wife of Don Grady (left) early in the new season, is welcomed by Grady and Fred MacMurray to the family of "My Three Sons," which has its season premiere at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in color on Ch. 2.

SPECIAL

AWAY WE GO — The summer series ends its run as it started — with guest Sheila MacRae. The Teddy Neeley Five also join Buddy Greco and George Carlin in the 7:30 p.m. color hour, ch. 2, as Miss MacRae plays the wives of three famous men, and Greco sings the "Away We Go" theme in its entirety. Jackie Gleason returns next week, but for the premiere only gets the away-from-Miss-America 10 p.m. hour.

IRONSIDE — If you missed this "World Premiere" the first time around, you'll need it as background as to how detective Robert T. Ironside becomes confined to a wheelchair, as he'll be during the new NBC Thursday series. Raymond Burr, Geraldine Brooks, Don Galloway and Barbara Anderson star in the 9 p.m. repeat color film, ch. 4 (Miss Brooks won't be in regular series), and NBC also has signed Burr to tell his impressions of Vietnam in a special hour Oct. 6. (No movie next week, as NBC instead previews its new TV season via "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In".)

U.S. MEN's Amateur Golf Championship, 3:30 p.m. (7), in color, has Chris Schenkel, Bill Flemming and Byron Nelson at Colorado Springs' Broadmoor course for the last three holes in the final round of the 67th annual tournament, with Gary Cowan of Canada defending his title.

LITTLE LEAGUE World Series, 5 p.m. (7), in color, finds Jim McKay and Ted Williams at Williamsport, Pa., where baseball commissioner Gen. William D. Eckert throws out the first ball in the title contest. (At press time, Northridge, Calif., was to represent the west in the elimination tournament.) The Naval Air Show from Los Alamitos rounds out the "Wide World of Sports" show.

DEL MAR Feature Race, 5 p.m. (2), in color, airs the $50,000-gross Del Mar Debutante. Harry Henson and Gil Stratton are trackside.

NFL FOOTBALL, 9:30 p.m. (2), in color, by 3-hour-delay tapes, finds the Cleveland Browns hosting the Green Bay Packers. Jack Drees and Frank Gifford call the play.

The New 'Big Sound'

The New York outlet of CBS radio will begin on Monday its own version of the "big sound" — the human voice — and it may turn out to be the new wave of the airwaves.

WCBS radio will begin an all-news and information format called WCBS-Newsradio 88 which will include everything from live news coverage to tips on child-rearing, from weather forecasts to reviews of Broadway plays.

A spokesman for CBS radio said the new programming — the first all-news and information format on a major network radio station — will be watched closely for possible adoption in other cities.

New York City currently has only one all-news metropolitan radio station — WINS, which is owned by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., Inc.

NEWSRADIO 88 is the brainchild of Joseph Dembo, vice president of CBS radio and general manager of WCBS, who explained:

"We are developing a totally new concept in news and information broadcasting. It is very likely a concept that only WCBS radio could develop through full utilization of its own resources and those of CBS news.

"The rationale behind the choice of the term Newsradio 88 is this — Newspapers and news magazines provide more than headline coverage; they encompass all that is new in all areas of contemporary life. People in the tri-state area now will have another and different source for this kind of dimensional reporting."

A spokesman for the station added that Newsradio 88 will have to rebuild an audience, keeping some present listners, losing others, and gaining new audiences.

"We hope to rewrite some of the demographics of broadcasting," he said, adding that the station wanted to reach beyond those now tuned in to its music and talk format.

MRS. VALENTI

MRS. McHUGH

Q. President Johnson had a "favorite" secretary, named Mary Margaret Wiley whom he married off to Jack Valenti. He then got Valenti who had absolutely no experience in the film industry, a job at $150,000 a year as president of the Motion Picture Producers Association. He then had another "favorite" secretary named Victoria McCammon, whom he recently married off to Simon McHugh Jr. He then appointed McHugh to a nothing job on the Subversive Activities Control Board at $26,000 a year. Why does President Johnson take such good care of his favorite secretaries, and what does Lady Bird have to say about this?—Elaine Davis, Oakland, Calif.

A. President Johnson not only "drives" his employees, he is also oversolicitous of their welfare. After 32 years of marriage, Lady Bird understands her husband's strengths and weaknesses.

Q. I would like to know how many Negro millionaires there are in the U.S., what percentage of officers in our Army are Negroes, and what percentage of Negro troops are being killed in Vietnam? — T. Louis Spaulding, Durham, N.C.

A. There are approximately 35 Negro millionaires in the U.S.; 3.6% of the Army officers are Negroes; Negroes account for 22.4% of combat deaths in Vietnam.

PAUL NEWMAN

MOSHE DAYAN

Q. Is it true that Paul Newman is going to star in a film biography of Moshe Dayan, the Israeli general? —Evelyn Unger, Atlantic City, N.J.

A. Negotiations are underway to film Fox of Sinai, based on Dayan's military exploits. Newman has been mentioned as a desirable star.

Q. President Thomas Jefferson was a widower. Whom did he use as his official White House hostess? — Dana Snavely, Orlando, Fla.

A. Dolly Madison, wife of his Secretary of State, James Madison.

Q. Recently Jean Shrimpton, the well-known British model made her acting debut in a movie called, Privilege. How was she and the picture? — Heidi Hunter, Fayetteville, N.C.

A. She was fair; the film, according to preview audiences, "a bomb."

Q. Who said: "A great many people think they are thinking when they are merely rearranging their prejudices"? — Bill Theis, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A. William James, (1842-1910) American psychologist.

Q. What has happened to the freedom of the American press? I have been told that when Life magazine prepares an article on Elizabeth Taylor, Jackie Kennedy, Frank Sinatra, people like that, they first submit it to the subject for his approval? Is that so? — Mrs. Robert Carr, N.Y.C.

A. In some cases, it is so. The magazine feels it must have a story on a particular personality to sell copies, and the subject in question, knowing this, refuses to cooperate until he is first given article approval. Many magazines however, refuse to enter into any such arrangement.

Q. A few questions about Richard Nixon: (1) How many times a day does he shave? (2) How much does he now earn as a lawyer? — Vicki Hunter, Whittier, Calif.

A. Nixon has a heavy beard, sometimes shaves as frequently as three times per day when he has to appear at various functions. He now earns between $200,000 and $225,000 per year as a practicing attorney.

Q. The forthcoming elections in South Vietnam — are they rigged? — Jan Keep, Seattle, Wash.

A. They are rigged in the sense that candidates who might have defeated or competed strongly against the slate headed by Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, were not permitted to run. However, any election in South Vietnam is better than none.

Q. Can you please tell me something about Frank Converse of the TV program, Coronet Blue? — Ann Thomas, New Carlisle, Ohio.

A. Frank Converse, born in St. Louis, Mo., raised in Lahaska, Pa., received an A.B. from Carnegie Tech, entered Shakespearean repertory after college, is married, has two children, resides in New York City, is 6 feet 2, weighs 185, has blond hair and blue eyes.

A. I understand that Dean Martin, now earning $5 million a year in show business, used to be a hood in Steubenville, Ohio. Is this true? Also how did Martin manage to stay out of World War II?—Flo Peabody, Columbus, Ohio.

A. In his youth, Martin survived in Steubenville as a smalltime gambler, bootlegger and boxer. During World War II, he was married to the former Betty McDonald, his first wife with whom he eventually had four children. He was classified as physically unfit for military service because of a hernia.

Q. Would you please explain why Moscow has cancelled the exchange of Soviet and American circuses and brought to an almost complete halt the cultural exchange program between the two countries? — Paul Lowry, Evanston, Ill.

A. One reason is to show other Communist nations that the Glassboro meeting between Kosygin and Johnson does not mean the Soviet Union is kowtowing to Washington.

Q. General Eisenhower's only son left the Army, and General MacArthur's only son never entered it. How come?—David Hamer, Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Each preferred a literary to a military career.

Q. I see that Howard Hughes has added the Sands Hotel to his Las Vegas holdings. Why does Hughes want to get involved with the Vegas mob? — V. T., Los Angeles, Calif.

A. After selling more than 80% of his TWA stock, Hughes last year found himself with $546 million on hand. He considers gambling casinos excellent investments. Each time he buys into a Las Vegas establishment, Hughes buys out some of the underworld element responsible in part for modern gambling in Nevada.

JAYNE MANSFIELD

RAQUEL WELCH
Today's sex symbol has demonstrated little acting talent to date.

THE TRAGIC PATTERN OF SEX SYMBOLS

by Lloyd Shearer

HOLLYWOOD

It was during the time of my life I woefully refer to as "The Prostitution Period" that I first met Jayne Mansfield.

It was in the 1950's, and I was working as a writer at RKO Studios, turning out screenplays some of which I still hide from my children.

One afternoon Perry Lieber, the studio publicity director, phoned me. Lieber, a kind, jovial, euphoric man who now labors at 20th Century Fox, had lost all critical facility where motion pictures were concerned. To him every screen product was "The greatest film ever made, the most marvelous picture, a blockbuster if ever I've seen one."

"Lloydie," he began, "we're having a junket to Silver Springs, Florida. We're going to preview a blockbuster, the greatest film ever made, something called Underwater, with Jane Russell. You've just gotta come. It's gonna be . . ."

"Impossible," I interrupted.

"But Howard wants you to come," Lieber insisted. "Howard" was Howard Hughes who then owned RKO, Hughes Aircraft, more than 80 percent of an airline named TWA, and a few other such minor holdings.

"Okay," I said. "I accept."

When I boarded the chartered aircraft —it was a TWA plane of course — I quickly observed that Lieber and his staff had corralled for this junket a colorful assortment of press agents, stooges, journalists, and females. In this last category there were a few authentic actresses— Debbie Reynolds was one of them — several commercially-minded girls who were majoring in business administration —they conducted nightschool in their own apartments — plus several studio starlets.

A few minutes after take-off, a bleached blonde slid into the seat beside me. "My name is Jayne Mansfield," she gleefully announced.

I turned to look, and her figure caused a momentary crisis in my vocabulary. Never before had I seen such a topheavy superstructure. I tried not to focus on the promontory, but it was encased in a striped jersey material of sorts, and it gave one the impression that its owner was about to topple forward.

Presently I introduced myself, and Jayne confessed why she had chosen to honor me with her company.

"You know Bert?" she began. (Bert Ford, the TWA public relations man, assigned to the flight) "Well, Bert has a passenger list, and I asked him which man on the list could do me the most good, and he pointed to your name, and well, that's why I'm here." She was childishly, refreshingly frank.

"He's just kidding," I said. "I'm a writer, and in this business, writers are the low men on the totem pole."

"But Bert says, you've just written a script for Marilyn Monroe. High Heels, I think it's called. Don't you have a small part for me? I'd do anything for a small part."

I explained that I was only a writer, not a producer, and that the producer usually chose the cast. "His name," I said, "is Jerry Wald."

"Can he do me some good?" she asked. "I've just got to become a screen star."

"Why?" I asked. "It's not a fit life for man or beast."

"Because," Jane declared, jiggling her unbrassiered bust, "I'm convinced I've got what it takes . . . don't you think I've got what it takes?"

"You are obviously talented," I agreed. "But can you act?"

"Can Jane Russell act?" she countered. It was then that I perceived that Jayne Mansfield was no dummy, and it was then that we started to talk seriously.

How much of what she told me was truth or fiction, I still don't know.

She said she was born Jayne Palmer in Bryn Mawr, Pa., raised in Dallas, educated at Southern Methodist University. She could play the violin, she said, and could speak some Spanish.

She confessed that she had faked her age to marry at 14 Paul Mansfield, while expecting another man's child. She also confided that she was ready to divorce her husband, "because he's standing in the way of my career."

When the plane landed in Florida, we learned that Jane Russell, the star of Underwater, surely one of the worst films ever made, would arrive from New York one day late.

Steals spotlight

Jayne Mansfield cleverly used that one day to steal the spotlight from the other starlets and business administration girls. She posed in her skimpiest bikini, let her bra fall accidentally on purpose, exposing her 40-inch mammary apparatus; she jingled and jangled co-operatively to the every demand of the newsreel, wire service, and magazine photographers. She was self-exploitive, bizarre, intelligent, and determined to become a screen sex symbol.

In the ensuing years, during which I saw her from time to time, she became, largely through publicity, exactly that—a sex symbol of the screen, offering nothing in the way of genuine acting talent but everything in the exploitation of the female anatomy.

Like all Hollywood sex symbols she lived in constant fear of losing her figure — although she had 5 children—and she sought constantly to compensate for her fear and insecurity by surrounding herself with weak men or male sycophants. Publicity was her life's blood, and there was no scheme however dangerous or outrageous, she would not cotton to providing it might result in headlines.

I once mentioned to Jayne that her sex-and-strip stunts would garner publicity only until she reached the age of 40. "After that," I said, "you'll be an old bag, and neither the press nor the public will buy any of it."

She smiled at me tolerantly. "How old," she asked, "do you think Mae West is?"

Not too long before she met her violent death by decapitation in an auto accident, I ran into Jayne on the 20th Century-Fox lot. She was playing her usual sexpot role in a film, A Guide for the Married Man. She was by then 36. She wore a dress that fitted like a sunburn. Time had diminished her muscle tone, and her face was filled with broken commandments.

In the course of our conversation I foolishly advised her to give up her career to which, of course, I knew she was incurably addicted.

"Why don't you knock off the movie star routine," I suggested, "re-marry Mickey (second husband Mickey Hargitay) and settle down with your kids?"

I pointed out the accidents, suicides, and tragic fates which had befallen Hollywood's other sex kittens: Marie McDonald, victim of publicity and a waning career who had died of acute drug intoxication; Marilyn Monroe who had put herself into a death-sleep with an overdose of sleeping pills; Carole Landis who had committed suicide because of an unhappy love affair with Rex Harrison; Lupe Velez who had done the same thing because the director who had caused her pregnancy refused to marry her; Linda Darnell who drank too heavily as her career faded and who was burned to death in a Chicago fire; Ann Sheridan, the oomph girl and cancer victim who for many years was in love with publicist Steve Hannegan who couldn't marry her; Jean Harlow, Clara Bow, several others.

I covered each case study pointing up the bitter end which somehow consistently befell each of these screen sirens. I thought the cumulative effect might bear fruit.

Ask Raquel Welch

Jayne listened politely, but mostly with her face.

Presently she said, "Why don't you tell all that to Raquel Welch?"

Raquel Welch is Hollywood's latest sex symbol. An attractive young woman of 27 who formerly denied that she had ever been married or had two children, Raquel is an ex-beauty contest winner from San Diego.

To date, she has demonstrated no acting talent but only an immensely photogenic figure marred only by a few stretch-marks across the lower abdomen — telltale signs of two pregnancies.

Miss Welch's latest film, Fathom, is a celluloid atrocity. When recently it was previewed in Los Angeles, more than 50 percent of the audience got up and walked out.

Miss Welch, however, like most of her predecessors, is not about to take any drama lessons. She hopes to achieve screen stardom on the basis of her measurements and the publicity acumen of her second husband.

"I don't know Raquel Welch," I told Jayne Mansfield. "But I do know you."

"Okay," said Jayne, "then why don't you do a good story on me? I could use one. Do you know that I've had three husbands and a hundred lovers? Don't you think that would make a great title: three husbands and 100 lovers?"

"Lots of luck," I said.

That was the last time I saw Jayne Mansfield. Subsequently she flew to England with Sam Brody, a lawyer-lover with whom she shared a tempestuous love-hate relationship. After a disastrous personal appearance tour of Northern England, they returned to California, then to New Orleans where on June 29th, they were killed as their chauffeured car crashed into the rear of a truck on U.S. 90, 23 miles from downtown New Orleans.

Jayne's was the most violent of all the deaths encountered by all the screen sirens in Hollywood's long, tumultuous history. It fit the mad, macabre pattern established by screenland's sex symbols.

WHY CRIME PAYS—

The reason behind the shocking truth

by Jack Anderson

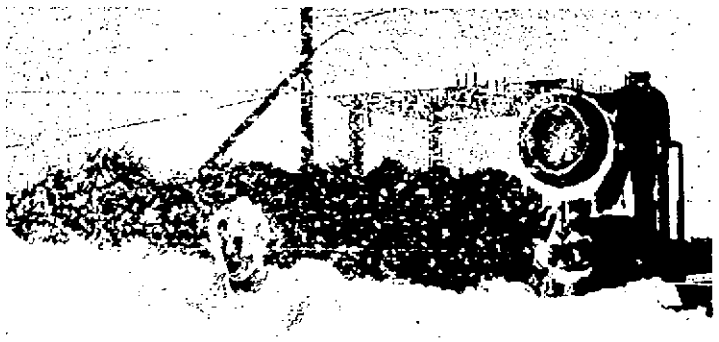

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The American people at last are realizing that the forces of law are losing the war against crime. In 76 percent of the crimes committed in America, the lawbreakers escape. One reason: the police, starved for funds and skeptical of new methods, are still fighting crime with 19th-century tools and tactics.

Yet space-age weapons are available if the public is willing to pay the price. Consider these possibilities:

• A plainclothesman stands outside an apartment and fingers a hand-carried, electromagnetic device. With a sense of smell that outdoes a bloodhound, the instrument can sniff out the odor of a "pot" party inside. It has already demonstrated, under laboratory conditions, an ability to scent nitroglycerin in dynamite. Someday it may even be able to detect human odors.

It smells sweet.

And fresh. And clean. Because new White King D Detergent has Borax, nature's own sweetening ingredient.

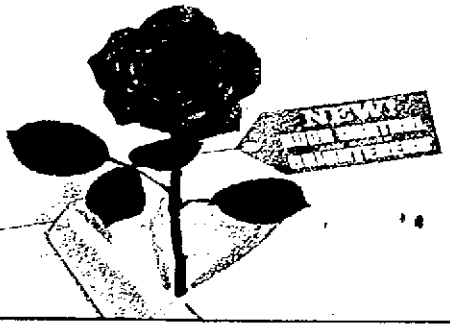

But that's not all. White King D has heavy duty power brighteners and special formula suds-controllers. It also makes your clothes feel and look like new after every washing.

• In a police station, a closed-circuit television monitor scans a row of buildings, spots a burglar, sounds an alarm and instantaneously photographs a white outline of the intruder. Such an all-seeing eye has been demonstrated on Capitol Hill.

• A policeman shoots a dart from a gun into a fleeing purse-snatcher, who disappears into a crowd. A week later, a suspect is brought to the police station. At the crime laboratory a technician bathes him with ultraviolet light. An incriminating spot, implanted by a chemical inside the dart, appears. Dart guns have been tested, with the objective of developing a tranquilizer weapon, but so far none has been found safe enough to use on people.

• A burglar sneaks up to a dark house, but fails to notice a thin wire device near the front door. Through radio beams or heat sensors, it spots the man and automatically sets off a silent alarm (silent to the intruder) in a police station. This kind of device has been used against the Viet Cong in Vietnam.

• A police officer, chasing a sneak thief on a moonless night, loses sight of him. Taking an instrument from his side, the policeman peers through an electro-optical lens and spots the suspect 500 yards away. Such a night-vision instrument has also been used by the Army.

These are just a few of the by-products of space and military research that are available in amazing variety and number. They have unlimited possibilities for police work.

Yet it will apparently be light years before they are used. "The practical application of this advanced science and technology," says Rep. James H. Scheuer, D., N.Y., "is undoubtedly one of the most neglected aspects of current public safety programs."

Adds Sen. Edward Kennedy, D., Mass.: "In the year 1967, a time of space exploration, of incredibly sophisticated weaponry, of computers and automation and cybernetics, it is hardly necessary to make the case for research and development and experimentation as the key to progress. Yet in the field of crime this nation has utterly failed to meet its responsibilities, to think about what it is doing and to apply its best brains and imagination to do better."

Rep. Scheuer and assistant Sue Thompson demonstrate a radio helmet, new gadget available to crime fighters. Such devices are costly. Is the public willing to pay the price?

Scheuer and Kennedy have introduced similar bills that would establish a National Institute for Criminal Justice, authorized to spend $100 million over the next three years to coordinate research. It would not only develop modern police equipment but would seek to improve personnel and training methods, and strive for greater public cooperation.

Why is there resistance, in view of the alarming rise in crime, to bringing our police departments into the 20th century?

For one thing, the public has been unwilling to pay the price. Most taxpayers persist in believing that the crime victim is always going to be the other guy.

Speaking of the lack of police equipment, Arnold Sagalyn, the Treasury Department's director of law enforcement, told Parade: "Our police departments are the most undercapitalized large businesses in the United States." The portion of the budget spent for equipment is startlingly low; only ten percent for the average police department.

Meanwhile, the modern arsenal comes high. If a manufacturer can find only one or two police departments interested in a detection device, the price has to be expensive.

The police themselves tend to obstruct progress. Since the time of Alphonse Bertillon, who pioneered modern criminology in the 19th century by recording physical measurements of criminals, policemen have been suspicious of scientific techniques.

Even today, says Prof. James W. Osterburg of Indiana University's Department of Police Administration, 17 states lack crime laboratories that meet minimum standards.

There is another problem. Devices that can detect criminals in the act may be too all-seeing and all-hearing to suit society. Monitor systems may be able to watch a neighborhood too closely for comfort. Computers may give the police access to anyone's life record, including details that ought to be none of an outsider's business.

From a drop of dried blood, left by the assailant in a violent crime, the police may be able to trace him through his "bloodprint," as effectively as through a fingerprint. Scientists may be able to locate an individual not only by blood type but by the odor he gives off. Some people may prefer to keep their odors to themselves.

It may become virtually impossible to commit, undetected, any crime involving an automobile. Using a sensor system, every car could be equipped with a sensing device, with its record kept centrally. If a car exceeded the speed limit anywhere, the violation could be recorded and a speeding ticket sent quickly through the mail.

"I'm not sure people would want that much security," says Sagalyn, who started in law enforcement work as an aide to Elliot Ness, the glamorized crime-buster. "The state of the art today is such that we can provide a fantastic amount of security to people if they are willing to put up with it."

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D., Mass.). He and Rep. Scheuer have introduced bills for improved crime research programs.

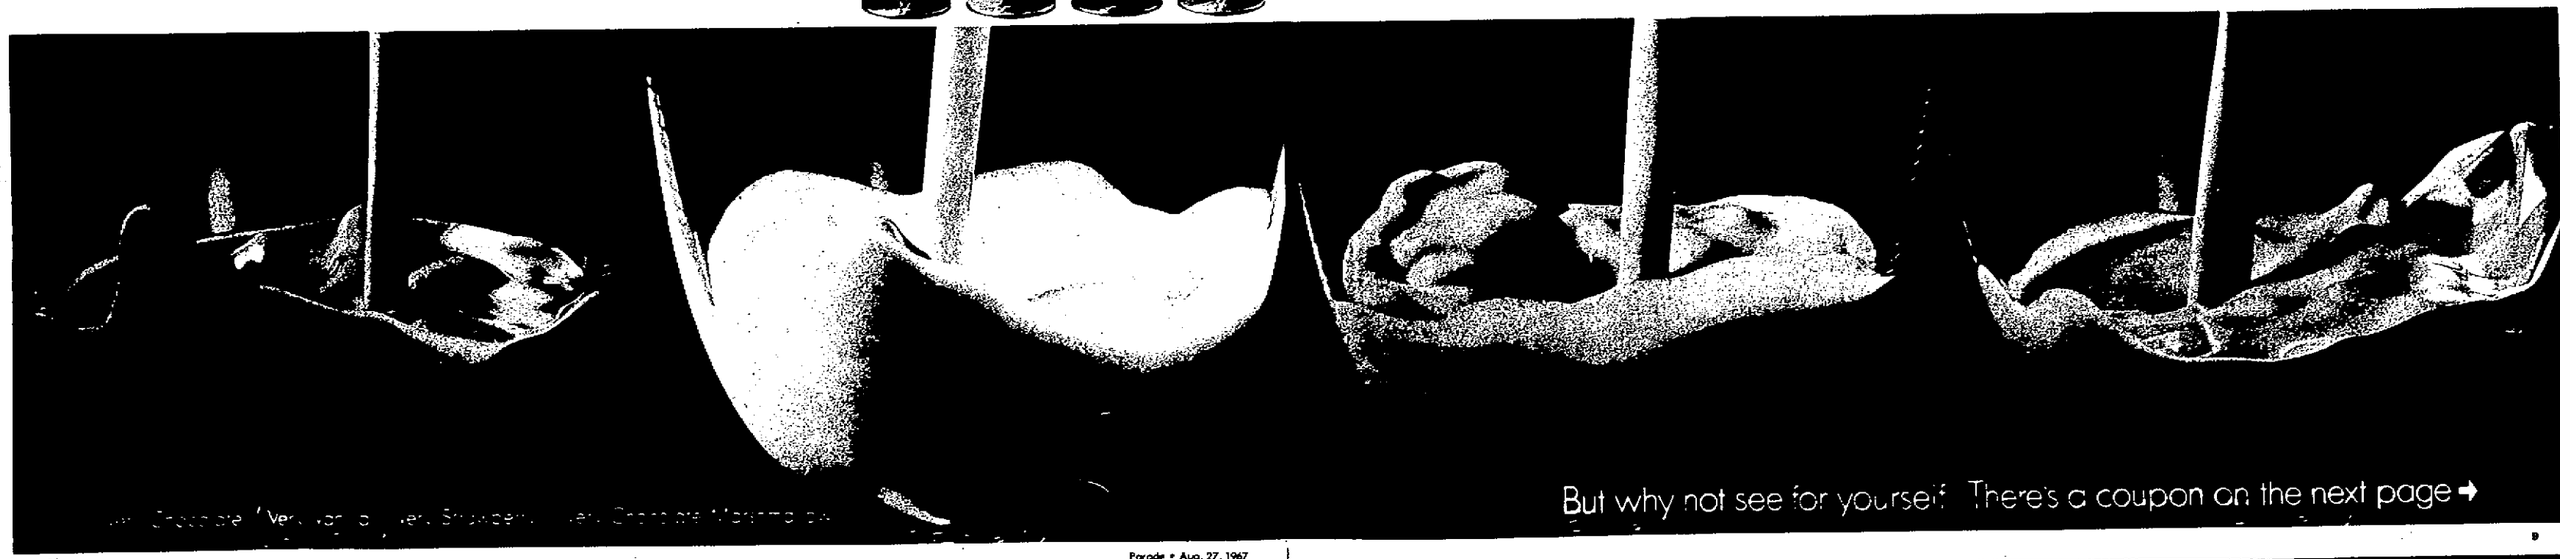

The Institute for Defense Analysis, a private firm that specializes in research work for the Defense Department, has reported that a complete car-watching system is technically feasible. "But," said the report, "this might cost a billion dollars and could create an intolerable climate of surveillance. Science can provide the capability, but the public as a whole must participate in the value discussion of whether or not the capability is worth the costs."

Clearly, the public must make some sacrifices if crime is not to rage completely out of control. Modern technology is needed in the war against crime. What requires study, however, is not so much the equipment, but the problems.

"The Federal government," complains Congressman Scheuer, "is spending more today on fighting tooth decay than it is spending on the fight to lower the nation's crime rate."

But in a democracy, it is up to the people to decide how much they are willing to pay for security.

Meat Loaf With Cheese

by Beth Merriman PARADE FOOD EDITOR

If you are looking for a meat loaf recipe with "in-depth" flavor served hot or cold, this is it. And as a bonus it will cut easily into clean, even slices—thick or thin—without crumbling. If you like cheeseburgers, you already know how well cheddar cheese blends with beef. But Four Star Cheddar Meat Loaf includes other ingredients, too, which enhance both color and taste. Rolled oats make a perfect binder, adding flavor and food value and improving texture.

It's a big loaf—in size and in goodness. That's why it carries four stars!

To round out a late summer meal, begin with jellied consommé, garnished with cut chives and a lemon or lime slice. If the day is warm, serve the meat loaf sliced cold with a hot vegetable, such as buttered canned baby carrots or frozen carrot nuggets with butter sauce packed in a pouch. Add a tossed green salad with bottled Italian dressing, and for dessert, serve Soft Fruited Gelatin, garnished with whipped topping.

If you serve iced tea or coffee remember to brew your tea or coffee at least one and a half times as strong as usual to prevent dilution by the melting ice. Or make tea or coffee ice cubes and use a regular strength brew.

Four Star Cheddar Meat Loaf

3 pounds lean beef, ground
1½ cups rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 cup grated, sharp cheddar cheese
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
4 slices American cheese (optional)

Combine all ingredients except sliced cheese. Pack into nine-by-five-by-three-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees about one and a half hours. Let stand five minutes. If desired, remove to shallow pan and place cheese star cutouts on top. Return to 400-degree oven for a few minutes until cheese begins to melt and brown. Makes eight to 12 servings.

Soft Fruited Gelatin

1 package raspberry-flavor gelatin (1 pkg. 3 oz.)
1 cup boiling water
1½ cups ice water*
1 cup diced fresh peaches
1 cup cultivated blueberries

Dissolve gelatin thoroughly in boiling water, add ice water and mix well. Chill until syrupy and fold in fruit. Spoon into dessert dishes. Chill until ready to serve. Garnish with whipped topping. Makes four to five servings.

*Because an extra ½ cup of water is used in making the gelatin dessert, it will not be stiff enough to mold, but it will "set," and the softer consistency is delightful.

My Favorite Jokes

By Michael St. Clair

EDITOR'S NOTE: Michael St. Clair is a former Australian boxer who gave up the ring to become a comic and ventriloquist.

St. Clair who served as a wartime commando with the Australian forces, has appeared in nightclubs all over the world. He's worked the Slate Brothers in Hollywood, the Cafe de Paris in London, and most of the Playboy Club circuit. Herewith some of his favorite funnies:

A big business executive, corporation president, all that sort of thing, was sitting in the waiting room of a maternity hospital.

Other anxious fathers nervously paced the floor, but not this guy. He opened his briefcase, emptied out a large sheaf of papers, furiously attacked his mountain of work.

Presently a nurse entered the room and said, "It's a boy, sir."

"Okay," snapped the executive without raising his head from the pile of papers. "Just don't stand there. Ask him what he wants."

A New York State trooper caught up with a woman driver who had violated every motor rule in the book. He asked for her license. After studying it carefully for a few minutes, he said, "It seems like a valid license, ma'm. Now tell me, how in the world did you ever get it?"

A census-taker making the rounds of Sydney, Australia, asked a mother how many children she had in her household.

"Well," said the woman, "there's Bill and Fred and Theresa . . ."

"I don't need their names," snapped the census-taker, "just their number."

The mother was furious. "They don't have any numbers," she shouted. "They all have individual names."

Two secretaries were lunching and reminiscing about their former times together. "Remember the good old days," one asked, "when we used to kill time by working?"

Anyone who thinks chemical warfare is something new doesn't know much about women's perfume.

The most expensive thing in the world is a girl who's free for the evening.

When I was in the Army a buddy of mine had a strange habit. Every time he fired his rifle, he'd take out his handkerchief and wipe off the fingerprints.

The trouble with so many self-made men is that they insist on giving everybody their recipe.

anecdote of the week

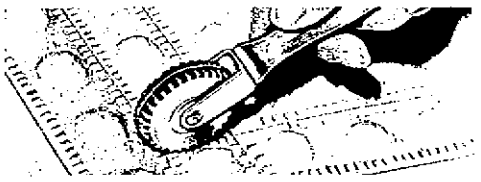

■ A few days ago a secretary at 20th Century-Fox studios came into the office and began handing out cigars, each tied with a blue ribbon, and small individual boxes of candy, also tied with a blue ribbons.

Her co-workers asked the reason for her generosity.

"It's a boy," she beamed, proudly showing off the diamond wedding ring on her finger. "A boy, six feet two, weighing 195 pounds." ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

DRUG DETECTOR. Sweden's customs inspectors are using a drug detector, the size of a camera, to catch international smugglers.

The machine, invented by Dr. Gunnar Ahnstroem, Assistant Professor of Radiation Biology at Stockholm University, works on the radiation principle. As it is placed next to a valise or parcel which contains heroin, morphine, cocaine, and other narcotics, its needle "kicks."

Narcotics addiction in Sweden as in other countries, has increased 20% in the past five years, and the Swedes are determined to prevent "the heavy stuff" from being smuggled into their country.

CANNIBALS. Cannibalism still exists in the underdeveloped countries of Africa, especially in the vast primitive Congo where tribesmen still slaughter and eat their enemies.

A few weeks ago the Associated Press reported that cannibalism had broken out in war-torn Katanga to which province President Johnson had sent U.S. planes and airmen.

Etienne Tshisekedi, the Congo's Minister of Interior, was quoted as saying: "The lives of white settlers in Lubumbashi are in danger. Several of them have been eaten by Congolese."

A few hours later the Congo Embassy in Paris denied the quote. There is no doubt however, that cannibalism still exists in Africa. In Nigeria 27 tribesmen were accused of eating two of their victims on Christmas Day of 1960, and one year later two British volunteers in the Katanga Army were butchered and eaten by natives.

H-BOMB. China's most important nuclear plant is now located at Lanchow in the province of Kansu. It was constructed on a crash program basis by personal order of Mao Tse-tung and boasts a gaseous diffusion plant which produces the enriched uranium needed to trigger an H-bomb.

American satellites photograph it regularly.

CHILD VICTIMS. A study of 451 alleged female victims of sexual assault in the District of Columbia reveals that 24% were children under the age of 13.

Dr. Charles R. Hayman of the district's Department of Health, recently told members of the American Medical Association that only one-fifth of the assaults on children were committed by strangers. Four-fifths were committed by older friends, relatives, and family acquaintances, with the attack occurring most frequently in the home of the victim or aggressor.

Constant warnings to children about being careful of strangers, he pointed out, would not have been effective in preventing most of the assaults. When strangers do sexually assault a child, however, about 50% of these attacks occur in parks or playgrounds.

COLD WEATHER. Professor Maynard Miller of Michigan State University, who has made a special study of glaciers, predicts that over large areas of the earth the weather in the next 30 years will probably become colder and wetter.

Geologist Miller contends that Alaska's ice masses advance and retreat relative to discharge of energy from the sun.

In the past 50 years solar activity has risen, but in the next 30 it is expected to decline, so that the weather tendency will change from warm and dry to cold and wet.

REAGAN ON THE GO. Despite statements to the contrary, Ronald Reagan is running for the Republican presidential nomination. His closest advisers are convinced 1968 will be the "now or never year" for Reagan.

The public relations outfit of Spencer, Roberts and Haffner which masterminded his successful gubernatorial race and is still at this writing under retainer to Reagan, is convinced the California governor can "take" the nomination and possibly win the presidential election as he moves his political position from right to center.

Reagan has set up a fall schedule designed to afford him a maximum of out-of-state exposure. Next month he will speak in South Carolina, Wisconsin, Illinois. In October he will go East again for the Governors Conference, make as many Eastern and Midwestern speeches as possible.

Although Reagan is 56 and myopic, having had to wear glasses since boyhood, he retains a trim, youthful figure, wears contact lenses in public, enjoys good health.

Reagan owes his show business start to an attractive girl vocalist named Joy Hodges. When "Dutch" Reagan, a sports announcer from the Midwest was covering the Chicago Cubs in California in the early 1930's, he called on Joy at the Biltmore Bowl in Los Angeles. He had previously interviewed her in Des Moines, had tried to talk her into a riding date with him. This time he confessed that he really wanted to become an actor but that his poor eyesight was an insurmountable handicap.

"Nonsense," Joy said, "you can always remove your glasses when the cameras start to roll. I'll introduce you to an agent, and when he takes you around the casting offices, whatever you do, don't wear your glasses."

When George Ward, now a Christian Science practitioner in Palm Springs, escorted Reagan to Warner Brothers, "Dutch" removed his glasses before he was interviewed and tested.

Today Joy Hodges is Mrs. Gene Schiess of Katonah, N.Y., still works as an actress and vocalist, treasures a letter she received from Reagan the night he was elected Governor of California. "In the same room," he wrote, "where you first gave me that gentle shove into show business, I am now awaiting the results of this election."

Now Is The Time To Plant

Creeping Red Sedum

An extraordinary ground cover for masses of summer flowers--evergreen winter foliage

4 FOR $1.00

Including Free Gift!

(8 for $1.75) (12 for $2.50)

(Sedum Spurium, Dragon's Blood) Rock gardens, borders, edging, under shady trees, and steep banks will be alive with carefree color when you plant this Creeping Red Sedum. Just place these hardy, northern nursery grown plants about one foot apart and watch them take over! Fill troublesome areas with a neat 3-4" tall cover that spreads fast, yet doesn't need pruning. Depend on it for bright red, starlike flowers from June through September--attractive, thick, semi-evergreen foliage the rest of the year, even in sub-zero weather!

Send no money; on delivery pay postman $1.00 for 4, $1.75 for 8 or $2.50 for 12, plus COD charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price—you keep the plants.

Grows and spreads without special care, in sun or shade, even in poor soil!

Dog Nearly Itches to Death

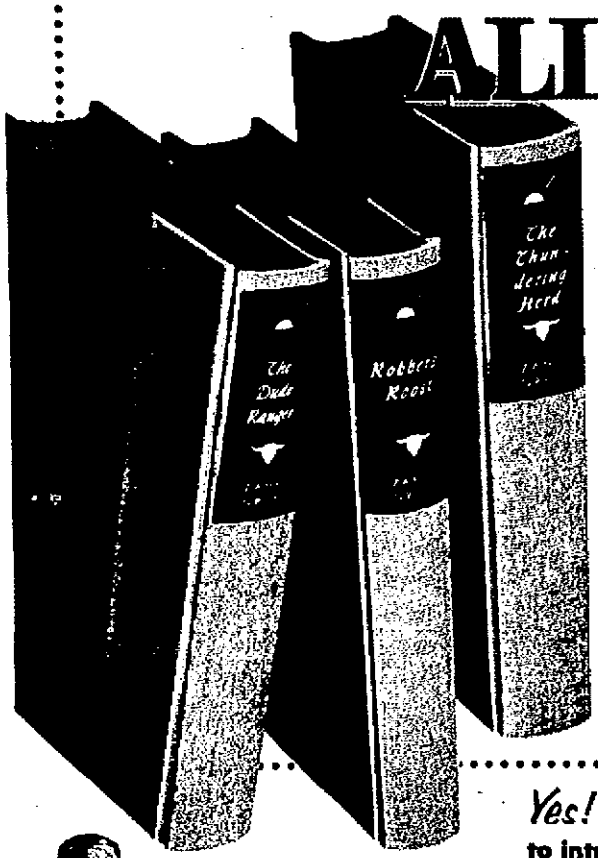

"I thought we would have to put Daisy to sleep . . . but I could never do this. I suffered as she suffered almost two years with large running, itching sores. I had almost given up trying things when I came across Sulfodene. Now her back is all healed, her hair is coming in thick. The Lord should bless you for such a fine product." says Mrs. John Burmester, New Jersey.

SULFODENE is a scientific liquid medication developed by famous veterinary scientist, Dr. A. C. Merrick. SULFODENE works fast to clear fungus infection, stop fungus itch and heal itch-sores (often called mange, eczema, hot spots). So soothing, the most frenzied itching is relieved almost instantly. Biting and scratching is stopped. Quickly promotes healing. Open sores heal over. Scales disappear and hair grows back. Used by kennels and leading veterinarians. For dogs and cats. Get SULFODENE today! At all drug stores and leading pet shops.

3 of the Greatest Western Stories Ever Written BY THE IMMORTAL ZANE GREY

ALL 3 FOR ONLY $1.00

[AN $8.67 VALUE]

Now Ready! YOUR FIRST 3 VOLUMES

THE THUNDERING HERD. When the plainsman asked Tom Doan why he wanted to hunt buffalo, Tom replied "I can ride . . . I'm quick on the draw – and I ain't seen man nor beast yet I'd run from!"

"You'll do," the rawhide-rough plainsman said. "I reckon I'll need every hand I can get. Them Indian varmints is almin' to run every hide-huntin' white man off the plains – YOUR SCALP WILL DO AS GOOD AS ANY FOR THEM!"

ROBBERS' ROOST. The Hank Hays Gang was at large! These blood-crazed killers were wanted – DEAD OR ALIVE – for robbery . . . rustling . . . murder . . . jail-breaking . . . and now for KIDNAPPING a beautiful young girl!

But the girl was doomed to perish! No one dared go near their hideout . . . where Hank Hays himself had boasted of a "Robbers' Roost whar no posse could ride in twenty years!"

THE DUDE RANGER. Ernest Howard was a new tenderfoot on the Red Rock Ranch. The ranch manager wouldn't even let him go near a horse. His daughter treated Ernest like dirt! And the foreman hated him bitterly – even tried to KILL him!

But The Tenderfoot had an ace up his sleeve. The others didn't know it, but HE was the new OWNER of Red Rock Ranch! He wanted to find out why the manager had $200,000 in the bank while the ranch itself was barely breaking even! He would find out, too – if he lived long enough!

Yes! TAKE ALL 3 FOR ONLY $1.00 to introduce you to the luxurious, matching, hard-bound volumes of "The Zane Grey Library" — No Obligation To Buy Any More Books

Entirely new and extremely now! That's the 1968 Ice Follies. This year, the accent is on the impossible. Impossibly beautiful costumes – in the making for twelve months at a cost of over one-half million dollars; impossibly difficult aerial skating, starring World Champion Donald Jackson, world famed Richard Dwyer, and acrobatic skater, Dave Comb. Impossibly beautiful productions – where it rains indoors and a giant stage of ice explodes with fire and lights and incredibly beautiful girls. Supported by a cast of over 100, all the internationally acclaimed skaters will be performing: Mr. Frick, Uschi Keszler, The Williams Family, Susan Berens, The Scarecrows, and others.

You'll see dancing pastries, riotous comedy, a dazzling fashion show, a slalom race, a fireworks display, and monumental theatrical extravaganza. It's the grandest, smoothest, glitteringest spectacular ever performed anywhere. It's almost impossible to describe. Except to say – this year it's really – but really something else!
